Hotel After All?

By PAUL MOSS
Times Staff

There is optimism at City Hall that a hotel will be built at Laurel Point after all.

Ald. Bob Ellis said today the assurance is likely to be given to Victoria city council on Tuesday when representatives of Canadian Freehold Properties Ltd. attend council's regular caucus meeting.

The development company, which has almost completed construction of a $10 million condominium project on the waterfront site, announced 10 days ago that it was unlikely to proceed with the second stage of the development — a 200-room hotel — unless the economy made a strong recovery.

Soaring construction and financing costs were among the factors blamed, and the company said its lease agreement with Delta Hotels Ltd. had fallen through.

But Ellis said he now understands from a CFP official that the firm does intend to go ahead with the hotel in accordance with its land-use contract with the city.

Ellis said the indications are that instead of finding a major hotel chain to operate the hotel, Canadian Freehold Properties will set up a separate management company for that purpose.

"They seem to be pretty confident that this will go through," he added.

No company spokesman was available for confirmation today.

TIME PAYMENT INTEREST 13%

ICBC Rates Still Double

Special to The Times

VANCOUVER—Increases in insurance premiums for 1976 announced today by the Insurance Corporation of B.C. showed that many motorists will be paying two and a quarter to two and a half times as much as they did for the same coverage last year.

Norm Bortnick, vice-president and general manager gave only three examples of the new rates for passenger cars.

In one of them — a 1974 Galaxie driven to work in Vancouver — last year's net payment of $189 for extended liability, collision and comprehensive coverage will rise to $426 in 1976.

This is an increase of $237 or a payment two and one quarter times as much as in 1975.

An under-age driver with a 1974 Ford Galaxie will pay $1,102 in 1976 compared with $315 in 1975.

In another example, for a 1966 Ford Fairlane, similar coverage will cost $264 in the same circumstances in 1976, compared with $81 in 1975.

This is 2.69 times as much.

For basic compulsory coverage on private cars and trucks, Bortnick said, the rates are lowest in Victoria.

For Victoria drivers they will range from $99 to $296, according to the use of the vehicle.

Highest rates will be in the Lower Mainland where, for pleasure use, they will be $137 and will increase to a $411 rate for young drivers.

Drivers unwilling to pay the new rates will be able to buy a minimum package of public liability coverage up to $50,000 and accident benefits.

In the Greater Vancouver area, this, for all cars, will cost $137, if the vehicle is driven for pleasure only, $165, if it is driven to work, $220 if it is used for business or if there is an occasional under-age driver, and $411 if the principal driver is under-age.

On top of this, motorists will be able to buy, if they wish, optional coverage raising public liability coverage to amounts ranging from $100,000 to $1 million or more.

Comprehensive coverage will be available with a $50 deductible and collision coverage will be available with deductible ranging from $100 to $500.

With this collision coverage there will be included comprehensive coverage with various deductibles.

Basic rates for commercial vehicles will be increased 56 per cent over the 1975 level without the territorial discounts; extension liability insurance will cost 50 per cent more than last year and collision and comprehensive coverage will be up 63 per cent, Bortnick said.

These increases are much lower than those for private cars and light trucks and on loss experience.

Referring to the installment plan to be offered, he said it will carry an interest rate of 13 per cent per year on the outstanding balance.

He said the corporation's premium income in 1976 is expected to total $230 million, compared with $165 million last year.

At eight foot two, Don Koehler, 50, of Chicago, is listed in the Guinness Book of Records as the world's tallest living person. Employed by a truck-lift manufacturing company, Koehler says he seldom bumps his head as he's developed "a sixth sense."

Ducking The Issue

Gas Ration Predicted In 5 Years

OTTAWA (CP) — Within the next five years Canadians will find themselves again buying rationed gas with stamps predicts Josef Kates, chairman of the Science Council of Canada.

In an interview Thursday he said that in all the noise raised about the free enterprise system, an important element of the prime minister's recent remarks has been lost.

"Mr. Trudeau has said Canadians are going to have to conserve their resources rather than consume them," Kates explained. "And he also said that if people didn't voluntarily change their ways then the government will have to step in."

"I can see by the early 1980s a situation similar to the war years where many things, including gasoline, were rationed and had to be bought with stamps."

"No one is saying this explicitly because they're afraid of frightening the public," he added.

Kates said government and industry are too busy blaming each other for the present state of the economy and are ignoring the problem of how to save it.

A combination of strict regulation, pricing and public education are necessary to stretch the resources so crucial to maintain our economy, he said, admitting what he was suggesting would not be popular.

"The politicians are scared to raise the price of oil because of the public outcry it would cause," he said. "In my view it's the best thing that could happen because then people would think twice before they use it."

Sentence Suspended As Ouellette Guilty

Times News Services

MONTREAL — Justice Minister Andre Ouellette, found guilty of contempt of court today, was given a three-month suspended sentence on condition that he make a public apology for remarks concerning the verdict of a trial in which three sugar refiners were acquitted of price-fixing charges.

Superior Court Justice James Hugessen ruled that the minister would be brought back "to be dealt with accordingly" should he fail to make the apology within 10 days and pay court costs of $500 within 30 days.

Sentence had been delayed briefly while Mr. Justice Hugessen conferred in private with the minister's counsel, Gabriel Lapointe.

Ouellette displayed no emotion as the judge gave his decision.

"There comes a point where criticism becomes mere scurrilous abuse," Hugessen, associate chief justice of Quebec Superior Court said.

Following the verdict, Lapointe, would not immediately indicate whether an appeal would be launched.

He said he would study the judgment and inform Mr. Justice Huggessen of his intentions before announcing publicly any decision.

Hugessen said the minister's remarks were given to Canadian Press reporter Alan Freeman with the knowledge they would in all likelihood be disseminated across the country.

The judge said he accepted the testimony of Freeman, whom he described as a disinterested party in the outcome of the sugar case, adding that the minister on the other hand was admittedly talking off the cuff when he gave the interview.

Environment Job For Marchand

Times News Services

OTTAWA — Jean Marchand came out of limbo Thursday by being sworn in as Canada's new minister of the environment, his seventh cabinet post in the past decade.

Looking tanned and fit after a recent period of ill-health needing hospital treatment, the 57-year-old Marchand said "I never felt better" as he took on his new job.

It was only last September that Marchand, plagued by hypertension, had to give up the reins of the onerous transportation department and content himself to being a minister without portfolio.

"He's in better shape than I am, which isn't saying a hell of a lot," Prime Minister Trudeau joked as he stood with his 57-year-old friend at a Government House swearing-in ceremony.

The prime minister conceded, however, that environment represents a less onerous burden for his colleague than some of the other seven portfolios Marchand has held since entering federal politics in 1964.

Joe Clark, opposition environment critic and Progressive Conservative member for Rocky Mountain, was less assured, however, saying the environment job is "too important to be treated as a retirement home for worn-out ministers."

He asked Trudeau to reconsider the appointment, replacing Marchand with someone "with a proven capacity in management and a demonstrated concern for preserving the Canadian environment."

Just before the September cabinet changes, Marchand was fined $200 in provincial court here after pleading guilty to leaving the scene of an accident. His driver's licence was suspended for one year.

Later, in November, Marchand was visited by the RCMP, who were investigating the so-called Sky Shops affair.

French Preference Leaked

OTTAWA (CP) — A short-lived plan to establish a special recruiting unit within the department of supply and services to attract more French Canadian and bilingual women employees was condemned Thursday by Conservative MP Tom Cossitt.

The recruiting program, outlined in an internal department memorandum leaked to Cossitt, said top priority should be given to the hiring of francophones for such specialized jobs as planners, auditors, cost analysts, computer analysts and engineering procurement officers.

The four-page document outlined proposals to search out likely candidates on university campuses and to obtain information on possible candidates among bilingual Canadians teaching and studying at U.S. universities.

The MP for Leeds said in a prepared statement he was shocked by the memo. It revealed an attempt to oust English-speaking employees from influential senior positions in the 10,000-strong government department, he said.

He described it as an outright perversion of the government's bilingualism policy and said it "can only be interpreted as a sneaky and secret attempt to place control of the department as far as possible in the hands of francophone Canadians . . ."

Marc Rochon, director-general of the department's personnel branch, said in an interview that the plan was one of several being considered to carry out a Commons-approved policy of increasing the number of francophones in the public service.

He said the special recruiting unit was never set up because the government's austerity program intervened.

'Banana Republic' Row Between Ottawa, UAW

Times News Services

OTTAWA — A major row came to a boil Thursday between Labor Minister John Munro and the giant United Auto Workers Union.

Munro accused UAW president, Leonard Woodcock of "treating Canada like a banana republic" and meddling in Canadian affairs during a speech made to the union's international convention in Detroit.

Woodcock in his Wednesday speech attacked Ottawa's anti-inflation program and said that it put the Canada-U.S. auto pact in jeopardy. The union boss also insisted that wages for members remain the same in both countries.

Munro said Thursday, in a sharply worded statement that parity in wages and conditions is certainly the vital issue for union members "but Woodcock cannot tell us our laws do not apply to the UAW."

Canadian members of the union have "won every vestige of automony but when I read what a U.S. labor leader tells us he will allow to happen in this country . . . I begin to wonder," he added.

Dennis McDermott, Canadian director of the union, immediately shot back that he welcomes Woodcock's support of the Canadian labor movement's fight against the federal program of selective wage and price controls.

"That's what international union solidarity is all about," McDermott said in a telephone interview from Detroit.

"I am surprised that a person in Munro's position would make such a silly, fatuous statement."

Woodcock said the union, in return for its support of the auto pact, has demanded that there be the same wages in Canada and the U.S. for the same work.

The union is "not going to allow the controls program in Canada to violate the partiy we so painfully win in collective bargaining," he said.

He did not rule out the possibility of strikes.

FIRST CANADIANS INVITE THE QUEEN

OTTAWA (CP) — The Native Council of Canada, claiming aboriginal rights, has invited Queen Elizabeth to open the Olympic Games in Montreal this summer.

A council spokesman said it is presumptuous of certain groups, newcomers compared with the natives, to say who is welcome to the Games and who is not. Some Quebecers have said she is not welcome.

"We don't mind the Queen coming to open the Games," said the spokesman. "If we don't mind, I don't think anyone else should mind."

Robeson Dead

SON IN TROUBLE

VANCOUVER (CP) — The son of Human Resources Minister Bill Vander Zalm has been charged along with another man with attempting to defraud the Insurance Corporation of British Columbia of $609.23.

Jeffrey Vander Zalm, 18, of nearby Surrey and Reginald Nedo, 34, of suburban Coquitlam have been charged with attempting to defraud ICBC between Aug. 17 and Sept. 6 of last year in connection with a collision. Nedo is a Surrey auto dealership employee.

The two were remanded to May 7 for trial when they appeared in Cloverdale court on Wednesday.

B.C. RAIL INQUIRY SET

An industrial inquiry commissioner was appointed today in an attempt to settle the Teamsters' strike against B.C. Railway.

After a marathon session between both sides and Labor Minister Allan Williams Thursday, both sides agreed this morning to the appointment of the commissioner who will bring down a non-binding report in two weeks.

But Teamsters' spokesman Sen. Ed Lawson said the commissioner's report will not be binding and the Teamsters have not agreed to send their men back to work.

Socred Audit an 'Outrageous Political Stunt'

By LINDA HUGHES
Times Staff

A Social Credit constituency vice-president and party fund raiser is heading the provincial government's independent review of B.C.'s finances.

The national firm of Clarkson Gordon was chosen by the Socred government to do the financial study and, in turn, the company chose to head the review resident-partner Ian Adam of the Point Grey Socred constituency executive.

Both Premier Bennett and Clarkson Gordon's senior Vancouver partner, Bonar Lund, said today they knew of Adam's connections, but did not consider it a problem or a possible conflict of interest.

But NDP leader Dave Barrett called it an unbelievable display "of political arrogance and insensitivity" and said the whole financial review will be put into "disrepute".

"I'm not questioning the ethics of Clarkson Gordon . . . I'm questioning the ethics of a government of B.C. that would pull such an outrageous political stunt.

"They don't have the sensitivity to separate themselves from their political bias. As a matter of fact, they obviously don't see anything wrong in what they've done," said Barrett.

When the review was launched, Bennett stressed it would be an independent review of the province's finances, which would be used by him for a state of the province address in February. It is not an audit, but a correlation and interpretation of financial data provided by all government departments and agencies.

Bennett said he had nothing directly to do with choosing Adam; the government simply chose a well-respected national firm and one which, he said, was not associated with any other government agency.

The premier knows Adam personally as a party member and the accountant has done work for Bennett in his Kelowna businesses.

But Bennett said he still did not see any conflict, adding he would be "very, very interested" if someone wants to make charges against the ethics or professionalism of either the firm or Adam. The premier said the government probably would have had trouble finding a senior accountant in Vancouver who was not a Socred supporter.

Clarkson Gordon has no connections with the Social Credit party, he said.

The company's senior partner said Adam was chosen simply because he had some time available and the company was well aware of the accountant's association with the Socred party.

Lund said he was "not a bit worried" about the effect the

Epileptic Hushup Attempt Denied

A spokesman for Immigration Minister Robert Andras Thursday denied there had been an attempt by the department to stymie the complaints of a Victoria woman, an epileptic, about immigration policies.

The spokesman said it was sheer nonsense to suggest that landed immigrant status was offered to Vivienne Anderson, 30, of 1060 Pakington, "on a technical basis to try to shut me up."

Earlier this month, Mrs. Anderson was offered the status, but turned it down, saying she would have had to sign a false declaration stating she did not have epilepsy. A line in the federal immigration act prohibits anyone who suffers from epilepsy from obtaining landed status.

The form she was requested to sign set out that she suffers from epileptiform seizures, not epilepsy she has had since 1969.

The spokesman said Mrs. Anderson's diagnosis was changed after she was examined by a health department doctor, but Mrs. Anderson says she was examined by her own doctor who confirmed the previous diagnosis of epilepsy.

"The diagnosis was changed by the doctor in the health department who did not see me, nor did he consult my doctor about this change in diagnosis," she said.

Mrs. Anderson, a British immigrant, has been crusading since 1973 to have the offending line taken out of the immigration act and Andreas himself has promised that it will be deleted, but not until the end of the year.

"I want to yank that part of it (the act) into the 20th century. It is an embarrassment to the government," Andras said.

Andras has said that the change will have to be brought up with the other general revisions to the act, expected to be introduced this summer, but probably not passed until the end of the year.

Meanwhile, people like Mrs. Anderson have to live in Canada on a minister's permit, a document renewable every year which can be revoked at any time.

The permit, usually issued to people with criminal records, results in embarrassing confrontations with border guards and other officials, Mrs. Anderson says.

A Victoria doctor, Dr. Charles Simpson, has added his voice to the attempt to get the epileptic prohibition removed as soon as possible.

Simpson, a neurologist, says the ban is ludicrous and a biblical hangover from the Dark Ages.

He said the condition now is excellently controlled by medication.

"I think it's archaic legislation and I have felt it for a long time," he said.

It is just as silly to keep someone out of the country who has a mild heart condition as it is to ban someone with a well-controlled epileptic condition, he said.

The distinction between epilepsy and epileptiform seizures is an "absolute piece of semantic nonsense," Dr. Simpson said.

He said he knows of a Victoria woman who "hasn't had a seizure for donkey's years and they still won't give her landed immigrant status."

Mrs. Anderson is on a balanced treatment program and has had only two seizures since 1973. The seizures, she says, are only brought on by extreme circumstances. She had one when her parents died on consecutive days and the other while she was in the hospital for major surgery.

$2 Billion Currency Prime

LONDON (Reuter) — European banking sources say leading central banks, including Canada, pumped at least $2 billion into foreign exchange markets to keep currencies stable in the first three weeks of January.

This large-scale central bank intervention is seen as evidence that the Rambouillet economic summit agreement worked out last November is working well.

The total amount is probably far more than this estimate, which is based on conservative calculations.

It does not include much of the intervention carried out by central banks in the joint European currency float, nor any estimate of action by U.S. monetary authorities.

Lira Rally Sought

disclosure would have on his company.

Adam said in an interview today other partners are working with him on the review and he doesn't see that his political affiliation would put the review under a cloud.

The accountant said he joined the Socred party in August, 1974 and while he said he wouldn't describe himself as a "bagman," said he had helped raise funds for the party.

"I think I got the job (as auditor) because I was eminently qualified," he said.

Barrett said the whole report was a "straight, cheap political vendetta," and said it will be a political farce before it's even produced.

"There is no way they can justify hiring a Socred active campaigner to come up with an audit . . . there are other auditors around . . . and this firm isn't even a Social Credit firm, I'm sure of that," said Barrett.

The former premier pulled out a copy of the legislature's Hansard from last June when the House was discussing an audit of B.C. Railway's finances and said a statement by now Public Works Minister Alex Fraser now appears not to have been "made in jest."

Fraser is quoted as saying: "I would say that I think any one of us could hire another accounting firm and come up with the answers that we want if we're giving those kinds of directions to them."

Both Bennett and Lund said there is no suggestion they would consider removing Adam from his job and the accountant was in Victoria today continuing his review.

Soviets Launch All-Out Drive

Times News Serices

Western-supported forces massed their troops at a small river crossing in central Angola today to halt an all-out assault by Soviet-backed forces on their southern strongholds.

Military sources in Lusaka said the Soviet-supported Popular Movement (MPLA) was receiving fresh infusions of Cuban soldiers to spearhead their offensive.

Both the MPLA and the pro-western partners — the National Union for the Total Independence of Angola (UNITA) and the National Front for the Liberation of Angola (NFLA) — have called the southern offensive crucial to the outcome of the year-long civil war.

South Africa, meanwhile, made a renewed call for an Angola amid increasing speculation it is preparing to pull back its own troops to the South-West African border.

"The question of Angola should be solved round the conference table; armed force can bring no lasting solution," South African President Nico Diederichs said today in a keynote address at the opening of Parliament in Cape Town.

Dispatches arriving in Johannesburg say MPLA forces have reached the north bank of the Queve River, the last major natural obstacle between the MPLA and Huambo, the political capital of the western aligned forces. Both armies were said to have bought up artillery for a major battle at the Caninda Bridge, 17 miles south of Santa Comba, which was believed to be the only span still intact in the area.

The MPLA has rolled back UNITA forces 55 miles in three days of heavy fighting in west-central Angola, the British news correspondents said. They were the first Western journalists permitted to accompany MPLA forces into the field in many months. The few Western correspondents reporting from the MPLA side were previously restricted to Luanda, the Portuguese capital of Angola.

Truckloads of heavily-armed Cubans were seen rolling south on the Luanda-Huambo highway, the correspondents said. Other Cuban combat units and medical teams were seen in rear areas.

Meanwhilke, in Brussels, U.S. Secretary of State Henry Kissinger said today the U.S.-Soviet position on Angola remains "unsatisfactory" after his talks with Soviet leaders in Moscow. The future of America's detente with the Soviet Union depends in part on Soviet "restraint" in Angola and other parts of the world, he said.

Sooke Cesspool Warning Issued

Sooke harbor and basin will become a cesspool unless something is done to curb pollution, Jack Brooks, retired fisheries officer and a director of the Sooke Conservation Society, said Thursday.

"So far nothing has been done to stop the sources of pollution," he said. "The quality of the water is steadily deteriorating."

He was commenting on a Federal Environmental Protection Service report which showed the harbor and basin are being heavily polluted by industrial and commercial waste, plus seepage from faulty residential septic tanks.

FEPS recommended a detailed investigation to isolate the sources of pollution.

Since the report was released, the federal fisheries protection branch has closed most of the shoreline of the basin and harbor for the harvesting of shellfish.

But so far the B.C. Pollution Control Branch and the Capital Regional District have not acted on the report.

Fred Hodgson of the pollution control branch said the report had not been studied but he would review permits for the discharge of industrial waste in the harbor and basin.

"We will be looking into the matter," he said. "But we can't do anything about faulty residential septic tanks. That comes under the jurisdiction of municipalities afd regional districts."

Regional Health Officer Dr. Allan Arneil was not available for comment but a regional district officer said the report would be discussed when he returns from holidays next week.

Conservationist Brooks, who has been fighting for years to stop the pollution, isn't too optimistic.

"The experts come here year after year to make surveys and studies," he said. "But nothing is done."

N-Force Cut Urged

BRUSSELS (CP) — The Soviet Union has proposed a cut in the ceiling on United States and Soviet strategic nuclear forces, a senior U.S. official said today.

Soviet Communist party leader Leonid Brezhnev proposed to State Secretary Henry Kissinger in Moscow Thursday that the two countries lower the ceiling of 2,400 nuclear missiles and bombers agreed to at the 1974 Vladivostok summit, the official told reporters aboard the U.S. Air Force plane that brought Kissinger here from Moscow.

The proposed reduction was understood to be a face-saving way of exempting the Soviet's new Backfire bomber from limits on strategic weapons.

The Kremlin insists the Backfire, which can reach the U.S. only on one-way suicide missions is not a strategic weapon.

The Soviet proposal was understood to involve a complicated formula under which Backfires would not be counted in the ceiling, but the ceiling would be showered by a number equal to the number of Backfires put into service.

Since the Soviet Union is deploying Backfires at the rate of two a month, about 240 will go into service in the next 10 years and, according to the Soviet proposal, the weapons ceiling would be reduced to about 2,150, the U.S. official said.

the weather

A weather system which brought rain to the coast and gave showers across the interior has now moved out of B.C. Skies have cleared behind it and only a few showers persist along the outer coast. A ridge of high pressure moving inland will bring sunny skies to most regions. Snowflurries will persist in extreme eastern regions throughout the day. The next Pacific disturbance will bring cloud and rain to the Queen Charlotte Islands Saturday evening. Elsewhere skies will remain relatively clear. Only slightly lower temperatures are expected at some interior locations.

Morgentaler Expected To Be Out on Bail Today

By PETER THOMSON
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Justice Minister Ron Basford yesterday ordered a new trial for Dr. Henry Morgentaler on the charge of performing an illegal abortion.

The effect of the order is that Morgentaler is charged but under Canadian principles of justice, "he is innocent until proven guilty. The previous conviction is set aside," Basford said.

The earlier conviction, which has resulted in Morgentaler serving 10 months of an 18 month sentence, is quashed.

Morganthaler is expected to be free on bail today.

Basford said it would not be appropriate for him to comment on what recourse Morgentaler might have as a result of the previous conviction, extremely high legal expenses and damaged health resulting from the conviction that sent him to jail.

Nor would Basford comment on the position of the Professional Corporation of Physicians of Quebec which has suspended Morgentaler's medical licence for one year, apparently as a result of the conviction.

The justice minister said the ordering of a new trial did not imply any change in Canada's abortion laws.

In a statement to a news conference, Basford noted that Morgentaler had been tried in Quebec Superior Court on two separate charges of performing an illegal abortion.

In the first case he was acquitted by the jury but the case was appealed and the jury verdict set aside by the Quebec Court of Appeal.

The overturning of a jury verdict was unprecedented in Canadian history.

Although upheld by a majority of the Supreme Court of Canada, the Quebec Court of Appeal decision was described by the Chief Justice as "highly unusual."

As a result of the Morgentaler case, an amendment to the criminal code was introduced into Parliament which would have the effect of denying an appeal court the right to overturn a jury acquittal.

Appeal courts, under the proposed legislation, would be limited to ordering a new trial or dismissing the apppeal.

On Tuesday, the Quebec Court of Appeal handed down its judgment in the second Morgentaler case in which he had again been acquitted by a jury. The appeal court dismissed the appeal.

Basford noted that Mr. Justice Owen, speaking for the Quebec Appeal Court, had stated:

"In the previous case the defence of necessity was raised but little or no evidence was produced to support it. In the present case, counsel for the accused concentred on getting into the record facts intended to support a defence of necessity . . ."

Basford said that Morgentaler's lawyer, Claude-Armand Sheppard, had requested him to order a new trial and had said he could offer a defence of necessity at a new trial. The Sheppard request was received months ago.

It was because of that request, and the Quebec Court of Appeal decision of this week, that Basford said he had ordered a new trial.

ROLLBACKS FOR TEACHER PAY SET

OTTAWA (CP) — The Anti-Inflation Board said Thursday it has advised four Ontario school boards to reduce the amount of proposed pay awards for elementary school teachers.

The latest in a series of board rulings against teachers says the board has advised reductions of five percentage points in proposals made by the Sudbury, Kenora and Kent county school boards.

A rollback of six percentage points was advised in a settlement offered teachers by the Manitoulin school board.

The proposed increase for Kenora teachers about 24 per was 29 per cent, for Manitoulin teachers 26 per cent, Kent school district teachers cent and Sudbury teachers 25 per cent.

The board gave no details about the number of teachers affected by the salary proposals.

In a statement, the board notes it is recommending settlements which still are clearly beyond th wage guides set out by the government's anti-inflation program. But it says this is necessary in order to keep salaries in each area competitive with those paid by neighboring school boards.

A REPRIEVE FOR CYC

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government has given volunteers employed by the Company of Young Canadians more time and money to hustle their community projects into financial independence, CYC executive director Doug Bowie said Thursday.

"I can't believe it," Bowie, 32, said after learning from a government official that CYC volunteers will be given two month's notice of job terminatin and an additional one month's severance pay. They now earn between $116 and $149 a week.

The decision was reached at a treasury board meeting Thursday.

Details will be discussed with CYC members and the secretary of state's office at a meeting today, he said.

The government announced Dec. 18 that the CYC, created by an act of Parliament in 1966 to help the poor and unorganized, would be ended April 1 as part of government spending cutbacks.

Wheelchair Room Eyed

City recreation manager Jack Morgan has been asked to examine the feasibility of removing several seats from the McPherson Playhouse and the Royal Theatre to provide an area for handicapped persons in wheelchairs.

The request came from the city's recreation committee Thursday after studying correspondence from two organizations for the handicapped.

The letters pointed out that fire regulations prohibit the blocking of theatre ailes by wheelchairs, and said even where a handicapped person is able to transfer to an aisle seat, there is the danger of immobility and congestion if a fire occurs.

With removal of a few permanent seats near exits, wheelchairs could be safely accommodated without blocking the aisles.

Committee chairman Ald. Ron McKenzie said after talking to the organizations this week he can better appreciate the extent of the day-to-day problems faced by handicapped persons.

"It's like opening up Pandora's Box," he remarked, adding that the design of the new Oak Bay recreation centre makes it a "dead loss" as far as disabled users are concerned.

Lebanon Guns Stilled

Times News Services

BEIRUT — Lebanon took the first cautious steps today on what former premier Saeb Salam called "the thousand-mile trek to build a new nation," and a Syrian-backed truce in the civil war was generally observed by Moslem, Christian and Palestinian gunmen.

Only "minor and individual actions" marred the cease-fire declared late Thursday in the nine-month conflict, the joint Lebanese-Syrian-Palestinian truce supervisory committee said.

As the fighting tapered off, hundreds of armed hooligans broke into shops and homes in Beirut and stole goods estimated to be worth about $2 million.

The Beirut airport reopened today after a shutdown that began a week ago when mortar shells landed on the runway during fighting between the army and Palestinian units.

Hopes the truce will succeed rest largely on the Syrians. Most Diplomats agree this is Syria's last hope of arranging peace short of a full-scale military intervention that could touch off a war with Israel.

Israel was reported maintaing a close defensive watch on Lebanon despite the ceasefire.

Moslem and Palestinian forces controlled at least two-thirds of the country when the cease-fire went into effect.

MORE QUEBECERS CANCER-PRONE

QUEBEC (CP) — While several countries have reported a decline in deaths caused by lung cancer, more and more Canadians—particularly Quebecers—are dying of the disease, a cancer specialist said Thursday.

Dr. Anthony Miller, director of the epidemiology unit of the National Cancer Institute, said the knowledge that 80 per cent of lung cancers are caused by smoking "is not changing Canadian behavior."

Dr. Miller told a symposium at the annual meeting of the Royal College of Physicians and Surgeons that incidence of lung cancer has decreased in Britain in the last five years and in the United States in the last three years.

But the downturn in cancer deaths elsewhere has not been seen in Canada, Dr. Miller said.

Quebec has the highest smoking rate in Canada and currently leads the rest of the country in lung cancer deaths.

In a 1954-58 study the province trailed British Columbia and Ontario in deaths from lung cancer. But by 1973 Quebec had taken the lead.

Conservative Navigators Off Course

Considering the trail of disaster that follows Pierre Trudeau's Liberal administration, one would think the Tories could find better issues than the prime minister's trip to Cuba, Mexico and Venezuela this week. It is the Cuban visit that particularly rankles Conservatives. Former prime minister John Diefenbaker first found fault, saying the visit would give the world the impression that Canada supports Cuban involvement in Angola. Then Conservative leadership candidate John Fraser chimed in with a similar harangue.

If the Conservative argument against the Cuban visit was valid then no Canadian prime minister should visit the United States either, because a U.S. agency is supplying arms to the other side in the Angolan dispute. What's more, the U.S. is supporting South African troops fighting in the war. Wasn't it the same John G. Diefenbaker who was instrumental in getting South Africa out of the British Commonwealth? Would Diefenbaker countenance supporting an ally of South Africa over a good trading partner like Cuba? One has to resort to hyperbole to expose such hysterical arguments emanating from Tories who know better.

Prime Minister Trudeau should be encouraged to visit Latin America. The only other Canadian prime minister to ever visit our Latin neighbors was . . . ahem, Diefenbaker, who went to Mexico in 1961. No one complained then that the prime minister shouldn't go because the regime of Lopez Mateos wasn't quite the democracy it should be.

On a more pragmatic level, Canadian sales to Cuba increased 62 per cent in the first nine months of 1975, compared with the same period in 1974. Next to Mexico, Cuba is Canada's best Latin American customer, accounting for $156.1 million sales in the first three quarters of 1975. The figure for the whole year is estimated to be about $225 million.

Cuba looks on its Canadian relationship as a model of what will eventually be burgeoning trade with western capitalist nations. The island nation's $5 billion debt to the Soviets is scheduled for repayment beginning in 1986. While our sales to the Castro regime have mainly been agricultural products, Cuba's growing consumer society could one day be an important outlet for Canadian manufactured goods. Since this country refused to join the U.S. trade embargo against Cuba, the Castro regime will probably continue to favor trade with Canada even after relations with the U.S. are resumed. Havana is a fitting port of call for Prime Minister Trudeau. The Tories would be well advised to map their own future before they start filing flight plans for the prime minister.

University Salaries

"But I can assure you the ICBC problem will look small in comparison to the ones in education," said Education Minister Pat McGeer two weeks ago.

When people read that in the papers, during the furore over the government's inept handling of new auto insurance rates, they may have wondered how anything in the wide world could be a bigger problem.

But after looking at McGeer's handling of the first issues tossed to him as education minister, that remark of his seems more and more accurate. He seems to attract trouble like thistledown sticks to a tar baby.

He told British Columbia teachers early in the new year they would have to abide by the federal anti-inflation guidelines — 10 per cent was all and hang the legalities of arbitration awards, the Public Schools Act or whether he had any authority now to order the salaries rolled back. Most citizens probably welcomed this firm and frank statement of policy. This newspaper certainly did.

Now two weeks later the press makes an issue of the rather steep salaries for professors prevailing at the University of B.C. They got an average 17.3 per cent increase in one year and dollar amounts of the pay hikes were as high as $7,500.

Comparisions are odious and often unfair. But we all keep making them. Politicians make them. The voters made one last month and chose a party which promised to hold the line, clean up the province's finances and balance the books. So the warning to B.C. teachers was in character with those expectations.

But present the new minister of education with what looks like an identical case, and what does he do? In a CHAN television interview on Monday he talked a lot about the need to pay high salaries to attract world-calibre staff, about not interfering in university internal affairs — but there was no expression of concern at the level of salaries or the kind of increase they got, or the example it sets.

McGeer emphasizes the need to pay high salaries to compete with other universities for the best people, but at the University of Washington in Seattle, where world class research goes on just as at UBC, salaries for full professors are $10,000 lower.

It's ironic that the furore arises, not because the minister was misquoted, but because his words were accurately reproduced. He was asked if he had the power to roll back university salaries, and said there was none he knew of. And if he did, he wouldn't use it.

So what impression is left? He came down publicly like a ton of bricks on teachers who got 11 or 12 per cent, but expressed little concern at either the present level of salaries at UBC nor the percentage increase they received. Is it disgraceful and irresponsible journalism to make the comparison?

Although he did say in the interview that "Rome wasn't built in a day — we're not going to solve these anomalies overnight," McGeer does appear to be overly eager to avoid offending the sensibilities of his colleagues at UBC.

W. A. WILSON

Backsliding on Bilingualism

OTTAWA — For some time an increasing number of small signs have suggested a rise in English-French tensions here in Ottawa. Probably some of them reflect feelings in other parts of the nation as well.

Some can easily be attributed to the normal strains involved in the government's attempt to spread bilingualism inside the bureaucracy and, to a degree, the attitudes with which this is being done. It is not an easy process. The administrative disruptions are considerable. The immediate effect on efficiency is seriously adverse. There are inevitable fears over the future of individual careers and the frustrations which everyone learning another language experiences.

All of these difficulties are normal and predictable. It must be said, however, that the cabinet men most involved in this program do not do very much to make it easier or smoother.

Don't Make It Easy

A great deal of individual effort within the public service has gone into the attempt to make the policy work but in truth it would be staggering if either the prime minister or the current president of treasury board were to admit this. Neither man, Pierre Trudeau and Jean Chretien, has learned the wisdom of an old saw — you catch more flies with honey than with vinegar.

On this subject, the public statements of the two men suggest that they prefer to kick, rather than to lead.

The public attitudes of Messrs. Trudeau and Chretien add to the ordinary strains and difficulties of the program because they seem so ungenerous, so meanly reluctant to admit the progress that has been made.

Perhaps because they are dealing with subordinates within the bureaucracy, they lack normal political skills. This is unfortunate because the language problems of this divided nation demand a mixture of determination, tolerance and generosity which does not make itself evident today in any balanced form.

On the other side of events, there is the disturbing case of Mark MacGuigan, the Liberal member of parliament for Windsor-Walkerville and a prominent contender for the leadership of the Ontario Liberal party. A few years ago, as co-chairman of a joint House-Senate committee on the constitution, MacGuigan was a skilled and persuasive advocate of increased bilingualism in Canada. Now, although he is insistent that he would not take away any acquired language rights which Ontario's sizeable French-speaking minority possess, he is a determined opponent of any provincial extension of second-language services.

MARK MacGUIGAN
. . . now talking anti-French line

One of the reasons he puts forward for a change of position which he admits quite freely is Quebec's passage of Bill 22, the provincial Official Language Act. Among the newspapers which have criticized him, arguing forcefully that his reasons are inadequate, is the Conservative Ottawa Journal, many of whose readers are tense over the rigors of the federal bilingualism program.

It seems to me that MacGuigan's reasons for a change of stance on this vital question are seriously inadequate and that they ignore some of the most serious problems of our history.

Turned His Back

The roots of Bill 22 lie at least as much outside Quebec as they do within the province. In part, its origins go back to the Manitoba schools question of the last century and the unreasoning barriers placed in the way of good French education in Ontario early in this century.

Ontario's policy of making it impossible to secure a complete education in French within its borders was altered only in the 1960s. When he took that enlightened step the premier of the day, John Robarts, was fearful of an adverse popular reaction. To his own surprise and pleasure there was no criticism of the change in policy.

But those of us in the English-speaking community have reason to remember how recent Ontario's new policy is and that a man, once hailed as very liberal-minded, has now turned his back on the spirit that underlays it.

This country has its strengths but it also suffers a certain fragility. We should treat it with regard and concern.

Changes in Rules of Evidence

TORONTO—Mr. Justice Patrick Hartt, the Ontario supreme court judge who took leave of absence to head up the Law Reform Commission of Canada, has remarked on various occasions that there is a discouraging lack of public interest in the commission's work. The publication of the commission's first report, after over four years of labor, would seem to prove his point.

The report was tabled in the House of Commons last month and is full of proposed reforms concerning the laws of evidence, some of them long overdue and some of them rather startling. But as far as this observer can discover, the press and the politicians have ignored it. The Ottawa press corps should hang its head in shame.

The current rules of evidence are vexing, complicated and too numerous to count, since they are derived fro the most part from case law and precedents. Wigmore, the American authority on evidence, runs to 11 volumes. Phipson, a text widely used in Canada, contains 7,000 precedents. Perhaps the greatest value of the Law Reform Commission's report is that it proposes an evidence code for criminal proceedings (and for most other proceedings under federal jurisdiction) which pulls everything together into one simplified, rationalized whole, whatever one may think of the specific changes proposed.

Fundamentals of Law

It is, of course, impossible in a short space to examine all of the commission's proposals. Many of them will interest only the lawyers. But several of them go to the fundamentals of the law.

One of these is certainly the law concerning illegally-obtained evidence. In Canada, it does not matter if the police violate the law or a person's civil rights in obtaining evidence against that person —the evidence is admissible at that person's trial provided it is reliable.

This is a rule which has long disturbed the civil libertarians and, indeed, the proposition that the police must come into court with clean hands can hardly be gainsaid. At the same time, however, one would not like to see extremism in the opposite direction such as has occurred in the U.S., where the slightest departure in correct police procedure can produce an automatic acquittal for the accused on constitutional grounds.

The commission would resolve the dilemma by excluding evidence "obtained under such circumstances that its use in the proceedings would tend to bring the administration of justice into disrepute."

Obviously the judge would have to decide and the commission would require him to take into consideration all of the circumstances, "including the extent to which human dignity and social values were breached in obtaining the evidence, the seriousness of the case, the importance of the evidence, whether any harm to an accused or others was inflicted wilfully or not, and whether there were circumstances justifying the action, such as a situation or urgency requiring action to prevent the destruction or loss of evidence."

One may be permitted to wonder, perhaps, if these guidelines do not give too much discretion to judges, who do seem, particularly in the lower courts, to side with the police. However, the commission argues that stricter rules of evidence are unlikely to prove very effective in controlling police behavior and that the proposed solution will at least enable the courts to protect the integrity of the judicial process, which the current law undermines by making the courts a party to police wrongdoing.

Less troublesome are the commission's proposals for protecting the character of witnesses, especially when they are victims of rape or other sexual crimes.

Generally the present law provides that a witness may be asked any question about his or her past conduct which might tend to reveal his or her character, the assumption being that an admission of misconduct reveals the witness to be an untruthful or disreputable person. There can be little doubt that this prying into the past deters women from complaining or testifying in cases of rape, a crime which is increasing at an alarming rate.

The commission would prohibit in sex crimes evidence concerning the character of the victim, unless the judge is satisfied, at a hearing in camera, that such evidence goes to the issue of the guilt or innocence of the accused, which is to say, generally speaking, whether there was an element of consent.

Commissioner G. V. La Forest would go further and prohibit character evidence touching upon consent.

More generally, the commission would not allow the crown to tender character evidence against any accused person for the purpose of showing "disposition" (that is, likely to commit the alleged act unless the accused has himself offered evidence as to his character.

Unusual Proposal

It would prohibit character evidence against any witness for the purpose of attacking his credibility unless it is of substantial value in affording proof. Evidence that a witness has committed a crime would be inadmissable for credibility purposes if the witness has been pardoned or if years had elapsed since the crime was committed or punishment completed.

In this connection, the commission has a most unusual proposal. Current law permits the criminal record of an accused person to be used to attack his credibility as a witness, should he choose to testify in his own defence. This deters many accused persons, the commission argues, from testifying, and while a jury should not draw any conclusions from that, an inference is hard to avoid. Therefore the commission would exclude evidence of past crimes for the purpose of discrediting an accused person's testimony, unless the accused has raised the issue of credibility first.

Now that has to be thought upon.

Be Fair

Come one and all, you media men, teenage drivers, tenants, NDP diehards, etc. — be fair. Dissent but dissent honorably. Yours for fairness. — Mrs. G. Thompson, Victoria.

ICBC Solution

There must be many people who voted for free enterprise who now are somewhat sorry for what they did, a belief proven every day in the news media. If they had to vote again it would likely be a different story. There is more opposition every day. Never has been seen before so much opposition for a government just starting out in office. ICBC is a good example.

We know rates have to go up, but if they raised them by some 20 to 25 per cent and put some 15 cents a gallon gas tax on to cover the deficit, that would be more sensible and realistic. The people who drive the most pay the most. At the same time it would keep unneccessary drivers off the road, which is what local governments like to see anyway. And they maybe would use buses more often.

But the Socreds like to set the rates so American companies can come in next year and drain the capital away from our country. Haven't you people learned enough from the old system? — H. Borsboom, 398 Bearhill Road.

NDP to Blame

I have been reading all the letters to the editor pertaining to ICBC, and the only letter to make any sense was the one signed Former Car Driver, which lays the blame right where it belongs, with the NDP.

It appears to me that most of the people who are complaining about the increases are those who expect that because the government runs this service it should be free or highly subsidized. It is obvious to most people that the only money any government has is what it takes from the people. One only has to drive past ICBC any morning and look at the damaged cars to realize that nobody could operate a car insurance business at the premium ICBC was charging without losing millions of dollars.

In the last two years fire, marine and life insurance premiums have risen considerably due to the general inflation factor, which in turn was caused by the high cost of doing business today. If car insurance has to be subsidized, why shouldn't all other types of insurance be assisted by the government? Is one more justified than the others?

Some of these people talk about being ripped off by private insurance companies, which was never my experience. The only people I know who were ripped off were the bad drivers who in my opinion should be made to pay for their carelessness. ICBC insures these poor drivers at the same rate as the general public, and you, Mr. Public, are now going to pay for it.

Let's have the private insurance companies back, and then we can choose who we want to carry our insurance, and we will see who calls the tune.—A Displeased Driver.

Human Rights

Having backed down from the powerful public service commission of British Columbia and given it a clean bill of corruption with full freedom to discriminate against citizens as it pleases contrary to the Human Rights Act, and to reject permanently from employment anyone it has a prejudice against, the human rights branch of the department of labor has decided to lock horns with one of the biggest newspapers in the province, challenging the right of a newspaper to control the contents of its own publication.

This attack on the freedom of the press has, of course, been appealed by Pacific Press Ltd., which should logically object to the government's telling it what to print and what not to print.

The combination of these two cases demonstrates the strange set of values by which the human rights branch operates. — Percy Maddux, Vancouver.

60 YEARS AGO

From the Times of January 23, 1916

There died a few days ago in the Nicola Valley general hospital after a short illness at the age of 84, Jesus Garcia, one of the earliest pioneers in that part of the province. He was born in Mexico and moved to California following the gold rush. He came to British Columbia in 1859 and engaged in packing to the gold mines on the Fraser. In 1862, when the great discoveries were made in the Cariboo, he immediately engaged in packing supplies from Hope to the new diggings. Later he went into ranching and in 1871 decided to stay in the Nicola Valley. On part of his ranch the town of Merritt stands today.

How the Soviets View Detente

By G. ARBATOV

(Arbatov is Director of the Institute of U.S. and Canadian Studies at the U.S.S.R. Academy of Sciences. His article is excerpted from the government daily newspaper Izvestia and is accepted as the official Soviet Communist Party interpretation of the detente policy).

If, like science fiction writers, we could use a "time machine" to go back ten or even five years the changes not only in science and technology but also in politics would seem absolutely improbable.

The war in Southeast Asia which poisoned the international atmosphere has ended. An agreement has been concluded on West Berlin which for decades was a timebomb in the heart of Europe. The Federal German Republic has settled its relations with its Eastern neighbors, ending an impasse which prolonged the Cold War.

In Soviet-American relations changes have taken place in a mere three years or so which until recently would have seemed unbelievable. Over 40 agreements have been signed, including the most difficult, one on strategic arms. The agreements have not yet put an end to the arms race but certainly prevent it from accelerating. In a word, Soviet-American relations have moved from explosive confrontation to fruitful negotiation.

Finally, the all - European conference in Helsinki last summer was the symbol of the new stage in international relations, the stage of detente. The signing by the top leaders of 33 European countries, the United States, and Canada of the Final Act was an unprecendented collective agreement between states with differing social systems.

Still Problems

Appreciating what has been achieved, our Party nonetheless perceives problems which must be tackled to make detente irreversible. Although in the West — in the United States in particular — public support for detente is growing, every advance meets with fierce counterattacks.

Proponents and opponents of detente clearly realize that a return to the policy of Cold War is impossible. However, as the danger of nuclear war recedes, certain Western quarters apparently have returned to a preoccupation with other matters. For some this means the old anti-communist games in which they indulged with enthusiasm during the Cold War years; for others, solving at the expense of detente the difficult problems between the Western powers; for still others, petty politicking — the hunt for financial and political support or simply for the votes in their own countries.

Just as it is impossible to be "a bit pregnant" it is impossible to make permanent a situation which would include "a bit of detente" and "a bit of Cold War," a bit of arms limitation and at the same time continuation of the arms race. This makes it all the more urgent to struggle for the consolidation and deepening of the positive changes which have recently taken place and to rebuff the attacks mounted against detente by its overt and covert enemies.

The main theme of these attacks is that the benefit of detente accrues only to the Soviet Union and other Socialist countries while the West is constantly a loser. For example, an attempt was made to interpret the setbacks suffered by U.S. policy in Southeast Asia and the difficulties which appeared on NATO's southern flank (Greece, Turkey and Portugal) as the "price of detente." The atmosphere became so tense that some American politicians feared that any resistance to demands of the militaristic quarters would be interpreted as a betrayal of the national interests of the U.S.

Absurd Debate

That was why the debate on military appropriations, perhaps the most absurd in recent years, ended so quickly. That was why the traditional question of reducing the American military presence in Europe was not raised in Congress. That was why a campaign was mounted before the Helsinki Conference to put the President of the U.S. in a position of almost having to apologize for signing the document which aims to strengthen the foundations of peace and international security.

All this despite the fact that very many people in the U.S. knew it was not detente but the policy of the Cold War that led to the aggression in Southeast Asia which ended in unavoidable defeat and to the difficulties for the U.S. and its allies. It was precisely this policy that compelled powers that spoke at length of devotion to freedom and democracy to support bloody dictators and undisguised fascists simply because they are anti-communists.

There are two different spheres of political life today. One is the sphere of social development which forces its way unrelentingly in any international conditions — whether it be detente, cold, or even shooting war. The other is the sphere on inter-state relations.

Line Drawn

A clearcut line drawn between thesee two spheres is one of the fundamental principles of the Leninist foreign policy of peaceful coexistence between states with different social systems. And if anyone is using different yardsticks in approaching this policy and making it an instrument of interference in the internal affairs of other countries it is not the Soviet Union, not the Communists, but the same Western quarters that are today attacking detente.

One aspect of this campaign is to belittle the significance of the Helsinki Conference. Thus the consolidation of postwar European frontiers is claimed to be a vast concession to the Soviet Union for which it must "repay" the West.

Actually, confirming the inviolability of frontiers is not only in the interest of the U.S.S.R. Attempts to alter frontiers have always led to wars, while intentions to do so have given rise to suspicion, tensions, and an arms race. Avoiding all this is in the vital interests not only of the Soviet Union but also of all other European powers.

It is likewise wrong that the Soviet Union "owes" something to someone for that commitment. For existing borders our people have paid in full, with twenty million lives of their sons and daughters; just as a dear price has been paid by other peoples.

The sponsors of the campaign against the Helsinki Conference on Security and Co-operation in Europe are eloquently exposed by the fact that the true content of the document it adopted has never been made known to the broad public in most of the Western countries.

In this connection the Financial Times of London justly wrote that socialist countries may legitimately resent even the way the West fulfilled the first obligation under the Final Act — to publish its full text (none of the big American or British newspapers has done so; in Great Britain publication of this document was confined to 3,500 copies in booklet form).

Provocation

The forms and intensity of the campaign underway strongly suggest that it is aimed at provoking the socialist countries to a sharp retaliatory campaign and thus at dealing a blow not only at what has been achieved in Helsinki but also at the processes of detente in general.

One important aspect of detente concerns the development of ties in culture, science and education, information, contacts among peoples, and the solution of various humanitarian questions including family ties, marriages of citizens of various states, etc. As we see it these are normal spheres of co-operation which will develop along with the deepening of detente and the growth of mutual confidence. This is in fact what is happening.

Moreover, in this field we have by far outstripped the West — in particular the U.S. — on many important questions. The U.S.S.R. translates incomparably more works by modern U.S. writers (probably dozens more) than the U.S. does in the case of Soviet writers. The same goes for films and theatrical productions.

On the question of studying foreign languages, the situation in the U.S.S.R. and the U.S. (as is the case with the majority of other Western countries) is simply incomparable, both in the number of students studying foreign languages and probably in the quality of instruction. As to scientists, it is very much easier for our U.S. counterparts to get an entry visa to the U.S.S.R. (for this purpose they have only to apply personally, at the worst, to the Intourist agency) than for us to go to the U.S. (according to regulations in force there it is necessary to have in every case an official invitation under which an inviting organization or a person gives a guarantee, so to speak, of "good behavior").

A Poseidon Missile on Its Way

In several spheres contacts are simply prohibited. For instance, if an official of a Soviet trade union goes to the U.S. in any capacity he gets his entry visa together with an unofficial warning that any attempt to establish contacts with U.S. trade unions will be regarded as a violation of the law (the All-Union Central Council of Trade Unions has accumulated quite a number of letters with such warnings from the U.S. Embassy in Moscow).

All this does not mean, of course, that we see a limit to what has been achieved in these spheres. The Soviet Union intends to continue to develop ties and contacts. We should merely like to stress that this is a reciprocal matter.

But it would seem that some people in the West would like to make the Helsinki understanding an instrument for interfering in the internal affairs of the Socialist countries and for undermining order and the entire social system — to achieve with the help of detente what was impossible to achieve either by force of arms or by pressure applied during the Cold War. But this is not the aim either of detente or the accord signed in Helsinki.

No Alternative

It is absurd to counterpose democracy to detente. All who hold the democratic ideals dear should advocate the relaxation of tension. On the other hand, genuine loyalty to these ideals requires above all concern over the fate of democracy in one's own country.

Our epoch offers no acceptable alternative to peaceful coexistence. This is not a catch phrase but a precise appraisal of the international situation characteristic of the nuclear age. Hence foreign policy offers no alternative to maintaining the course of detente.

Real danger of war still remains on Earth. It stems from the unsettled explosive problems that exist or may arise in the world; from the huge and steadily growing stocks of weapons of mass-destruction; from the increasingly realistic possibility of the spread of nuclear weapons over the planet; and finally from that of the Cold War which survives, breeding distrust and suspicion.

Global problems that are already facing the world will become even more acute in the future. These are problems of the lack of energy and other natural resourees, the problems of food, of the environment, of the rapid development of the newly-free countries. Lasting peace, detente, and large-scale international cooperation are likewise needed to solve them.

Fighting Inflation By Increasing Rates

By MARGARET PITON

OTAWA — Canadian Pacific Railways last week increased its passenger fares by 15 per cent.

Canadian National Railways has applied for a similar increase effective February 1 and will undoubtedly get it.

Some freight rates in the Atlantic provinces are headed up, too.

All this is in accord with, and in the case of freight rates as a result of, the government's anti-inflation program.

Consumers of rail services, whether passenger or freight, should apparently feel a glow of pride that by paying more they are contributing to the fight against inflation.

If this sounds rather confusing, it's because it is.

In his statement on government spending restraint last month, Treasury Board president Jean Chretien announced several cuts of various transport subsidies designed to save the government a total of $358.3 million from previously anticipated 1976 expenditure.

This includes $16 million to be saved by reducing freight rate subsidies in the Atlantic provinces, $10 million to be saved by reducing the level of trans-continental and other railway passenger services, and $332.3 million originally expected to be saved by reducing the direct government financing of the CNR. This latter amount has now been scaled down to about $205 million.

Theoretically the railways are subject to the anti-inflation guidelines like everybody else. But because their passenger services are money losing operations, they can apparently pass on any increased costs directly into increased fares.

CP, which is a money making corporation, will be subject to the 95 per cent net profit margin rule on its increased fares. The Canadian Transport Commission will monitor this, a spokesman said when the increase was allowed. In the case of CN, it is still unknown what kind of rule can be applied since the company as a whole is a money-loser.

A CTC spokesman emphasized that the recent passenger fare increases don't take into account any changes that may result from Treasury Board's cutbacks. Thus it appears passengers will face further increases or at least reduced service for the same money, which amounts to about the same thing.

The reduction of CN's direct government financing means that instead of getting a loan from the government, the company may have to borrow in the open market, undoubtedly at somewhat higher interest rates.

A Treasury Board official said one reason for this change, besides saving the government money, was to encourage the company to borrow abroad. Thus the company may be saddled with an exchange risk in addition to the higher interest rate. But it won't be competing with other companies in the Canadian market and thus putting additional pressure on interest rates here, the official noted.

What he did not say was that since many Canadian companies and governments are turning to the international debt markets, it may be competing with other Canadian entities there. This might in the long term also bid up Canadian interest rates . . . but then nothing in economics is simple.

What is clear is that the higher costs of private borrowing stand a good chance of being translated into higher costs to consumers eventually.

Asked why these reductions in government spending which result in higher prices are anti-inflationary, the official was somewhat at a loss for words. Finally he said it is partly because the high level of railway subsidies, particularly of Atlantic freight rates and transcontinental passenger services, entails considerable economic distortion.

That is, people are induced by the unrealistically low rates to use the subsidized form of transportaion in preference to other forms of transportation. Therefore, reducing the subsidy is a net economic benefit and thus anti-inflationary.

This argument might hold up if there were any forms of transportation which aren't to one degree or another subsidized — or even if it could be proved that railways are more heavily subsidized than other modes of transportation.

But nobody seems willing to make this argument.

An official at the Department of Transport said he didn't think the individual cuts in government expenditure, such as those for railways, were themselves meant to be anti-inflationary — that the cuts were more of a public relations gesture than anything else, designed to show the government too was restraining itself.

Certain kinds of government spending cuts, for example the freezing of family allowance payments, are net savings because nobody else is going to be paying out the money the government isn't paying. But with transport cuts, consumers are going to be paying a good part of the "savings."

There may be arguments based on equity for consumers of a service to pay more of its total cost. But it seems pretty difficult to justify in terms of anti-inflationary policy.

THE NATION

A year from now, the French government has announced, the word "hot dog" will be verboten in advertisements, work contracts and other public documents under government control.

According to Reuters, a member of the National Assembly, Pierre Bas, has denounced the American slang term for that bland sausage, along with "after-shave" and similar linguistic shortcuts, as causing "visible degradation" in the language of Moliere and de Gaulle.

After January 4, 1977, no foreign expression of any sort is to be employed when a French equivalent is available. (There will not, one presumes, be an equivalent for "O.K.")

In an era of rampant nationalism, this import ban is not of the first importance, and the courteous French have given us fair warning. However, it is late in the day for a nation that dons its "smokings" to dine on "biftecks" to get shirty about the modest frankfurter, and a show of proper indignation is perhaps incumbent on us.

If they won't have our "after-shave," we can probably get along without their "coup d'etat." Speaking of which, international contests to determine whose linguistic felicities shall prevail would be preferable to cod wars in the sub-Arctic waters and post-colonial mischief in newborn states.

Even Remote Himalayas Not Immune to Littering

By EUGENE SOCHOR
Unesco Features

PARIS — Man's quest to reach the highest summits is turning the mountain trails of the Himalayas into garbage dumps.

This was the gist of a report presented to a 10-day meeting on Unesco's Man and the Biosphere Program at Unesco headquarters here. In the report, Dr. Kamal K. Shrestha of Tribhuvan University's Institute of Science, said that the trekkers and mountaineers who come in their thousands to view the majestic peaks of the Himalayas have earned an unsavoury reputation for the cans, paper, bottles and assorted rubbish they leave behind.

In fact he termed one of the most popular routes — a 200-kilometre stretch to the Sherpa town of Namche Bazar — "a garbage trail". In the Solokhumbu area, the whole trail to the 5,350-metre high Everest Base Camp, is badly polluted by litter and conditions are getting worse every year, he said.

The damage is compounded by the fact that trekkers use the same sites time and time again to install their tents and kitchens. As Dr. Shrestha observed:

"If the present trend continues unabated, the degradation of the mountain environment may cause irreversible damage to the mountain ecosystem of Nepal, with negative consequences for the development of tourism in this country."

Tourism in fact has been climbing steadily since visitors began flocking to this landlocked mountain kingdom in the 1960s. Tourism is now Nepal's biggest source of foreign exchange. From barely 6,000 in 1962, the number of tourists rose to more than 70,000 in 1974 and 100,000 are expected by the end of 1975.

Interestingly enough, trekkers and mountaineers make up only 13 per cent of all tourists, though the country offers a choice of 240 peaks to scale. All the same, they numbered 14,649 in 1974, four times as many as in 1970.

Dr. Shrestha also called attention to the serious deforestation and diminishing supply of firewood along the trails. He estimated that about 800 tons of wood were used for camp fires and cooking in 1974. To this should be added several hundred tons used by mountaineering expeditions and the firewood burnt by pilgrims.

Pastures are also being destroyed by camping sites, and this destruction of the scant vegetation in Nepal's mountain regions has led to frequent landslides and rockfalls.

What can be done to stem further pollution? First, of course, trekkers must become more environment conscious. The British Mountaineering Expedition to Sagarmatha (Mt. Everest), now in Nepal, has taken a step in that direction by carrying only a minimum load and taking along all the necessary fuel.

Research will also be needed into the impact of man's activities on the ecosystem. Among suggested case studies under the Unesco-MAB Program is one of the Langtang, a small valley which has been subjected to heavy tourism and mountaineering and is now a national park.

Nepal in fact is establishing as models for environmental protection four national parks and five wildlife reserves. Some of these may be included in the international network of biosphere reserves being set up under Unesco auspices.

Our Income Tax System Has Gone Crazy: Expert

By AL FORREST
Times Business Editor

The federal government should junk its income tax system and start all over again with something less complicated, says Otto Killy, tax committee chairman for the B.C. Institute of Chartered Accountants.

"It has become just a little bit crazy when individuals and small businessmen have to go to accountants to work out their taxes.

"It may seem strange for an accountant to suggest that the tax system should be made less complicated, but we are genuinely sympathetic. Besides, we don't need the extra business the federal government is creating for us, because we are snowed under as it is," Killy said.

"It is so bad that accountants have to work Saturdays and even Sundays all year-around now and it is particularly bad at this time of year."

The solution, he says, is to throw out the present regulations and start again with a new Royal Commission on Taxation.

"We can not repair the old car. If you fix one part, it creates a problem someplace else. We need a totally new vehicle."

He said the regulations have become so complicated that accountants can no longer just specialize in taxes, they must zero in on some single phase of taxation. The anti-inflation board regulations have added to the load for accountants, when they were already overworked.

As an example, one Vancouver company must prepare an eight-page report on each of 60 employee groups in its company within 30 days.

"With that sort of workload they have to employ more people just because of government regulations."

Small businessmen are suffering the most by the taxation regulations, Killy said.

"They can not afford to make a move without checking the tax implications and they must hire someone to do the job. They can not afford it but they also can not afford to make a mistake and end up owing the government a great deal of money."

He said the income tax return should be simplified so individuals and small companies can work it out themselves without having to hire accountants or go to tax shops.

"It is a little different for large corporations. They have the staff to handle these matters.

"The small businessman and wage earners must think our present taxation system is just a little bit crazy."

A new tax system should be simple and straightforward.

Accountants favor cutting the number of tax brackets in half by widening the income classes and by eliminating frills like company write-offs.

The government should reduce the general tax rate if it wishes to offer incentives instead of adding complications like write-offs.

The accountants also say the succession duties (in some provinces) overlap, in their effect, with income and capital gains taxes. The succession duties should be discarded.

The tax on business capital in Ontario, Quebec and B.C. also is a form of overlapping taxation. The institute suggests the tax be dropped because income taxes are a more efficient form of collecting revenues from companies.

TAX TIPS: '76

The following tax tips are provided by Revenue Canada to assist those who are beginning to work on their returns.

More detailed information can be obtained by contacting the Victoria office of Revenue Canada at 1415 Vancouver Street, 386-2176.

Tax tips will be printed in the Times at intervals during the next eight weeks.

Q. The Family Allowance cheques received for our children are made out to my wife. Does this mean she must report the payments as income?

A. Not necessarily. The law requires that the individual who claims a personal exemption on behalf of a child for whom the payments are received must report the payments as income. If neither parent claims an exemption, the person to whom the cheques are made out must report the income. For further information, refer to Item 7 of the Income Tax Guide provided with your income tax return.

Q. My employer pays me an allowance to cover my board and room while I am working at distant work sites away from my ordinary place of residence where I support my wife and family. Previously, I was told that this had to be included in income for income tax purposes because I was not a construction worker. I understand that this no longer applies. Is this correct?

A. Yes. This exempting provision now applies to all workers employed at a distant work site providing they meet the other necessary conditions.

Q. I received a lump sum upon retirement. I do not want to pay tax on it as this time but would like to invest it so as to spread the tax over a number of years. Is there some way that this can be done?

A. Yes. A person can use such amounts to purchase an income averaging annuity from a licensed or otherwise authorized person. The annuity may be for life, or a guaranteed term not exceeding 15 years and not extending beyond the annuitant's 85th birthday.

Q. What is the general rule as far as capital gains or losses are concerned?

A. The general rule is that one-half of capital gains are included in income and taxed at a person's normal rate of tax. When dealing with capital losses, one-half of such losses may be deducted against one-half of capital gains. When losses exceed gains, subtract one-half of your gains from one-half of your losses and deduct up to $1000 of the difference.

Q. My wife has interest from bonds that I purchased for her in her name. Is this interest considered to be my wife's income?

A. The interest is your income because you purchased the bonds from your funds. The same rule would apply to dividends on shares, interest on savings accounts and so on. It is the person who had the money to invest who must report the income earned.

Q. My wife and I are both retired. She receives the Old Age Security Pension. When I am making out my income tax return and claiming my wife, must I include the Old Age Security Pension as part of her income?

A. Yes. The Old Age Security Pension as well as any supplement received are her income and must be taken into account in determining the amount, if any, of your married exemption.

Q. My husband and I separated in 1975 and I obtained custody of our child on whose behalf both of us will be claiming a personal exemption for that year. Which of us must report allowance payments as income?

A. Each of you must report a portion of total payments received in the year. To determine your share, multiply the amount of your exemption for the child by the total of payments received in the year and divide the product by the total of personal exemptions claimed for the child by you and your husband. The balance must be reported by your husband.

Q. I live in a trailer. Can this be classed as a principal residence?

A. Yes. Any type of structure that you own and ordinarily inhabit may qualify as a principal residence.

Q. Last year a relative died and in his will left me several thousand dollars. Is this money I inherited taxable as income?

A. No. Money inherited is not subject to income tax. However, if there were investments involved, any investment income received or credited after you inherited the money would be taxable as part of your income.

Q. I understand there are special rules regarding the acquisition and sale of certain works of art. Could you explain these rules briefly?

A. Yes. Works of art such as prints, etchings, drawings, paintings and sculpture, jewellery, rare folios, manuscripts and books, stamps and coins are referred to as listed personal property. Gains on the disposition of these assets when sold for more than $1,000 are subject to the capital gains provision. Losses are subject to a special calculation. They may be deducted only from gains made from the sale of this type of property.

Q. What happens if I sell my home at a price greater than it cost me? Am I going to be taxed on any profit or gain that I make?

A. Ordinarily no. If a taxpayer uses his home only as his principal residence, that home together with up to an acre of surrounding land, if the land contributes to the use and enjoyment of the home, will be exempt from capital gains tax.

Q. What do you mean by the term principal residence?

A. A principal residence will generally be considered as any type of structure owned by the taxpayer and ordinarily inhabited by him. This could include a mobile home, houseboat, or a condominium.

Q. My wife claims personal exemptions for two of our children and I claim the other two. Who must report Family Allowance payments?

A. Both of you — each parent must report the amount of Family Allowance received for the children which he or she has claimed as dependants. For additional details, refer to Item 7 of your 1975 Tax Guide provided with your income tax return.

SIGN BAN VETOED

City aldermen aren't in favor of banning election signs or regulating their size, shape and location.

But to remove any possible ambiguities and problems in administering the city's sign bylaw, the legal and legislative committee recommended Thursday that the bylaw be amended to expressly permit election signs.

The only stipulations would be that they are located on private property and removed within a "reasonable" time after the election, say 48 hours.

Following complaints to City Hall about offending signs after the recent provincial election, city solicitor Jakob de Villiers reported that the city had the power to prohibit all such signs except those used for federal elections.

In any case, it could regulate the use of any type of election sign, and order its immediate removal after the election.

But Mayor Mike Young commented that it would be difficult to regulate the use of "transitory" signs, and besides, it was not a serious problem.

No Homeowner Fines

Owners of single-family homes won't be included in Victoria's proposal to sue taxpayers who are $1,000 or more in arrears with their property tax payments, Mayor Mike Young said Thursday.

When the recommendation to council was endorsed by the legal and legislative committee, Young said it's not the city's intention to harass homeowners but to crack down on corporations which are "using the tax rolls for financing purposes."

Such firms, aldermen were told, now find it to their advantage to withhold tax payments for two or more years and pay the modest penalties, because they regard it as a means of obtaining relatively low-cost financing.

At the end of 1975 the total of unpaid taxes was about $1 million, with 22 firms in the apartment and hotel field accounting for more than half the total.

Young said the delinquent payers are creating serious budgetting problems for the city.

A report to the committee from city solicitor Jakob de Villiers said initiating legal proceedings against tardy taxpayers would be a much quicker means of recovering the money than the cumbersome tax sale procedure which takes more than three years to complete.

He said the practical effect of making $1,000 the minimum level for prosecution would ensure that the vast majority of homeowners are excluded from the threat of legal action.

"To owe more than $1,000 in property taxes after deduction of the homeowner grant, you are looking at a house worth in excess of $150,000, and one assumes the owners of such a house can afford to pay their taxes."

As for owners of more modest properties, Young said, "they will have to pay their taxes but we are not going to sue them (if they don't)."

Ald. Ron McKenzie suggested the city ask the municipal affairs department to change the penalties which municipalities are now permitted to charge for delinquent taxes — 10 per cent for the first year and eight per cent for the second.

He said he felt the interest should be at least one and half per cent higher than the prime lending rate.

Four Executed

CAIRO (Reuter)—Four Sudanese officers and a corporal were executed by firing squad in Khartoum today after being convicted of leading last September's abortive military coup against President Jaafar Nimeiry, the official Egyptian Middle East news agency said.

Civil Servants in Contract Limbo

By LINDA HUGHES
Times Staff

About 300 senior civil servants have still not negotiated their first salary contracts with the provincial government.

In nearly three years they have received only one cost-of-living increase.

Prior to announcement of wage and price controls last fall, four out of 12 components within the B.C. Government Professional Employees' Association completed the first round of wage contracts under the bargaining system established in 1973.

The Times has learned that retroactive wage increases included in those contracts average nearly 23 per cent over 27 months plus cost-of-living provisions.

The four components cover about 700 members of the union and the 300 members of the other eight components are still without settlements.

First wage contracts with the B.C. Government Employees Union, covering 35,000 regular civil servants, were settled more than a year ago and the union is already working on its second round of talks.

But the professionals took much longer to settle their master contract covering working conditions and were foiled first by the introduction of the federal wage guidelines and then by the change of government.

PEA spokesmen are careful to say they understand the government's problems but talks have been so protracted some members are getting impatient.

The Social Credit government has said it will bring in its own guidelines, probably in early February, and until those are known it is useless to continue bargaining.

The BCGEU has also broken off talks, saying it would be a "charade" to continue bargaining when the retroactive guidelines are still not known.

The four professional components which settled, covering engineers, foresters, physiotherapists and pharmacists, have contracts extending from Oct. 1, 1974, to Dec. 31, 1976, with retroactive increases effective October, 1974, and July, 1975.

Government employees had wage increases effective April, 1973, and then in April, 1974, a cost-of-living hike of 10.4 per cent was given across the board. Since then, the 300 professionals still without contracts have not had any wage increases.

Union officials wonder if the other components will get increases equal to the four that have settled since they exceed federal guidelines.

Two of the remaining components have ratified agreements but the government has not approved them subject to the guidelines.

Provincial Secretary Grace McCarthy said the government is aware of the problems in delaying contract settlements but until guidelines are established talks cannot realistically proceed.

Socreds Hire Two Former NDP Planners

Two former officers of the now defunct planning advisory to the NDP cabinet have received positions with the Social Credit government.

Donald Axford and Harvey Lazar were appointed to the new inter-government relations branch of the provincial government.

Lazar, who is on loan from the federal government, will act as special consultant, and Axford will be given senior research projects.

Director of the planning advisory, Marc Elieson, resigned from his post shortly after the NDP was defeated and the office was disbanded.

Also appointed Thursday was water branch director of services Geoffrey Simmons who takes over as assistant deputy minister of environment.

Cabinet appointed five people to the B.C. Marketing Board, which supervises operations of all commodity marketing boards and commissions in the province.

George Okulitch, appointed acting chairman by the NDP in July, 1975, will become permanent chairman. He is the former general manager of Fraser Valley Milk Producers Association.

Falkland farmer Russell Freeze is vice-chairman and the other three appointees are Surrey home-maker Margaret McDonald; Fraser Valley farmer George Spetifore; and retired Peace River farmer Martin Hunter.

B.C. TO GET $6.5M FROM OIL, GAS

Canadian Press

British Columbia will receive $6.5 million from the latest competitive bidding for oil and gas rights, Mines Minister Tom Waterland said Thursday.

He said bids were accepted on all 10 permit parcels offered, covering about 195,000 acres. The highest price per acre was $21.67 offered by Seaton-Jordan and Associates Ltd. for two parcels northwest of Fort St. John.

The average price per acre was $10.29 and the bids totalled about $3 million.

Eight of 10 drilling reservations were disposed of for $875,000 for 65,319 acres. The highest bid was $53.26 an acre by Westcoast Petroleum Ltd. and Numac Oil and Gas Ltd. for a parcel 88 miles northwest of Fort St. John.

Bids totalled $2.5 million for 42 of 58 lease parcels covering 21,238 acres that were offered. The highest price was $401.15 an acre bid by Quintana Properties and Hudson's Bay Oil and Gas for a lease near Fort Nelson.

Alternative Vote Studied for B.C.

A royal commission will be appointed in the future to study all facets of electoral reform including the possibility of returning to the transferable ballot.

Premier Bennett said Thursday the commission will be appointed in time to bring down its recommendations for legislation in advance of the next provincial election.

The former NDP government also promised electoral reform but the Dec. 11 election was called before any changes were brought in.

Bennett said the new commission would study the idea of permanent voters lists; an on-going redistribution committee; and changes to all electoral procedures.

Earlier this week, Liberal leader Gordon Gibson repeated his long-standing call for the transferable ballot, which would see voters make second and third choices on their ballots.

If a candidate does not receive 50 per cent plus one vote, the candidate with the least number of votes is dropped and his ballots are re-examined and given to the second choice.

The system, usually used to elect political party presidents, was used in 1952 and 1953 when the Socreds were first elected.

Last Rites Held For Jager Judge

Funeral services were held at McCall's chapel Monday for Jager Judge, well known dairy cattle breeder and exhibitor, who died Friday at the age of 71.

He operated a large dairy farm at 1703 Burnside and was one of the first Canadian Sikhs to go into cattle breeding. He started from scratch in 1927 and became a leading Holstein breeder in the province.

Saanichton Fair honored him in 1959 by awarding him the premier breeder and premier exhibitor pennants for having the best Holstein exhibition herd on Vancouver Island.

Apart from his farm, he helped start three farms on Vancouver Island for his sons.

Born in Punjab, Indian, he immigrated to Canada when he was 18. He was a past president of the Sikh Temple and was a member of the Fresian and Holstein Association of Canada.

He is survived by three sons, Bill, Kalla and Bishan Hudge, all dairy farmers; four daughters, Mrs. Jagander Sanga, Regander Judge, Gorbanti Dalip, and Preatow Bains; and 18 grandchildren.

Ottawa Pay Curbs Hamper McKee

VANCOUVER (CP) — Clive McKee, the industrial inquiry commissioner attempting to reach a settlement in the Vancouver supermarket dispute, said Thursday that the federal government's anti-inflation legislation is making negotiations extremely complex.

McKee said he is not bound by the federal wage and price controls but they are complicating settlement proposals.

He declined to speculate on how the federal controls might effect the dispute, saying only that he has scheduled a meeting with all parties for next Monday. He said he hopes to submit his non-binding recommendations to Labor Minister Allan Williams on or before Feb. 6.

About 125 supermarkets were closed down last summer after bakers, meatcutters and clerks rejected what the industry said amounted to an offer of a 30-per-cent increase in wage and fringe benefits in a one-year contract. Federal controls limit wage increases to between eight and 12 per cent a year.

The increase would have had clerks earning $7.25 an hour, meatcutters $7.[illegible] and bakers $8.14 or $1.30 an hour more than under the previous contract.

A SHINING EXAMPLE . . .

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Patrons of a downtown shoeshine parlor have complained to law enforcement authorities that all they received were shoe shines.

Some have paid up to $100 for a shoe shine.

A spokesman in the city attorney's office called it a classic con game.

He said the parlor employs young women wearing see-through shorts who promise customers "a really terrific shoeshine" for their $100.

He said the customers expect more but aren't getting it. He said the customers are taken behind curtains and the shoeshine girls sit on the customers laps and the patrons' shoes are shined.

The spokesman said undercover officers have spent several hundred dollars in the establishment and received only shiny shoes.

He said he considered fraud charges but has been unable to show the patrons ever were offered anything other than shoeshines.

He said it also would be hard to prosecute a business for not providing illegal sex acts.

In an effort to put an end to such establishments, the city commission Thursday passed an ordinance making it unlawful for shoeshine parlors to have closed-off areas.

The ordinance also makes it unlawful for employees to circulate among patrons except to shine shoes and unlawful for them to sit on patrons' lap legs or body.

Caretaker Gov't Urged

OTTAWA (CP) — What the country needs, says unofficial Progressive Conservative leadership candidate John Franklin, is a caretaker government led by former prime minister John Diefenbaker.

What's more, he told an all-candidates meeting attended Thursday by a handful of those in the leadership race, Prime Minister Trudeau's Latin American trip beginning today has given MPs a chance to bring his idea about.

The 68-year-old Montreal engineer suggested MPs oust the prime minister with a non-confidence vote when Parliament resumes Monday, then call on Diefenbaker to take over as Head of a caretaker government.

Standard 10-minute campaign speeches by the four official candidates at the meeting, though less novel, also concentrated on the subject of replacing Turdeau as prime minister.

All four, MPs Jack Horner, Pat Nowlan and John Fraser and Montreal lawyer Brian Mulroney, said they were up to the job.

Horner (Crowfoot) opened the meeting with his standard attack, describing Trudeau as "a national despressant," a man who "wants to dissect and depress the Canadian economy."

Later, Nowlan (Annapolis Valley) said Trudeau was suffering from mental and physical indigestion after "having eaten himself" on the subject of wage and price controls.

Mulroney said the next Conservative leader must be capable not only of maintaining and building support in the nine predominately English-speaking provinces, but be able to make inroads in Quebec, home of seven million French-speaking Canadians.

Fraser (Vancouver South) took the toughest line of those present, urging delegates to take the leadership campaign seriously in order to rid the party of the image that it is full of "small, pompous, opinionated little men."

N.Y. Left Without A Brewery

NEW YORK (Reuter) — If New Yorkers want to cry in their beer in the future it will have to be with a non-New York brew.

The last New York brewery went down the drain Thursday.

The only other one closed last week.

And this is a city where Irish and German immigrants built dozens and whose water was once priased for the fine way it mixed with malt and hops.

The F. and M. Schaefer Brewing Co., which once made enough money out of its Brooklyn plant to expand across the eastern U.S., said Thursday it is closing because of rising costs.

This was the same reason given by the Rheingold Brewery last week for shutting its Brooklyn plant.

Both companies will continue to sell beer here, but it will be made somewhere else.

"Raise a glass, boys; sing a sad adieu to Schaeffer," The Daily News said in an early edition headline.

"It's a tragedy," said Mayor Abraham Beame.

Had to Boost Oil, Gillespie Tells U.S.

PITTSBURGH (CP) — Energy Minister Alastair Gillespie assured U.S. businessmen Thursday that the government was forced to raise the price and to cut the volumes of its oil exports.

Those moves, which have drawn bitter comments from some United States politicians, resulted from sharp drops in domestic oil supplies and rising prices for world oil, the minister said.

"Circumstances forced that," Gillespie told an audience of 1,600 business executives at a black-tie dinner. "It was necessity, not opportunism."

The main theme of the speech dwelled on energy problems faced at home in an effort to ease U.S. fears that Canada is acting unfairly by charging world prices for its oil and reducing exports.

The minister said after receiving a standing ovation at the dinner that many of the businessmen had not known how low domestic oil reserves had dropped.

"Through this initial hectic period and in spite of reports you may have heard, Canada has not taken advantage of you from our position as an oil and gas producer," he said in his speech.

"We've also had to swallow some pretty cheerless facts."

While some in the U.S. look to Canada as a country abounding in natural resources, the country faces a growing dependence on oil imports as well as possible natural gas shortages by the end of the decade.

He told the businessmen that the north and the East Coast offshore hold a potential for major new supplies, but little is expected from those areas before the early to mid-1980s.

Grain Elevator Blast Fatal

ZILWAUKEE, Mich. (AP) — Rescue workers located fourth and fifth bodies today in the wake of an explosion Thursday that ripped through a 225-foot grain storage elevator.

The blast left 10 others injured and one man remained missing. Officials believe he is dead and buried under a section of one of the silo's reinforced concrete walls which collapsed in the explosion.

The cause of the blast at the elevator, operated by Farm Bureau Services, was not known.

N-Power Growth Dips in U.S.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Construction difficulties, financing and licensing problems, and an unexpected decline in the demand for electricity combined to slow U.S. nuclear power growth sharply in 1975.

Government statistics released Thursday showed the nation's power companies announced plans for only 11 new reactors last year — down 63 per cent from the 30 announced in 1974.

In addition, the new figures showed, utilities cancelled previously announced orders or plans for 13 reactors and delayed commercial operation dates for 72 other plants.

"Utilities indicate these actions resulted from lower than anticipated (electric) load growth and from problems related to construction, financing and regulatory procedures on local and federal levels," said the Energy Research and Development Administration (ERDA).

The United States now has 238 power reactors operable, under construction or planned, ERDA said. It said those reactors will be able to generate a total 236,728 megawatts of electricity.

BEFORE THE JUDGE

Two men who walked away from the Jordan River detention camp last Dec. 27 appeared in Victoria provincial court Thursday, pleaded guilty to being unlawfully at large and were returned to jail, this time for 30 days.

Judge Blake Allan said Barry Robert Bremner, 20, and William Raymond Cook, 19, must serve that sentence before completing the balance of the sentences they were already serving at the time they escaped.

Bremner had received a six-month prison term last July 16 in Nanaimo for breach of probation and being unlawfully at large; and a further six-month term on Aug. 8 in Campbell River for being unlawfully at large from Snowden camp.

Cook was serving time for convictions in Campbell River of theft, breaking and entering and being unlawfully at large.

Prosecutor Scott Marshall said the pair was noticed missing at 10:50 p.m. Dec. 27 and presumed they had "escaped by walking away." They were arrested in Duncan three days later as police were investigating an attempted break-in at a drug store.

Marshall read out Bremner's record which included convictions for escape, breaking and entering, possession of a narcotic and theft. He also cited Cook's record which included three convictions for breaking and entering, one for theft under $200 and one for being unlawfully at large.

Defence counsel Bill McElmoyle reminded Allan that a third inmate who fled with the two accused, Leslie James Green had pleaded guilty Jan. 3 and received a 30-day jail sentence.

McElmoyle said that "the pressure of the holiday season contributed to their decision to walk out of camp."

James Reid, 138 Robertson, wanted to plead guilty to common assault and wilful damage but the judge wouldn't let him.

The charges stemmed from an incident Nov. 30 when Reid was involved in an altercation with Victor Mercier, 2531 Dowler Place.

Police said Reid tried to force his way into Mercier's home, struck him on the arm with a baseball bat and then returned to his car, got an axe handle and started banging it on Mercier's front door causing about $30 damage.

When Judge Allan asked Reid if he had anything to say about the charges, he seemed loath at first to speak. But then the words came flooding out.

He said he had been looking for his 15-year-old daughter whom he felt had been abducted from a high school dance. He said he went to Victoria police but they refused to take action.

He denied having a baseball bat.

"It was the other way around."

He said he wanted to plead guilty "because this has caused enough embarrassment."

He claimed he never tried to enter Mercier's residence but had seen a light in an upstairs room, and wondered if she was there. Mercier refused him a look.

Reid said Mercier then gave him a karate kick, knocking him off the porch. He admitted he went to his car and got a pick handle and started using it on the door when Mercier, armed with a broom, reappeared and broke it over his shoulder.

"I'm not going to accept a guilty plea," Allan said, remanding the case to Jan. 30 to set a date for trial.

Reid said that since the incident he has received threatening phone calls.

He said he intended to keep quiet but then felt "the press should know I've been let down badly by the Victoria police department."

A Pleasant Olympic Report

MONTREAL (CP) — With less than six months left before the Summer Games open here, an encouraging progress report on construction of the 72,000-seat Olympic stadium and the swimming pools under the stadium's mast was released this week by the Olympics installations board.

As well, there were indications from board officials that key construction trouble spots were under control.

Board spokesman Jacques Desormeaux said in an interview construction of the important "technical ring" 165 feet above the floor of the Olympic stadium was proceeding well and should be completed by the end of the month or the first week of February.

The ring will enclose wiring for lighting and communications systems around the top inner edge of the doughnut-shaped stadium.

Sections of the ring are being put into place at an average rate of one and one-half per day, Mr. Desormeaux said, and 15 of the 34 main sections that make up the ring have been installed.

"Putting the sections into place is not difficult, but it takes a very long time," Mr. Desormeaux said.

"The sections are huge and they must be put into place carefully," he said. "Each section is large enough for 30 men to work in it standing up."

Engineers said earlier one of the ring sections had been improperly installed when it was lifted by cranes to its place high at the summit of the stadium. There was a six-inch gap between two sections after they were put in place, but board engineers said the problem was not a serious one.

Elliptical in form, the main stadium has 34 massive reinforced-concrete cantilevered sections or consoles, each resting on a single pillar. These sections support the seats and the curving beams designed to support the roof covering the seats.

The Quebec government estimated the cost of the stadium, adjoining swimming hall and cycling velodrome at $564 million when it took over responsibility for construction from the City of Montreal in November.

There has been speculation there may not be enough time to complete the swimming area, but the report said the pace of work there will be accelerated. More than one-third of the metal supports holding up the roof of the swimming area have been removed, it said.

As well, water has already been put into the scuba-diving pool to check for leaks. The concrete form for the pool has been poured and the tiles remain to be installed.

The report also said one of the two giant scoreboards which are to be installed at each end of the stadium is 70 per cent completed.

The Ring Progresses

This is a ground-level view of the main Olympic Stadium showing the "technical ring" which links the Stadium laterally (bottom). Indications are that key construction trouble spots are under control. (See story.)

The Casino: Instant Money for the Taking

Everybody keeps wondering how Mayor Jean Drapeau of Montreal is going to finance the 1976 Olympics and surmising that the Canadian people will end up with a major portion of the bill. Well, maybe so, but there's another rumble from out of the east that may prove interesting; and it's got a tie-in with the Olympics; or will have, if it ever gets off the ground.

It concerns the latest rage and the latest hit on the gambling circuit — the Casino. And in Quebec, rumors persist that the government will establish a casino at a fashionable St. Lawrence River resort hotel, 80 miles north-east of Quebec City. The province recently purchased the hotel for a reported $950,000. and in Track Talk, a publication of the National Association of Canadian Race Tracks Inc., there is the report that speculation is rife that Drapeau wants to establish casinos on the unused portions of the Expo '67 site, with the profits directed toward the Olympic deficit.

This has been denied by Drapeau but the rumors still are prevalent that something is about to happen in the field of casinos. Quebec premier Bourassa recently said he was not too fond of those kind of activities (legalized gambling) but "if people are going elsewhere to play in casinos then I suppose we have to decide . . ." Bourassa says he doubts a casino would produce substantial revenues for the province. But Gerry Snyder, head of the Olympic Games revenue department, is confident a casino would pay big dividends. "All we know is that it will make money," is his guarded comment as reported in Track Talk.

How much money? That isn't known, of course, but what is, is that in Edmonton, where casinos operate freely during the Klondike Days celebration period, the Silver Slipper casino on the exhibition grounds showed a whopping profit of $364,000 in 1975. The operators of the casino, however, were concerned that the profits weren't higher because of competition from the larger Kinsmen Casino which was located away from the Exhibition grounds. It was felt that the $50 players were by-passing the Silver Slipper and the gaze of curious onlookers in favor of the Kinsmen operation.

In Nova Scotia the government has turned thumbs down on legalized casinos and tourist officials in the province are not pleased. Jack Conrad, a director of the Halifax Visitors and Convention Bureau called the move "a step backward". He said government-controlled casinos would generate "an incredible amount of revenue for the province and would relieve taxpayers of a great deal of the financial burden now upon them."

So there it is — an instant money maker and perhaps soon in Quebec . . . and Montreal. Whynot? Drapeau needs all the help (and money) he can get. And so does Bourassa.

★ ★ ★

And also, on the Olympic theme, the Montreal papers certainly aren't playing down the idea that the games could be cancelled. Just as recently as last week there was an eight-column banner headline in the Gazette which read: "Olympics are Facing Concellation". And the lead paragraph goes on to state: "The people most intimately involved with the Olympic Stadium situation are resigned to thinking the unthinkable today — the serious possibility of a forced cancellation for next summer's Olympics."

Cracks have appeared in the giant ribs of the stadium because faulty design allowed water to accumulate and freeze in the precast structures, it has been admitted.

However, having gone this far, it seems safe to assume that the games will likely go on even if the track and field part of the program may have to be moved if the stadium isn't ready.

And that is a definite possibility. Otherwise, many of the events could be staged, or, as an IOC delegate was reported as saying: "Let's face it, 19 of the 21 sports can be accommodated, or will be accommodated,b y the July 17 opening date of the Games."

But hang tight, all ye ticket holders. The day of final decision is coming. The Olympic Installations Board is scheduled to go before the International Olympic Committee in Innsbruck, Austria, before the end of the month. And that is when the final decision is to be made.

★ ★ ★

And I suppose everyone has noticed that another male bastion has fallen. Toronto police recently arrested two bookies who didn't wear fedoras and didn't chomp on stogies. Rather, they wore dresses and earrings. The two ladies allegedly had 70 clients, and were handling a cool $10,000 a day.

HERB CONFIRMED AS OLYMPIC COACH

CALGARY — Appointment of Victorian John Herb as coach of the Canadian national gymnastics team was confirmed here today by the Canadian Gymnastic Federation.

Herb's appointment was announced earlier in the Times.

An immigrant who recently received his Canadian citizenship, Herb was a member of the Hungarian national team from 1950 to 1956 and became a head coach in 1960.

Since arriving in Canada he has coached in West Vancouver, Kamloops and Victoria and has held major clinics in Edmonton, Calgary, Lethbridge, Winnipeg, Seattle, Portland and Oregon.

He also coached the Canadian men's team at the Commonwealth Games in New Zealand in 1973.

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (AP)—The weather was out of character Thrsday for the opening day of the Bing Crosby National Pro-Am golf tournament.

But except for Jack Nicklaus, most of the top golfers in the tournament were playing as though the weather was as sloppy as ever.

Nicklaus got away with a 67, but Johnny Miller had 74 with a lost ball, Billy Casper 75, Tom Weiskopf and defending champion Gene Littler 76, Hale Irwin 77 and Doug Sanders and Gay Brewer 79.

The rain, wind, cold, sleet, mud, ocean spray, fog and occasional snow that usually plagues the tournament was missing this year.

Instead, the spectacular beauty of the Monterey Peninsula was resplendent in brilliant sunshine and warm temperatures. The fairways were dry and the greens fast. Playing conditions were near perfect.

The pleasant weather produced scores that were among the highest on the tour in years—in Thursday's first round of the unique, $185,000 event that is played over three golf courses.

There were 29 scores of 80 or higher. Nicklaus and a handful of others were exceptions.

Nicklaus, using a new set of clubs in competition for the first time, shot a five-under-par 67 that tied him for the lead with Mike Morley, still looking for his first title in seven years of tour competition.

Nicklaus, who opened his season with only the third set of clubs he's used as a pro, and Morley had little difficulty. George Johnson was one stroke back of them with at 68. Nicklaus played Cypress

Sheila Chalmers led Tomahawks to victory with 15 points while Sharon Doherty set the pace for Dockettes, who share the runner-up spot with Belmont, by sinking 10 points.

Thea Gibson scored all of her 12 points in the second half to lead an Oak Bay rally to break a 19-19 half time deadlock. Sue Taylor also scored 12 points for Bays while Pam Kozak topped Spectrum shooters with 15.

In the lone Greater Victoria Boys' League game, Dave Baileys scored with four seconds remaining to give Dunsmuir Demons a 60-58 decision over host Victoria Totems.

Rick Jeffery set the overall Dunsmuir scoring pace with 24 points while Baileys added 14. The Demons, who led by 14 points once during the encounter, were playing without leading-scorer Bryan Grant, who is ill with the flu. Brothers Forrest and Carl Partington each had 10 points for Victoria.

Night to Remember For NHL Fill-Ins

By The Canadian Press

As long as players like Orest Kindrachuk and Doug Gibson are waiting in the Wings, Philadelphia Flyers and Boston Bruins can wink at injuries.

Kindrachuk filled in for captain Bobby Clarke on Thursday night and collected four assists as the Flyers skated to an easy 7-2 win over Atlanta Flames in a National Hockey League game.

Gibson took over for Gregg Sheppard, the Bruins top centre, and assisted on three goals in an important 5-3 win over Buffalo Sabres.

The Potvin family had its biggest night of the season for New York Islanders.

Jean scored three goals and Denis had his second four-point night in a row as the Islanders rolled over Detroit Red Wings 8-1.

In Thursday' other NHL games, Montreal Canadiens edged Pittsburgh Penguins 4-3 and Los Angeles Kings topped Toronto Maple Leafs 6-3.

Phoenix Roadrunners defeated Toronto Toros 6-4 in Thursday's only World Hockey Association game.

Kindrachuk normally plays between Don Saleski and Dave Schultz on the Flyers third line but Clarke's ankle injury gave him a spot on the No. 1 line with Bill Barber and Reg Leach.

He drew three assists on goals by Leach, who brought his league-leading goal-total to 34, and once on a goal by Barber, who finished the night with two goals and three assists.

Gibson, who led the American Hockey League in scoring goals and assists last season, strengthened his bid for a regular job with the Bruins after being sent back down to Rochester Americans earlier this season.

He set up two goals by Wayne Cashman and one by Ken Hodge to help the Bruins beat the Sabres for the third time in a row, opening a four-point lead over Buffalo in the Adams Division race.

Marcel Dionne contributed a team-record five assists, four on goals by Mike Murphy, in the Kings win over Toronto.

JUNIOR SKATERS

OTTAWA (UPI) — The Canadian Figure Skating Association today named its team to compete in the new junior world championship in Megeve, France, March 10-13.

Team members will be Brian Pockar, 16, of Calgary, Alta., and pair team Sherri Baier, 12, of Mitchell, Ont., and Robin Cowan, 16, of Waterloo, Ont.

Munari Scores Triple

MONTE CARLO (AP) — Italy's Sandro Munari and Silvio Maiga headed a provisional Lancia Stratos sweep of the top three places in the Monte Carlo rally today, making Munari the first driver to win the event three times since the Second World War.

Munari, who dominated the week-long event, added the win to a victory in a Stratos last year and in a Lancia Fulvia in 1972.

Overcoming last-minute gearbox trouble, he finished ahead of Sweden's Bjorn Waldegaard and Hans Thorzelius by 1:27 after 23 speed tests and 6:13 ahead of France's Bernard Darniche and Alain Mahe.

Their nearest opposition was Germany's Walter Rohrl and Jochen Berger in a Works Opel Kadett GTE, 9:22 behind Munari, with Britain's Roger Clark and Jim Porter in a Works Ford Escort RS1800 fifth 11:57 behind.

Dale Shaw Advances

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. — Dale Shaw of Victoria, who captured medal honors with a one-under-par 73 Wednesday, recovered from a shaky start to win her first match Thursday in the Doherty Challenge Cup amateur women's golf tournament.

The lone Canadian in the field, Miss Shaw started off with three bogeys but rallied with an eagle and two birdies to defeat Carmen Shapiro of Puerto Rico 5 and 4.

Maynard Sparks JBAA Over LBC

Goalie Dave Maynard blocked 43 shots to help James Bay Athletic Association Canadians to a 5-4 upset victory over first-place London Boxing Club in a Big Six Hockey League battle Thursday at Pearkes Arena.

Dennis Head led the fourth-place James Bay club with two goals while singles were added by Ken Mereau, Perry Head and Doug Harding. Mereau slammed in the winning goal at 13:32 of the third period.

Ron Poole, Jerry Caldwell, Dave Williams and Brian Hamilton replied for Boxers as Geoff Ward made 35 saves.

Scorpions Repeat As A's Beaten

VANCOUVER — Although they were inactive Thursday, Victoria Scorpions managed to retain the Dogwood Senior "A" Men's Basketball League title.

Burnaby Bullets tripped North Shore Mountaineers 124-107 in one of the two final league games here to finish in a tie for first place with Scorpions. But the Victoria team gets the title by virtue of having won three of the four games between the two teams.

Vancouver Athletics lost a chance to tie Scorpions by dropping a 90-78 decision to Vancouver Capilanos in the other game. A playoff would have been needed if Athletics had won because the two clubs were 2-2 in league play.

League president Basil Sands said a playoff format has yet to be decided because Caps and Mountaineers have finished in a tie for fourth spot and the final playoff berth. Both teams were 2-2 in league play and a playoff may be needed.

Sword of the Lion

JIM HUNTER
. . . almost there

OTTAWA (CP) — It's a long way from the flat prairie of Saskatchewan to the World Cup ski slopes of Europe but it's a trip that Jim Hunter of the Canadian national ski team has almost completed.

For three years Hunter has been trying for a World Cup win which will complete the voyage. His best yet is a third place several weeks ago at Wengen, Switzerland.

A National Film Board movie, to be shown on CBC television Jan. 31, traces the quest and the strange training techniques of the 22-year-old Shaunavon, Sask., farm boy.

The movie, entitled The Sword of the Lion, was previewed Thursday for reporters and sports officials and left little doubt that Hunter's biggest problem may well lie in himself.

Hunter is known to his teammates as Jungle Jim because of his punishing training routine. He also constantly experiments with new equipment, skis, wax, massages.

Hunter has the ability and the conditioning to win the World Cup—his team-mates support that view—but he makes himself so tense before a competition that he is unable to win.

He won a bronze medal at the Winter Olympics at Sapporo, Japan, in 1972 and is aiming to improve on that standing in the 1976 Olympics.

The one-hour movie opens with him curled up inside the large wheel of a tractor bouncing around a farm field. It concludes with him in his skiing crouch riding on a wooden platform on the back of a pickup truck driving on a Saskatchewan road.

Chinooks Getting Larger In South Island Waters

Winter chinook salmon feeding in waters around the southern end of Vancouver Island seem to be getting a little larger on the average but the number of fish taken at any specific spot appeared to change during the past few days.

In Finlayson Arm, the action has been spotty but the odd good catch such as the limit of two eight-pounders, a nine and a 12 landed on hootchies by Fred Ormond and his wife near Chesterfield Rock earlier this week has been reported.

Fishermen working Tod Inlet have been picking up chinooks to 18½ pounds while others trolling near Whittaker Point, Bamberton and Coles Bay are boating jacks averaging four pounds. Blueback anglers are doing quite well off Willis Point and The Boulder.

Deep lines, using up to 200 feet of line and a couple of pounds of lead, are landing chinooks to eight pounds on the outside of Wain Rock and in Satellite Channel.

Trial Island and Fiddle Reef waters are yielding a lot of small blues and chinooks to 17 pounds to the few fishermen going out.

Returns have tapered off somewhat along the Victoria waterfront but a few chinooks to 12 pounds continue to come in between Clover Point and Albert Head. Anchovies and strip, trolled right along the bottom, are the top producers but fishermen have to be patient and wait for inconsistent bite periods.

★ ★ ★

Buzz-bombing, especially with the four-inch "Polar Bear" variety, is starting to produce again in Pedder Bay. Anglers using these casting and mooching lures are sharing a catch of chinooks to about 15 pounds with trollers operating with anchovies around the 100 to 150-foot depth.

A full moon and clear nights had a stiffling effect on returns at Becher Bay earlier this week. But overcast skies and good catches should be back by the weekend.

Prior to Sunday, when Peter Szarka landed a 21½-pounder off the Head and the catch averaged about two fish per boat, some other outstanding individual efforts stood out.

Bud Watson took a 29-pounder off Beechey Head on anchovy Saturday, Ron Hatch had his limit — two 16-pounders, a 15 and an 11 — on strip before 10 a.m. Friday in the Bay while Larry Goodson got a doubleheader Thursday — a 25-pounder on Tyee strip and a 15-pounder on a spoon — and managed to land both off the Head.

Closer waters off Sooke are starting to pick up. Harvey Wood proved this point by boating a 24½-pound beauty Wednesday in Sooke Bay on a hootchie trolled with about two pounds of weight.

Secretary Island is still producing limits of chinooks averaging about five pounds and the end of Whiffen Spit might be worth a try any day now.

★ ★ ★

Further up-Island, fishermen mooching with live herring off the Cowichan Bay wharf are going home with chinooks to 17½ pounds. Other catches as heavy as 25 pounds are sparking some lively action off Separation Point and up through Sansum Narrows.

Harmac, The Fingers and Northwest Bay waters have become spotty during the past week but some fishermen venturing down Alberni Inlet to the Chain Group of islands have been landing fair numbers of chinooks to 15 pounds.

Comox wharf is still a great spot for fishing with live bait, Buzz Bombs or Stingsildas.

Campbell River fishermen are enjoying the unusual sensation of landing winter chinooks with spinner-rigged purple and white pucktails trolled at a slow speed right on top of the water near Duncan Bay and Willow Point.

Steelhead anglers might run into a few high water conditions this weekend but some good catches have been noted from the Cowichan, Koksilah, Somass, Stamp, Ash, Campbell, Quinsam and Gold Rivers.

Good catches of sea-run cutthroat trout were reported near the "low bridge" at Cedar as well as near the highway bridge over the Campbell River.

Blacker the Fish — Better the Day for Fishing

Oak Bay in Romp

Oak Bay took a 58-46 lead by half time and never had to look back while defeating Victoria and District Junior Men 107-81 in a Victoria Senior "B" Men's Basketball League game Thursday night at Spectrum.

John Lauvaas, who scored 14 of his 24 points in the first half, and Corky Jossul, who fired 17 of 19 before the break, led the Oak Bay offence while clubmate Don Horwood contributed 18 points.

Ken Wiens scored 27 points in a losing cause for District Juniors.

OAK BAY (107): John Lauvaas 24, Corky Jossul 19, Ken Christensen 8, Al Huddleston 8, Dan Wade 13, Don Horwood 18, Del Christensen 8, Rick Humber 9.

V and D JUNIORS (81): Bruce Lubinich 2, Charlie Hunter 6, Greg McInnis 6, Ken Wiens 27, Tony Carlson 7, Pete Cavin 9, Dave English 13, Jim Turner 11.

BOWLER OF WEEK

Back in winners' circle after six-year absence is Freda Robertson, who captured women's tenpin award in 14th week of Bowler-of-the-Week contest sponsored by Times. Freda rolled 203-153-223—579 series in I.A.A. League at Mayfair Lanes to earn weekly honors and berth in post-season Bowler-of-Year rolloffs.

All-Star Change Planned

The South Vancouver Island Hockey League's third annual all-star game will be played tonight at the Esquimalt Sports Centre, and the league executives already are looking to the fourth annual match.

A league spokesman said executives are considering altering the format of the game. The format in vogue calls for the defending league champions to play all-stars selected from the rest of the teams.

Victoria Ray's Red Wings are last year's winners.

Each league coach nominates two forwards and one defenceman from his team for the all-star squad.

While guaranteeing represesentation from every team, the main objection to the present selection method is that some deserving performer—if he happens to play for a talent-laden squad—can be bypassed in favor of a mediocre player.

Also, last year's champions are subject to "circumstantial happenings" because of graduation and transfers.

Following are the lineups for tonight's game, which starts at 8 p.m.;

VICTORIA — Roy Sinden, Wayne Maher, Wayne Proceviat, Jamie Robertson, Dwight Crockett, Ken Wilson, Steve Leatham, Craig Pallin, Ralph Fraser, Brian Matvenko, Cam McIntyre, Larry Hansen, Randy Keller, Larry Donaldson, Norm Allen, Jack Voykin, Stan Alstad, Larry Boldt. Coach: Dennis Ferrill.

ALL-STARS — Steve Hanna, Robby Coldwell, Ron Jobson and Mike Shemilt, Saanich; Bruch Morrow, Mike Forrest, Gene Wrigglesworth, Scott Morrow and Brian Luberg, Lake Cowichan, Steve Buckley, Murray Allen and John Entzminger, Esquimalt; Lee Clackson and Tracy Sherwood, Fuller's Lake: Chris Horne, Ron Hope andd Barry McLachlin, Juan de Fuca. Coach: Bayden Robinson.

Skillings Gains Share of Lead

The Steve Skillings rink moved into a tie with Bob Gallaugher's foursome at the top of the Super Curling League at the Racquet Club this week.

Skillings defeated Moe Hill 8-7, while Gallaugher was losing to Brad Clarke 10-8. In the night's other game Lyle Garraway defeated Ted Jurista 9-7.

Gallaugher has a 5-3 record, while Skillings has won four, tied two and lost two. Each has 10 points. Jurista and Clarke are tied for third place with eight points. There are two weeks to play.

Bishop Good Reason Dinosaurs Are Ahead

Tom Bishop has been on a hot streak since the Christmas break and University of Calgary Dinosaurs are taking full advantage of it.

Bishop clicked for 23 and 22-point outings in a pair of crucial games against University of Victoria Vikings last weekend and improved his Canada West University Athletic Association men's basketball scoring lead while the Dinosaurs snapped a tie for first place with the Vikings.

Calgary won both ends of the showdown twinbill, and now hold a two-game lead on the Vikings with a 9-1 record. Victoria, which had won seven straight games to open the season, now sports a 7-3 record for second place.

Bishop has averaged better than 23 points in his last four games and has widened his lead atop the scoring lists, official statistics show.

While improving his scoring average from a pre-Christmas mark of 17.5, which was good enough for third place, Bishop now has 198 points in 10 games, for a 19.8 point average.

He leads Doug Baker of Alberta Golden Bears in second place with an 18.5 point norm, and former leader Roger Ganes of Saskatchewan Huskies, who has fallen to an 18 point average.

Averaging 11.8 rebounds per game, Ganes also holds down the lead in both offensive and defensive rebounds, with 41 and 77 respectively.

Victoria's Lee Edmondson, with 102 for 10.2 norm, and British Columbia Thunderbirds; Mike McKay, 100 for a 10 rebound average, Trail Ganes in the rebounding battle.

Victoria players lead in shooting accuracy: Lorne Dakin, who hit on 12 of 17 field goals in a 74-68 loss to the Dinosaurs on Jan. 17, is tops in that department, clicking on 56.4 per cent of his shots (61 field goals in 108 attempts). Jim Duddridge of the Vikings is the top shooter from the free throw line, Canning 86.9 per cent of his attempts (40 of 46).

Riders Bank on Ron But Ready In Case

EDMONTON (CP) — Coach John Payne thinks veteran quarterback Ron Lancaster will return to Saskatchewan Roughriders in the 1976 Canadian Football League season.

"We are recruiting right now on the basis that Ron will be back," Payne told a news conference before the CFL coach-of-the-year dinner Wednesday. Lancaster had indicated last season he might retire, leaving the Roughriders with relatively-inexperienced Randy Mattingly at quarterback.

Payne is prepared in case Lancaster doesn't play again, but he isn't tipping his hand. "We have a plan ready in case he doesn't come back," he told reporters. He declined to elaborate.

Boycott Threat Dropped

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — A boycott of the Pro Bowl would have stung the wrong people, so about 50 National Football League stars decided not to take a strike vote, players' union representatives said Thursday.

The threat of a player boycott of Monday night's game hung over pre-game preparations all week, and the uncertain status of the game was blamed for sagging ticket sales.

"It boiled down to a question of who would be hurt, if the game were cancelled, and a question of whether a cancellation would have had enough impact on the owners," said Ed Garvey, NFL Players Association executive director.

In a 90-minute closed meeting, the players decided management would not have been hurt by a boycott, but football fans would have been, Garvey said. About 30 members of the all-star squads did not attend the meeting.

"After a prolonged discussion of the situation, we decided it was in our best interests not even to vote on whether there would be a strike," said union president Kermit Alexander.

The NFL owners' refusal to pay anything into the players' pension fund for the last two years prompted the boycott talk, Garvey said. But he said several other issues were discussed.

GOOD-LUCK TELEGRAM TO BE SENT TO BATES

Want to give Bate softballers a lift at the world championship in New Zealand next week? Well, here's your chance.

Radio station C-FAX is planing to send a "good-luck" telegram to Bates prior to their first game against Guam next Saturday (Friday, Victoria time) and asks that Victoria sports fans participate.

Booths at the Hillside and Mayfair Malls will be manned from Saturday until Wednesday noon where fans may add their names to the telgram at a cost of 40 cents, which is the wire toll to New Zealand. The telegram will be delivered before game time (8:00 p.m. Friday). That game will be broadcast live over C-FAX.

Police Launch Zone Playoffs

Twenty-one rinks are entered in the Vancouver Island Zone of the B.C. Police curling championship, to take place at the Victoria Curling Club beginning Sunday night.

Last year's winner was the Dick Latta rink, representing the Victoria RCMP, and was composed of Barry McCombe, Ed Mantik and Raph Svenson. Latta, who finished fourth in the Canadian, is entered again this year and his main opposition is expected to come from Moe Hill, skipping a combined Esquimalt-RCMP aggregation, which last weekend won a berth in the Island men's consols playdowns which will take place this weekend at Nanaimo.

One rink will qualify from the Island zone playdown for the B.C. championships, which will also be held at the Victoria Club, Feb. 6-7. Winner of the eight-rink B.C. competition will qualify for the nationals at the Mount Royal Curling Club in Montreal, March 15-20.

Police draw follows:

7 p.m. — Jack Johnson (Shawnigan Lake RCMP) vs. John Fox (Port Alberni RCMP); Bill Thomas (Colwood RCMP) vs. Dugald MacMillan (Port Alice RCMP); Harold NcNeil (Oak Bay) vs. Dick Latta (Victoria RCMP); Ray Wolfe (Victoria RCMP) vs. Don Edy (Nanaimo RCMP); Jack Groves (Oak Bay) vs. Ed Schmuland (Campbell River RCMP); Bob MacDonald (Victoria City) vs. Grant Eppy (Nanaimo RCMP); Stan Neslibo (Port Alberni RCMP) vs. Al de St. Remy (Port Alberni RCMP); Archie Browning (RCMP—Esquimalt) vs. Einer Hemstad (Victoria City).

9:15 p.m. — Ray Stellar (Ganges RCMP) vs. Jock Collier (Duncan RCMP); Moe Hill (RCMP—Esquimalt) vs. Ray Bailey (Saanich); Lorne Weme (Parksville RCMP) vs. Another.

Jayvees Qualify

Mickey Welder connected on a layup with seven seconds left on the clock Thursday night to help give UVic Jayvees a berth in the combined Greater Victoria and Vancouver Island junior men's basketball championship final.

Jayvees captured the berth with a 59-58 nod over London Boxing Club Juniors at UVic.

Welder and Ian Hyde-Lay scored 14 points each to lead the Jayvee attack while Ted Anderson fired 23 points to lead Boxers.

Boxers defeated Victoria and District Junior Men 68-52 in the first game of the three-team, double-loss elimination playoff and will play them again at 9:30 p.m. Tuesday at UVic to decide the other berth in the final.

Backstretch Benefits Urged

CALGARY (CP) — A California horseman warned the annual conference of the National Association of Canadian Race Tracks Thursday that racing faces a potential problem with organized labor in the near future.

Brian Sweeney, general manager of the California Thoroughbred Breeders' Association, said capital investment is needed to improve living conditions for grooms and others who live along the backstretch.

"Otherwise," he told the NACRT, "we will be planting the seeds for organized labor problems we won't be able to cope with.

"Squalor describes most of the living quarters."

He reminded delegates to the annual conference that a labor shortage existed two or three years ago but was overcome by an influx of young female workers.

Calling upon racing to develop medical insurance and a pension plan for grooms, Sweeney said horsemen, rather than track management, had been primarily to blame for the lack of such benefits.

"Many of these people don't know how to do anything else and many don't want to do anything else," he said.

"We shouldn't take advantage of this."

He said backstretch communities are little cities and it would not be far-fetched to privide hospitals, or even churches, in some tracks.

The NACRT conference, which has attracted about 300 delegates, will induct inaugural members of a Canadian Racing Hall of Fame here tonight at a windup banquet.

At 13, Eric Jespersen has the determination that turns sailors into winners.

After winning the first of three races sailed by Saanich Peninsula Sailing Association members at Sidney on Sunday, Eric broke his dinghy's tiller.

Undaunted, Eric just grabbed the top of his rudder and went on to win the other two sailouts.

His dad, Bent, who does well in the family boat Limjford when she races with the Canoe Bay Sailing Club, had to settle for a third. Runner-up to Eric was Tim Bussey. The SPSA will be out again this Sunday. Racing starts at 1:30 p.m.

The Royal Victoria Yacht Club and the Esquimalt Squadron of the Canadian Forces Sailing Association has an annual event this weekend that's produced friendly rivalry for many years. They'll be racing for the Nuts Trophy, so-called because they began the inter-club dinghy event in the days when you were thought to be slightly crazy to sail in the winter.

Five races in Lasers will be sailed at Cadboro Bay on Saturday and another five in 420s at Esquimalt Harbor on Sunday. Each club will have six sailors on its team.

Ian Pickles was the top Laser sailor in RVYC's series racing on Saturday, being followed by Tim Roots and Dave Richardson.

RVYC's 16-miler for keel boats on Sunday produced some protests which still have to be resolved but, so far, Jack Woodward's Puff II appears to have won top honors in the International Offshore Rule fleet. She's followed by Tom Loney's Goodbye, Gerry Howell-Jones' Sian, Jack Matthews' Professor, Jan Hulbers' Sea Spell, Greg Oliver's Distant Drummer, George Johnstone's Tarquin III, Eric Dowell's Ariel II, Hugh Bacon and Rod Andrews' Encounter and Archie Campbell's Sea Robin.

Many of the boats will be out again this Sunday to take part in two round-the-buoy races with the Turkey Head Sailing Association in waters off Oak Bay. Start times are 10 a.m. and 1:30 p.m.

★ ★ ★

It looks if Victoria Thunderbird sailors are going to dominate the international scene for the next year or so. A 19-strong contingent will be in Vancouver on Saturday to attend the International Thunderbird Association's annual meeting at the Sheraton-Landmark Hotel. So far an all-Victoria slate has been nominated — John Dewey for president, Walter Roots as vice-president and Jack Gilbert for secretary-treasurer.

Delegates will be attending from as far away as New England and Whitby, Ont., as well as Los Angeles, Tacoma and Seattle.

★ ★ ★

If you have a canoe but do not belong to a club and would like to know more about water safety techniques, such as getting back into a canoe after you've dumped, you'll have your chance on Sunday. The Victoria Canoe Club is staging an open safety session at the Crystal Pool. You'll have to be an early riser, though. The session lasts from 7 to 9 a.m.

NHL Welcome

EDMONTON (CP) — If the National Hockey League wants to move a franchise to Edmonton, the Edmonton Coliseum might have to accept them as tenants, Ted Mildon, president of the Edmonton Exhibition Association, says.

"With a $10-million mortgage on a public building, it is doubtful if we'd be in a position to turn down a lucrative tenant like the NHL," he said.

Skate Team Set

TORONTO (CP) — The Canadian Amateur Speed Skating Association has announced the names of eight skaters who will compete in the Winter Olympics at Innsbruck, Austria, Feb. 4-15.

Cathy Priestner of Calgary and Sylvia Burka, Gayle Gordon, Liz Appleby and Kathy Vogt, all of Winnipeg, make up the women's team.

Gaetan Boucher of Sainte Foy, Que., Andrew Barron of Edmonton and Tom Overend of Abbotsford, B.C., form the men's team.

The association also confirmed that Jorrit Jorritsma will coach the team while Doug Gordon of Winnipeg will be team manager and Clara Overend of Abbotsford will be assistant manager.

New Financial Flareup Looms for Stadium

After jogging along placidly for two trouble-free years, with no quibbling about its financial operation, the Centennial Stadium at the University of Victoria seems to be sprinting into another era of controversy.

That was the indication Thursday when the question of municipal sharing in the stadium's operating costs surfaced at a city finance committee meeting.

Under former mayor Peter Pollen, Victoria complained loud and long about the whole cost-sharing formula, pointing out that the city's financial contribution was disaproportionate to the minimal use actually made of the stadium by city residents.

But the difficulties were ironed out and a two-year funding agreement settled, under which Victoria, Oak Bay, Saanich, Esquimalt and the greater Victoria school district all shared in the operating costs with UVic.

Now the 1975-76 fiscal year is up for discussion, and the Centennial Stadium Committee has reported that Victoria's share of the total municipal contribution of $21,472 — up 11.6 per cent over 1974-75 — is $8,979. That's an increase of $1,179 over the previous year.

Ald. Bob Ellis suggested Thursday that the city take a long, hard look at the budget, particularly the formula relating cost-sharing to the degree of use.

He said the breakdown of user groups provided as budget data by the stadium committee seems to indicate that the main use of the facility is by members of the public for practice purposes, which he finds hard to accept.

"Now that the university has come of age I think they would probably welcome the opportunity to look after the stadium themselves," Ellis added.

Ald. Ron McKenzie felt the city had "fulfilled our obligations" in respect of the stadium. He said he would like to see Victoria pull out of the financing partnership and put the money to better use — perhaps with stronger support for the city archives.

City manager Jim Bramley noted that the main reason for the city's financial participation in the past was that it wanted to have a say in how the stadium was actually used.

The committee finally accepted Mayor Mike Young's suggestion that the matter be tabled for two weeks for a more detailed report from the city's representative on the stadium committee.

General Pay Hike

BUENOS AIRES (AP) The Argentine government approved an 18-per-cent general wage increase for private and state workers Thursday to cope with a 1975 inflation rate of 334.8 per cent, the highest in Argentine history. Average pay is currently estimated at about $100 a month.

Hopeful Hop-Along

Carrying on with only one leg, this pigeon in Centennial Square displays a certain added dignity with his handicap. Ornithologist Jeremy Tatum says one-legged birds are not uncommon. He speculates they become entangled with foliage or fishing lines or are victims of attacks by predators. But could it be some sly birds learn to tuck one leg out of sight to enhance their chances with the bird-feeding fraternity? (John McKay photo)

VGH Radiation Hazard Denied

Reports that x-ray equipment at Victoria General Hospital is so old it is scattering radiation hazardous to staff and patients were denied today by the hospital's executive director.

But Jim Fair did concede that the hospital's seven x-ray machines, from eight to 35 years old, are in "desperate need" of replacing.

Staff and patients are subject to more radiation with the old equipment than they would be with new machines, he said, and monitoring badges which record radiation received by staff have registered more than found in other hospitals.

But he had not been advised by the radiology department that there is a hazard, he added.

Radiation levels from the machines are checked annually by a federal agency and there have been modifications and adjustments made at Victoria General to curb radiation following such reports, he said. But that is done in all radiology departments.

One one occasion a radiologist left his monitoring badge outside his lead apron rather than under it and this resulted in a reading which the monitoring agency questioned, Fair said.

The hospital presented plans in its capital budget over a year ago for a phased modernization of the radiology department and the provincial government approved today the first step, installation of a new power system at a cost of about $300,000.

Last October the regional Hospital and Health Planning Commission submitted to the province a broader three-year program to update radiology at Victoria General and Royal Jubilee Hospitals at an estimated cost of $3.2 million.

It called for spending $1.9 million at Victoria General and $1.3 million at Jubilee. Under cost-sharing formulas, the province would pay 75 per cent of equipment costs and 60 per cent of renovations if it approves the work.

Two Big Hospital Projects Get McClelland Approval

By DON VIPOND
Times Staff

Health Minister Bob McClelland said today the government has approved two major hospital projects in the Capital district but wants regional planners to reconsider an expensive land proposal.

The projects given the green light are a $300,000 renovation and expansion of the emergency department at Royal Jubilee Hospital and installation of a three-phase power system at Victoria General, needed before obsolete x-ray equipment can be replaced. It will also cost about $300,000.

But McClelland said he isn't sure the province agrees with the region's desire to buy a 26-acre site at Douglas and McKenzie for a new hospital because of the $2.5 million price tag. The region will be asked to re-examine the proposal.

The property, northeast of the intersection, is in the Agricultural Land Reserve, and one appraisal put its value at $417,000, said the minister.

"We don't want to interfere with regional affairs but we have a responsibility to see that the money is spent responsibly."

Buying a site for what will initially be a 300-bed acute care hospital, largely to replace obsolete Victoria General, is a linchpin in a variety of other regional hospital plans which are stalled.

Art Young, chairman of the regional hospital board, said all parties realize the offered price is high but the region believes it's worth it because of location, availability of services such as sewage disposal, police and fire coverage.

The $417,000 appraisal was based on its worth as agricultural land and regional inquiries indicate it can be expected to be removed from the Agricultural Land Reserve because of urbanization all around it, he said.

Of numerous properties examined by a joint committee of provincial and regional staff using provincial criteria, the proposed site came out far ahead of the others, Young added.

McClelland said he believes the present owners paid something like $374,000 for the property and selling it for $2.5 million would represent "a pretty substantial profit."

At nearly $100,000 an acre, buying the site is a "good chunk" of spending, particularly when there are properties reasonably close selling for $20,000 to $50,000 an acre, he said.

The health minister said that with budget restraints, "what we're going to have to do is sort out our priorities in a major way."

But he must have an "overview" of department projects planned and under way before he can be specific about spending.

He said he didn't understand criticism directed at him by Young earlier this week since he's only been on the job for a brief time.

Many of the delays on regional health projects in the past seem to have originated with the regional organization itself, he said.

But these appear to have been solved with formation a year ago of the new regional Hospital and Health Planning Commission, which, he said, is working "smoothly."

In addition to the two hospital projects now approved by the province, McClelland said his department and regional planners also reached agreement on future bed allocations at Victoria's two general hospitals.

Uniform 'Must' Rule Impossible—Union

Neither the city, the fire chief nor the firefighters' union should be able to dictate what city firefighters wear to and from work, union president Ross Cameron said today.

Cameron, reacting to a council committee decision Thursday that firefighters would not get new uniforms unless they agreed to wear them to and from work, said the mandatory requirement was an attack on the morale of the department.

He said he has no personal objection to wearing his uniform, "but to make it mandatory — well, it leaves me literally speechless . . . and that doesn't happen very often."

The majority of firefighters already wear their uniforms back and forth from work, he said, but there are exceptions at times and those exceptions make it impossible for the union to agree to the stipulation being included in the formal agreement between the firefighters and the city on the new uniforms.

CAMERON
. . . "speechless"

"As an example, I live 14 miles out of town and if I want to meet my wife for dinner after work, and I'm not allowed to go to a place in uniform where liquor is served. I want to change clothes at work," he said.

Firefighters have been working on the development of a new uniform style for six months and the question should have come up long ago, not this week, Cameron said.

Chief Eric Simmons said at the committee meeting Thursday some of the firefighters were "pre-occupied" with civil rights.

"I wish they had thought about it when they applied for a job with the department," Simmons said. "If they had mentioned civil rights when they applied we wouldn't have bothered to hire them."

Cameron's reaction was a groan.

The firefighters will meet Jan. 28 to discuss the issue.

'Peak Load Pricing' Of Ferries Studied

By KIT COLLINS
Times Staff

A new system of "peak load pricing" is one of the options being recommended to the Social Credit cabinet to help the B.C. Ferries pay its own way, the Times has learned.

The pricing formula is designed to even the traffic flow by deferring travelling at the busiest times.

It is one of several options included in a report commissioned last year by the NDP government and now receiving finishing touches by the ferry authority.

Alternatives include:

—Increased rates for summer travellers, and for passengers travelling at rush-hours during the winter.

— A hike in rates for cars, but not for foot-passengers.

GAFFNEY
. . . "efficiency measures"

—A formula which would allow lower rates for smaller vehicles and higher rates for larger ones.

— Higher rates to decrease the number of space-consuming recreation vehicles.

The report was compiled primarily by a researcher on loan to the B.C. Ferries from the B.C. Institute of Economic Policy Research.

Head of the Institute, Mason Gaffney confirmed the existence of the report Thursday, but he would not outline specific recommendations in the report. He did say there were six "efficiency measures" proposed.

He said that the research team generally found the charge per person is too high and the charge per car too low "and there has also been no proper adjustment for size of vehicles."

For years a money-loser, the B.C. Ferries fleet has a projected deficit of $50 million or more during the current year.

Ferry rates — $5 per car and $2 per person between Tsawwassen and Swartz Bay — were set in the 1950s and are low compared to other jurisdictions.

A lower, $1 per person fee for passengers travelling midweek on Tuesdays, Wednesday and Thursday was adopted nine years ago.

Transport Minister Jack Davis has indicated the Socred government will not necessarily make the ferries operate without any losses, a policy which would cause "significant" rate increases.

But he said he hoped to propose methods which would help lessen the deficit.

INSPECTION CALLED OFF

Saanich council will decide at its next council meeting whether to demand the demolition or enforced repair of a home at 344 Vincent, owned by Zika Zidov.

Mayor Ed Lum said today municipal solicitor Doug Patterson has advised him there is no legal necessity for council to visit the house before taking such action.

This reverses legal opinion given by Patterson at the last meeting when it was decided to view the house, accompanied by police.

Municipal inspectors say they have found electrical, heating, plumbing, partitioning and sewer work has been done without either the required permits or inspections. A stop-work order was issued Jan. 12.

Council had earlier arranged to visit the house today.

The situation came to light when Zidov's tenants complained to the municipality about work being done in the house. The tenants were escorted out of the house by police on Jan. 9.

Inspectors reported they were treated "abusively and violently" by Zidov when inspecting the house.

Kickback!

An impulsive kick delivered by a taxi driver to the seat of a motorist last Dec. 13 resulted in a $100 fine Thursday in provincial court.

Gerald Lovett Maughan, of 1337 Grant, pleaded guilty to common assault.

According to police, Maughan was travelling along Foul Bay Road when his taxi hit a dog but didn't stop.

James Maloney, in a following car, saw the accident and chased after the taxi.

When the taxi pulled over to pick up a fare Maloney approached Maughan and asked why he hadn't stopped after striking the dog.

Police reported Maughan told Maloney to mind his own business (or words to that effect) and when Maloney turned to walk back to his car Maughan "kicked him in the rear end."

Maughan told Judge Blake Allan he would have stopped but "the dog ran down the street faster than I could catch him." He said he was in a semi-dazed state because of the mishap and didn't know what he was doing when he assaulted Maloney.

"I can't accept that excuse," Judge Allan said.

Driver Killed on Sooke Rd.

A 38-year-old Victoria driver was among three men who died in separate accidents on Vancouver Island Thursday between Sooke and Parksville.

Sooke RCMP identified a motorist killed on Sooke Road near Cooper's Cove as Gurnam Singh Basi, 3175 Balfour.

His 10-year-old westbound car left the wet pavement and struck a power pole about 4 p.m. on a section of highway that is mostly curves. There was no evidence of high speed, said police.

Two passengers in the car, Pakhar Singh Phagura, 39, of 570 Whiteside, and Gurcharn Singh Birk, 3192 Bellevue, were treated for minor injuries.

Near Parksville on the Little Qualicum River, Glen Neville Warwick, 21, of Nanaimo, died apparently of a heart seizure suffered when he fell from a tree on the riverbank where he was trying to disengage a snagged fishing line.

Police said he fell into the river.

An industrial accident at Lake Cowichan took the life of 45-year-old Oliver Roland Fortin, of Nanaimo, driver of a truck unloading logs for his employer, Western Forest Industries, at its dry land sort at Honeymoon Bay.

RCMP said it appeared Fortin had loosened the restraining chains on his load before unloading equipment had engaged the logs, allowing one of them to roll off and strike him.

That Pedigreed Pet From Pine Point

We were poking along the home beach this spring-type morning when my dear one halted, dropped her armload of fir bark, and pounced on one stone of the many. To me it was just another rock, but Win cuddled it in both hands as if it were a week-old kitten.

"What about those holes in it?" I said. "You think it's sick?"

Win ignored that bit of sarcasm.

"The holes make it more interesting," she said. "I've got just the place for it."

She then passed me her find to tote along with my load of bark, and we trudged back to a house in which the Flintstones would feel at home.

Episodes of this sort have punctuated our travels since long before the pet rock fad intruded itself into an area of human affection once reserved for dogs, cats and feathered friends. My wife likes stones. They speak to her in a language that I don't pretend to understand. I've suspected more than once that they even follow her around, begging to be added to a collection that grows with the years.

Big Ugly with the pockmarks on its erratically-contoured surface now squats atop a book-case between a ponderous mass of quartzite and a shard of what my partner on life's rocky road insists is jaspar.

Those specimens have plenty of company, and each find evokes its set of memories.

The fragment of lead-zinc-silver ore came into Win's possession in an up-country gas station run by an ex-prospector.

A box of rocks sat on the counter. Those chunks didn't look like anything much to me, but my companion headed for them as if drawn by a magnet.

"You know where those came from?" the station proprietor demanded. He answered his own question with dramatic emphasis. "Pine Point, that's where!"

For all of 10 minutes, he expounded an Pine Point, a mining property that would have made me a bundle if I hadn't chosen to look a hot tip in the teeth when it stock was selling for peanuts. Then he presented Win with a hunk of ore. All I got was a disparaging glance and the gas sale slip.

Back on the road, Win inspected the ex-prospectors gift of a pedigreed rock fondly.

"It would bulge my handbag," she said. "Maybe you'll put it in your pocket."

As a rarely-complaining pack mule, I'm used to such requests. After all, each to his own foible, and if it happens to be making pets out of rocks, what matter!

The slab of slate that found its way into our car trunk along with other weighty gleanings from here and there now serves usefully to pin down the lid of our outdoor woodbox. And I've accepted the premise that a few choice rocks tucked into a packsack on a hilly trail make good ballast.

I'll admit that a row of fossil-imprinted sandstone flakes lined up on a window sill does add a minor hazard when that window must be opened. But understanding encourages indulgence, and I no longer object to rooting around in mine tailings or wading into an icyy stream for a choice sample.

Nor did I utter more than a token protest when we solved a mystery that developed as we tramped our way from pool to riffle along a northwest Territories stream.

My fishing creel hung fairly heavy when we set out on that expedition. Lunchtime lightened it. Then, progressively, it grew heavier again, though not with fish.

I put this apparent weight fluctuation down to delusion fostered by city-softened muscles, and forgot about it until the winter evening when I fetched the creel out for a housecleaning. It still felt heavier than a split-willow basket of angler's trivia should.

Under its top stratum of fly boxes, reel cases and such, the creel was paved with reddish-brown cobbles.

"Those little chps?" Win said. "Oh, they're from Cameron River. I knew you wouldn't mind if I borrowed the space."

But we don't have space for the half-ton boulder that rates a pat on its knobbly head whenever our rovings bring us to it. Last trip, it got an extra pat, and a poke from a speculative toe.

That worries me!

Hopelessly in Debt? Here's Advice

CAVEAT EMPTOR

By LYNNE GORDON

At sometime in you life you may find yourself in a tight squeeze financially — even hopelessly in debt.

Strangely enough, statistics show that MOST consumers are not deadbeats, but are anxious to meet their obligation. And contrary to general belief, it is not just the poor that get into financial problems . . . it can be ANY user of credit.

The problem, in most cases, is that they have planned badly for the future, been confused about their priorities, received credit too easily or become victims of a sudden change in circumstances or the economy.

Why and how you got into debt is another story and should be looked into carefully when you are relieved of the killing monthly payments and the destructive, ensuing anxieties and tensions.

The most important thing to remember is not to panic, not be embarrassed about your situation and not to procrastinate in tackling the problems and looking for help. There are services open to you but they should be examined very thoroughly so that you are not plunged deeper into debt.

Beware of commercial firms that offer debt counselling, debt pooling or consolidation loans.

Legitimate consumer finance companies and collection agencies have been forced by the government to get out of the business of counselling and, in order to make a profit, they have to charge higher fees. This just pushes the consumer deeper and deeper into the hole.

If the service is offered "free", then they are more interested in keeping an eye on the money owed to them rather than any long-term planning with the consumer.

Don't be tempted into a CONSOLIDATION LOAN with a commercial loan company. This only means that you are bunching smaller debts into one, whopping, expensive debt. You may have smaller monthly payments spread over a longer time period but the interest rates can be killing.

The commercial firms that make a business of handling your debts should also be checked carefully. Until the various governments began to crack down, shady operators in this business skimmed the consumer out of thousands of dollars.

In Ontario, the government has cleaned most of the shady operators out and they have been banned in more than half of the states in the U.S.

The unfortunate part is that many of the U.S. firms can advertise in magazines distributed in Canada and are within the law still bleeding the consumers.

Even the firms operators take too much from the consumer. They collect a lump sum from the consumer to pay off the creditors on a pro-rata basis. The commercial firm promises to contact all the creditors and make an arrangement to pay off the money owed, on a percentage basis, according to the amount outstanding.

This may sound like an easy way out but is usually doesn't work very well.

First of all, you pay a hefty fee for the service. The fee is front-end loaded — collected before any disbursements are made.

Secondly, the commercial firm doesn't have any power to FORCE creditors to stick to the arrangement and many unsuspecting consumers have been suddenly hit by a lawsuit when a creditor opts out of the arrangement and goes after his money.

If you default on your payments to the commercial debt-pooling firm, you may be hit with a penalty fee.

The biggest problem is with the fraudulent operator who collects your money and then skips town without paying any creditors.

The Canadian Postal Authority should take a hard look at some firms using the mails to defraud consumers.

Most provinces do offer some form of help to consumers.

At the local level, in most Canadian cities, there are many helpful services — social service agencies, peoples' groups and government. The problem is that these services are sometimes overburdened. Usually there is only a minimal charge for the help and in some cases, no charge at all. Each service has its own regulations and limitations, so it's important to check around for the service that best suits your needs.

You can get advice from federal and provincial consumer protection departments, the Consumers Association of Canada, the small claims courts, and legal assistance services.

In addition, a court-operated debt-pooling plan has been established under a section of The Bankruptcy Act called THE ORDERLY PAYMENT of DEBTS. At present, these six provinces have adopted OPD: Alberta, B.C., Saskatchewan, Manitoba, Nova Scotia and P.E.I. Quebec has the LACOMBE LAW to handle repayment and Ontario has a unique non-profit plan that is sponsored by the government.

The oldest agency is the Credit Counselling Service of Toronto. They will help the consumer make arrangements with the creditors and pay off debts on a pro-rated basis. The advantage of this service is the power they have in the community. They give budget counselling and demand full disclosure of all your problems so they can help on a long-term basis. They DO NOT preach but they do advise. There is no charge for this service.

It is also possible for you to help yourself before you go to any agency.

Many consumers are unaware of the fact that they can contact every creditor personally to work out some arrangement. But it means hard work, strict discipline, a well prepared budget, before calling, and the ability to carry through your promises. Any number of arrangements can be made.

If you have any trouble with the first person you deal with, try the top person in the credit department. Sometimes a clerk won't be as co-operative as the chief executive.

Whatever method you use, do it now. Time wasted only adds to the problem . . . and probably increases the interest costs.

You can also get advice from your own banker, your trade union, your accountant, your social service agency.

The main thing is to think your problem through. Seek out the help you need, take the necessary steps, then make sure you stay in control of your money . . . and your life.

NEEDLESS 'CARDIAC CRIPPLES'

TUCSON, Ariz. (UPI) — Overcautious mothers and doctors force children with minor heart defects to become "cardiac cripples" who may never enjoy life although they face no real danger, according to a pediatrician.

"There are very few children who need to be strictly restricted in their activities because of their heart defects," said Dr. Mary Allen Engle of New York Hospital. "Most should be encouraged to perform near the peak they are able to reach in exercise rather than be restricted."

Engle, who calls the children unnecessarily restricted "cardiac cripples," said the term indicates problems the child may face later.

"Those may be hypochondria, inability to cope with problems, undue fragility and undesirable health habits and personality traits," she said. "If we can promote good health and personality at the same time, that is our goal.

"We perhaps do more harm psychologically by restricting than we help in preventing catastrophy from the defect."

Engle said most congenital heart defects are either so mild they never need surgery or are severe enough they are surgically fixed at an early age. In either case, the child usually is able to live normally.

She said there are only a few, rare, heart defects such as major blockage of the aorta, which call for severe restriction of the child. Otherwise, the child should get at least as much exercise and play as children with no defects.

"Of course, it should be within reason," she said at the American Heart Association science writers' forum. "You wouldn't want to push a child further than he safely can go."

'CLEAN, WARM COCOON'

EDMONTON (CP) — All the women in the women's emergency accommodation centre are in different stages of getting it together.

The downtown centre assists homeless and transient women.

The women, most of them between 18 and 21 years of age, all are escaping from some thing. Some have left parents behind.

"My dad is senidng me money, so I'll stay away," said one young woman.

Many have come from the country or outside the province looking for work.

The centre receives 99 per cent of its funding from the provincial government and the building is supplied and maintained by the government. It has a budget of $120,000 per year.

There are 50 beds, full most of the time. Unlike the single men's hostel across the street, the women are permitted to stay in the building all day long.

Weekdays, they rise at 8 a.m., shower and make their beds, and then go for breakfast in the men's hostel cafeteria. From 10 a.m. until 3 p.m. the dormitories are closed, but a recreation room in the basement with television, radio, chairs and tables, is open all day.

Lunch is at noon and supper at 4 p.m. The women are free to look for work, visit, whatever they choose, during the day. Bedtime weekdays is 11 p.m.

One weekends the rising time is at 10 a.m. and bedtime at 2 a.m.

The women say head suppervisor Joan Evans and her 11 staff members are good.

There are a few complaints. Sometimes the regimentation is resented. There have been some incidents of lice infestation and some of the women wish newcomers were checked more closely.

Mostly, though it's a clean, warm cocoon. There is no maximum period of residence, and some women stay for years. Others return periodically, when they can't cope with jobs or their personal hassles prove too much.

'Good Ole Kitchen Medicine'

"There's headaches and there's headaches," says Marj Watkins, "and I treat most of the ones my famly gets with good ole kitchen medicine."

For tension headaches, Marj says to "Get away, have a drink of water, take a few breaths of fresh air. Massage the back of the head, the neck and the shoulders, or find someone to do it lovingly for you. Locate the bundle of nerves midway between your earlobe and your collarbone and gently stroke the knotted area on each side with your fingertips. Experiment to find the most relaxing motion."

Ms. Watkins gives a sufferer of fatigue headaches dried apricots or cashews or raisins and sunflower seeds (to raise the level of blood sugar). She also advises a long, hot soak in a tub of water containing two cups of strong lovage, lavender, linden or mint tea.

THE MOTHER EARTH NEWS®
...it tells you how

If you get headaches from glare, Marj feels you should eat lots of green vegetables and apricots and that you should take 50,000 units of vitamin A before a day spent on water or snow in the bright sun. Once the pain has struck, she advises relaxing in a dim corner with a damp, cool cloth over closed eyes.

And if heat causes your head to throb? Ms. Watkins says to lie down in a cool, dark place with your head slightly raised. Sip a little cool water slowly and refresh the face, hands and neck with water.

Marj Watkins' "kitchen medicine" for headaches, in other words, is largely just common sense.

Community Plan For Gordon Head

Gordon Head should have its community plan ready for the membership sometime in February, said ratepayer president Earl Byrnes.

Subcommittees have completed their job and the planning committee is assembling the data on the main map. Byrnes said the proposed plan calls for a lower density of population than envisioned by the Capital Region Board.

The plan will be submitted to Saanich planners when completed.

World Plan Week Marked

World Plan Week in B.C. Feb. 3-9, will be marked by symposiums and educational seminars discussing the implications of the transcendental meditation program for improving the quality of city life.

The inaugural symposium in Victoria will be held in the Crystal Ballroom of the Empress Hotel Tuesday, Feb. 3, at 8 p.m.

Dr. Scott Wallace, leader of the B.C. Conservative Party, Dr. William St. John Buckler, head of the department of physical medicine at Vancouver General Hospital, Dr. C. P. Singh, Victoria M.D. and David Cox, a doctorial candidate in clinical psychology, will speak.

LOVE OF OLD

A young couple's fascination for the old has led them to the ownership of the Prospect Lake store and a new lease on life for the building, built in 1912.

Norma and Dave Naldrett have reopened the general store on the West Saanich Road and while they are stocking modern day items inside they want to restore the outside to its old charm and decorate the inside with memorabilia.

The store has had a long list of owners, some of whom are well known on the pneinsula. Freeman was the architect, building the store for the McColloughs. Other owners have been Sikes, Davidson, Durrance (15 years), Helen Oldfield, Maddu Cottingham, Wes and Doris Dejardan, Harvey Gurn and Tom and Nell Merritt who sold it to the Naldretts.

Dave Naldrett, a cable splicer with B.C. Tel, has set a gruelling pace for himself and his wife. They are open from 7:30 a.m. to midnight seven days a week.

"There is no other store on the peninsula to serve people late at night and we want to fill that gap."

That's quite a chore for a couple who "saw the beautiful verandah and bought it . . . with the store attached.

15 Qualify In First Aid

Fifteen Saanich peninsula residents have qualified for St. John Ambulance certificates in senior first aid after evening training classes sponsored by the Saanich school board.

Successful were: Jeffrey Beddoes, Joan Beddoes, Chris Benson, Lyn Benson, Betty Gordon, Janet Grordin, Linda Hunt, Diana Inouye, Wayne King, Margaret Leahy, Peter Metcalfe, Gillian Pepper, Colin Ruffles, Lenore Smith, and Margaret White.

Centre Caters to 'Recycled' People

By PETER MEDWID
Times Staff

What is a neighborhood house and what does it do?

If it's the grey building in Vic West it's open from 9 a.m. to 10 p.m. seven days a week.

"A lot of people, including those who live in this area, don't really know what is going on," says centre director Pat Griffin.

Started in 1969 with a day care centre and offices, the centre now caters to 1,000 "recycled" people a week. This represents about 200 children and teen-agers and 50 senior citizens who use the facilities and take part in the programs.

The city of Victoria owns the house located next to Banfield Park and the sponsoring group, the Vic West Development Association, pays taxes and upkeep.

Money comes from the department of human resources with special projects funded through Local Initiative and Opportunity for Youth grants. Griffin has been director the past four years.

"I had just graduated from University of Victoria and was going to take law. I took a job as a street worker during the summer and just stayed on."

Recently the staff, which consists of five working with 20 students in alternative education and four who do the remainder of the programs, held a retreat to reorganize and come up with better programs.

"Most of our programs develop themselves ... there was a need and we meet that need," says Griffin in pointing to the success of the alternative education program and the start of the "street worker" program Friday and Saturday nights.

"What we are trying to do is reach the kids who do not come to the centre. They hang out in front of stores or at the two parks.

"Whoever is on night duty will make the rounds and if they can get the kids to come to the centre, that's okay; if they can't, then they'll talk to them and help them anyway we can."

What goes on inside?

During the day the biggest program is alternative education which has three components: helping students on the regular school program, those taking correspondence courses and those who have been out of school two or three years doing basic communication skills along with math.

For senior citizens at Sunset and Banfield Lodge, the centre works with Joy Trail from the View Royal Community Centre in organizing bus tours; keeping the residents informed and up to date on legislation; shopping trips and, with the teen-agers along, showing films.

And the centre helps with referrals and information for anyone in the area who needs help.

During the afternoon there are five groups: boys from 12 to 18 years who are primarily concerned with life skills and recreational programs. They are expected to "put something back into the community" and at present are painting the day care centre; girls of the same age group and one for the six to 12-year age group.

A Wheels Club with their own officers meet once a week and on weekends go for trail rides. There is also a special projects group for working on the centre itself, repairing and painting.

The evening program includes:

Monday — The use of the Victoria Boys and Girls Club pottery and crafts rooms, floor hockey; once a month 16 teen-agers travel to William Head Penitentiary to discuss problems with inmates. (Prisoners in turn help with the programs at the centre through the prison pass system.) There are also guitar lessons.

Tuesday — This is for arts and crafts and tien-agers are building two sailboats in the basement of the centre. One is almost complete.

Wednesday — An unstructured gym program which attracts 70 to 100 children a night.

Thursday — Outings to the breakwater for night fishing, Goldstream Park or to dress rehearsals of Bastion Theatre.

Friday — A drop-in night for coffee and to listen to live folk singers. Once a month there is a cultural night where the teen-agers do such things as dressing in Mexican costumes and eating Mexican food.

Saturday — Film nights, and if there are two films there may be a "showing" in one of the homes for up to six. Equipment is from the Indian Friendship Centre and the centre supplies the popcorn.

Sunday — It's the "quiet" day of the week and small groups may go to the Folklore Centre.

SHE'S NOT YOUR TYPICAL GRANNY

DRESDEN, Ont. (CP) — Alta Neaves, 82, of Dresden is not your typical storybook grandmother.

Although she has lived on her 350-acre farm since 1919, she began to travel 14 years ago when her husband died.

Since then, she has been on every continent except Antarctica.

However, she does not travel as a tourist, looking at churches and historical sites, but prefers talking to farmers and studying agriculture of other regions.

She has gone to China, Russia, Yugoslavia, Poland and many other countries.

Her sons Gordon and Mac run the farm, raising cattle and growing corn, wheat and soybeans.

"They never listen to me," said Mrs. Neaves. "The men do as they like and when I tell them what I've seen in China or Russia or how they're growing wheat in some country and making a success of it, they listen for the moment, but that's as far as it goes."

Her tours are mostly arranged by the Ontario Federation of Agriculture. She said she has learned a great deal about farming which she knew before only from the Ontario point of view.

Women's liberation does not apply on the farms, she said.

"I used to do my share out on the farm helping to bring in the hay and my husband used to come in after working all day and help me do the dishes.

"They do the same in China, too, you know. If a hole has to be dug for a post you'll see 10 people doing it and you'll notice five of them are women.

"People are surprised at this, but right here on the Ontario farm it's the same way."

Welch Medical Report

There is apparently so much misinformation about the nutritional adequacy of diets in general and vegetarian diets in particular that the U.S. National academy of Science has a committee on the subject. Appropriately, it carries the unequivocal title of the "Committee on Nutritional Misinformation."

A recent summary of the committee's views on the nutritional adequacy of vegetarian diets emphasizes that the critical question concerning any diet is whether or not it supplies protein in adequate amounts and of sufficiently high "quality."

"High-quality" proteins mean those which contain eight of the 20 amino acids that the body cannot make for itself and are essential constituents of body proteins.

Protein food of animal arigin contain these eight "essential" amino acids in adequate amounts and are classified as "high-quality" proteins.

Cereal and vegetable proteins, on the other hand, are low in one or another of the eight required amino acids and therefore are sources of "low-quality" proteins, when eaten separately.

If, however, a variety of cereals and vegetables are included in the diet, they tend to balance one another, and the supply of high-quality protein can usually be achieved.

Vegetarian diets based entirely on plant-food sources are designated as totally vegetarian. When dairy products are added, such diets are called "lactovegetarian." With the addition of eggs, the designation is "lactro-ovo-vegetarian."

When milk and eggs are included in the vegetarian diet, there is little risk of nutritional inadequacy.

When only plant sources are eaten, great care must be taken to consume a varied mixture of cereals and vegetables.

Individual grain and vegetable protein sources vary in the amount and number of essential amino acids they provide. Therefore, sufficiently various combinations are advised because they allow the separate ingredients to supplement one another. Appropriate mixtures can thus be essentially equal in nutrient value to "high-quality," animal protein food.

It is also possible, however, that even well-balanced diets restricted to plant sources alone are likely to provide only marginal levels of calcium, iron and certain of the B vitamins, which, of course, are adequately available when milk and eggs are added to the diet.

Other sources are dark green, leafy vegetables and fortified soy milk.

A study in 1954 by Drs. M. G. Harding and F. G. Stare found no evidence of malnutrition in a group of total vegetarians and lacto-ovo-vegetarians, with the single exception that vitamin B 12 was found to be low in the total-vegetarian group. Such a lack over a period of time can cause serious anemia.

For those who insist on excluding animal protein from their diet, the best safety factor seems to be to pick as widely and as variously from the rest of nature's provender as you can. Make a real study of it, if you want to stay out of trouble.

Dreamland Just A Loud Snore Away

DEAR ABBY: My husband died last winter, and ever since, I have had a terrible time falling asleep. I don't want to get into the habit of taking sleeping pills.

I recently visited my sister, and the sound of her husband's snoring in the next room put me to sleep instantly! Every night I was there I slept like a baby. I soon realized that what I'd been missing all these months was the sound of my beloved late husband's snoring. It must have given me a sense of security and well being.

I suppose it is ridiculous to ask if there is some place I can buy a record or a tape of a man snoring. But that could be the answer to my problem. Can you help me? — Sleepless nights

DEAR SLEEPLESS: Ask your sister's husband to record a long snoring session on a cassette. All you'll need is something on which to play it, and you're off to dreamland!

DEAR ABBY: My son, a brilliant, ambitious honor student, has just announced that he is dropping out of law school (in his second year) to get a job so he can marry a girl he has gotten pregnant.

This young man was told the facts of life early so there is no excuse for such an "accident." Nowadays, no girl has to get pregnant unless she wants to — or is awfully dumb. And Abby, this girl is far from dumb — she's 21 and a college dropout.

I can't help but feel that the girl used my son to escape from a family sistuation she found intolerable.

I know I can't prevent the marriage, but I would like to know how I can honestly accept this girl when I feel she used my son and cost him his lifelong dream — to become a lawyer. — Crushed in Colorado

DEAR CRUSHED: Unless you want to alienate your son completely, you had better "accept" the girl — and graciously.

If your son is as brilliant and ambitious as you say he is, he'll find a way to resume his education and realize his lifelong dream.

DEAR ABBY: I am anti-trousers for females. So much so that I refuse to extend any gentlemanly courtesies to a woman who is wearing trousers. (I won't hold a door open for her, allow her to go ahead of me or help her with her chair.)

If I get a waitress who is wearing trousers, and doing a good job, she gets NO tip. If she does an excellent job, she gets only a five per cent tip, but I won't go back to that restaurant. A waitress wearing a skirt (length unimportant) gets anywhere from 15 per cent to 25 per cent tip, depending upon the service she gives me.

My wife wears trousers once in a while. So do my daughters-in-law, but if they don't wear dresses in public, I refuse to go along. And when I don't go, they have no one to pick up the tab.

I've heard all the excuses women use for wearing pants instead of skirts — "they're more comfortable, hide the runs in my stockings, keep my legs warm in winter," etc. — but I still hate 'em. — Prefers skirts

DEAR PREFERS: To each his own, but I think you're unfair to penalize a waitress just because the legs she rushes around on to serve you happen to be in trousers!

DEAR ABBY: Like a lot of other people, I never thought I'd be writing to Dear Abby, but I have something to say.

I lived with my husband for a year before we were married because we both wanted to be sure we were right for each other in every way.

I know the heartache it causes parents who have trouble accepting that sort of thing, but believe me, divorce, which is dirty and painful 99 per cent of the time, is even harder on them. I know. I've been there, too.

I never slept with my first husband until we were married, and that marriage was a nightmare. We dated for three years before we were engaged, but we didn't really know each other.

I don't think kids who have lived together should expect their parents to give them a big wedding and honeymoon, but I don't believe a wedding can make a marriage.

Living together may be no guarantee that the marriage will succeed, but at least both parties will know what they are getting into.

It may not be the answer for everyone, but I wish people would quit condemning those who think it's best for them.

I've been married for two years and have an adorable 4-month-old baby. NEVER BEEN HAPPIER.

DEAR NEVER: When you assume that living together for a year will teach both parties "what they are getting into," you're baying at the moon. A successful marriage is made of three parts; luck, patience and effort. I know of no sure shortcuts.

DEAR ABBY: What is your opinion of people who wear dark glasses indoors? (I don't mean "tinted"—I mean DARK, which makes it impossible to see their eyes.)

I have a friend who comes to visit me, and she never removes her dark glasses the entire time she is here. I like to make eye contact with people I talk with and I find this very frustrating.

Am I being picky? I have never made my feelings known to her.

Should I mention it? — WONDERING

DEAR WONDERING: People wear dark glasses indoors for a variety of reasons. Some do so because they have an eye problem. On the chance that this is the reason, it would be a kindness to refrain from mentioning it.

Rape Murderer Hanged In Tokyo

TOKYO (UPI) — Kiyoshi Okubo, 41, who lured eight young women to rape-murder deaths by promising them careers as movie stars, was hanged Thursday in Tokyo's Kosuge Prison.

Okubo was arrested May, 1971, in Gunma province, adjoining Tokyo, where most of the killings took place. Many of the victims were teenagers, taken in by Okubo's big car and his story that he was a movie producer.

Kamloops, Mill Blamed

KAMLOOPS (CP) — Effluent discharge from city sewage lagoons and the Weyerhaeuser pulp mill are prime sources of pollution in the Thompson River, the Thompson River Task Force said Thursday.

The 15-page document summarizes data collected by joint federal-provincial study teams between the fall of 1973 and spring of 1975.

"It is the collective judgment of the task force that data indicates increases in algae downstream of Kamloops Lake are a result of increased nutrient discharges from Weyerhaeuser Canada Ltd. and the City of Kamloops.

"A major reduction of phosphorous from these pollution sources is the only option available to reduce algae downstream of Kamloops Lake," the report said.

The growth of algae destroys the appearance of the river and may unfavorably alter biological processes downstream.

Poor water color, fish tainting and foam in back eddies of the river were linked with the discharge of pulp mill effluent.

During the shutdown of the pulp mill from July to October, 1975, (during a pulpworkers' strike) there was a marked change in the appearance of the lower Thompson River.

POLICE LOOK FOR PLANE

ABBOTSFORD (CP) — Municipal police were investigating Thursday the disappearance of a Cessna 210 aircraft, valued at about $30,000.

Police said the plane's disappearance from the Abbotsford airport was reported by its owner, Jack Ingram, of Calgary.

Ingram said he flew here from Calgary Tuesday and when he returned to his plane Wednesday it was gone.

The control tower at the airport has no record of the plane leaving.

Police said the theft of a car from the airport Wednesday and the plane's disappearance might be connected.

Cut Voted Down

NANAIMO (CP) — School board rejected Wednesday a proposal to cut the $2,000 honorarium for nine trustees by $200 this year, a reversal of a decision made in 1975. The public schools act allows trustees a maximum honorarium of $2,000 a year.

No Blame Attached

LADYSMITH (CP) — A coroner's jury Wednesday didn't place any blame on the Dec. 21, 1975, death of Peter Steven Baszo, 13, of Cassidy, who died when his head caught in an arm of a front loader on a construction site at Cassidy. The jury made four recommendations to the provincial government and the Workers' Compensation Board.

Man Charged

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP) — James Lewis, 36, of Merritt, was charged Thursday in provincial court with murder punishable by life imprisonment in connection with a kettle-gomb explosion in October, 1972, which killed a city couple.

Police Chief Rod Keary said Tuesday that a suspect was arrested in Merritt and New Westminster detectives were questioning him there.

Gurmail Singh Sidhu, 23, and his wife, Parmjeet, 18, were killed Oct. 23, 1972, when a bomb apparently placed inside an electric kettle exploded when Mrs. Sidhu plugged in the kettle.

Manager Dies

BURNABY (CP) — Harvey Hogarth, manager of the Sheraton Villa beer parlor died in hospital early Thursday of wounds suffered in a shooting incident at the hotel last Nov. 12.

Hogarth had been shot three times after a man entered the beer parlor and pulled out a .45-calibre pistol and began shooting.

In the same incident, bartender Dean Jones was shot and killed. The shooting took place after a man had been refused service.

Dennis Squire Hailes, 45, of Victoria, has been charged with murder punishable by life in prison in the Jones death.

Long Prison Terms

VANCOUVER (CP) — County Court Judge Patricia Proudfoot Wednesday sentenced two men to long prison terms after they were convicted for the theft of $330 from two men from Moose Jaw. Mark Hanson Owens, 21, was jailed 10 years and Dennis George Magness, 20, to six years. The robbery took place during the purchase of some marijuana.

Conditional Discharges For Traffic Controllers

RICHMOND (CP) — Twenty five assistant air traffic controllers pleaded guilty Thursday to participating in an illegal strike and were given conditional discharges.

Provincial Court Judge W. E. Campbell freed the 25 on condition they abide by their collective agreement, keep the peace and be of good behavior for a year.

The assistant controllers work at Vancouver International Airport and walked off the job last October, contrary to their collective agreement.

Defence counsel asked for conditional discharges and the request was not opposed by the federal justice department.

SUBSIDY COUNTERS SUBSIDY

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — Howard Lloyd, Social Credit MLA for Fort George, said Thursday that if northern motorists lose their special discount under new Insurance Corp. of British Columbia rates, then they shouldn't have to subsidize B.C. PM Leading Canada Astray

Lord Thomson Says

TORONTO — Lord Thomson of Fleet says Prime Minister Trudeau, his government, and growing socialism are the main factors discouraging private enterprise in Canada. "Trudeau and his men in Ottawa are holding back development in this country," Thomson said. "They are responsible for less and less private enterprise here. I don't think he, or any of his men in Ottawa, have any experience in business, and I feel any Canadian prime minister should have that sort of experience. He and the creeping socialism are leading this country astray. Unfortunately, my party, the Conservative party, is not strong enough yet to step in."

MONTEREY, Calif. — Oleg Cassini said Thursday there was "some bit of truth" in a report he had dated Grace Kelly and wanted to marry her before she became Princess Grace of Monaco. British jounalist Gwen Robyns said in her book Princess Grace that Joseph Kennedy, father of President Kennedy, dissuaded Miss Kelly from marrying Cassini because he had been divorced and she was a Roman Catholic forbidden from marrying a divorced person.

TORONTO — James Gilmore, responsible for the conversion of CBC television facilities to color from black and white, has retired after 37 years in Canadian broadcasting. Gilmore, born in Regina in 1917, began his career in Vancouver working at private radio stations. He joined the CBC in Vancouver as a production assistant in 1941.

WASHINGTON — The U.S. Senate intelligence committee's staff has advised the panel against calling Frank Sinatra as a witness because he knows nothing about CIA murder plots and his testimony might reopen the touchy issue of John Kennedy's love life, committee sources say.

HAYS, Kan. — Judge Tom Scott has refused to award damages to either owner in a dog paternity suit. Thomas Kinderknecht initiated the suit charging that a neighbor's dog had leaped a fence and mated with Kinderknecht's dog, resulting in an unwanted mixed-breed litter of six puppies. Kinderknecht sought $110 plus post-natal expenses and puppy support from the neighbor, Kenneth Wolfe. Wolfe countersued, asking for a $200 stud fee and another $100 for incidentals. Kinderknecht was assessed the $5 court costs.

DETROIT — New Jersey teamster Stephen Andretta bounced in and out of a federal grand jury room 27 times Thursday, then returned to prison to await more questions about the disappearance of former teamster boss James Hoffa. The witness, jailed 43 days ago for refusing to answer one question, appeared before the jury Thursday to tell what he knew of Hoffa's July 30 disappearance from a suburban Detroit restaurant. But he usually stayed in the room no more than a minute. After almost every question he left to seek advice from his attorney.

WASHINGTON — Mark Spitz still will have to shave regularly if he hopes to keep familiar the face the 1972 Olympics (and TV ads) made famous — but, officially, he won't be removing his whiskers for Schick any more. Schick has announced in a terse, one-sentence statement that the company and the winner of seven gold medals in swimming at Munich have agreed to end Spitz's hefty $500,000 contract. The company said it is dropping the use of athletes in commercials and is no longer "sports-oriented."

WICHITA — Ruth Cates, the mother of Siamese twin girls born Nov. 7, has been missing four days, and her husband says publicity about the twins may have prompted her to run away. The babies are scheduled to be separated Monday.

Emergency Operator Heard Killings

DETROIT (AP) — A $6-million suit has been filed in Wayne County circuit court, contending police were negligent when an emergency operator received a call for help and listened as an elderly couple were murdered.

The suit, filed by the heirs of Mr. and Mrs. Clifton Ledbetter, names the operator, responding policemen, Chief Philip Tannian, the city and the police depart as defenders. It says a quick response may have saved the couple's lives.

Lawyer Frank Bocker said the Ledbetters were killed because they relied upon the 911 system.

People in trouble may dial 911 for emergency help.

In the December 1974 incident, the operator listened for six minutes and heard the shots that killed the Ledbetters.

She later said she thought the shots were hammering.

Police took 25 minutes after being notified to arrive at the scene.

Police said the 911 system was changed after the Ledbetters were killed and operators now receive better training.

Three men were convicted of second-degree murder and sent to prison for the killings.

For Whom the Bell Tolled

BARBERTON, Ohio — Two youths who got together to call their sweethearts spent more time at it than they planned.

Bob Devore and Bob Stump managed to squeeze into the same telephone booth. The door slipped off its track and wouldn't open, however. Fortunately, a phone was close at hand. An operator notified police. Eventually, firemen pried the door open to release the pair 45 minutes later.

Survival in Nuclear Age Subject of UVic Lecture

A public lecture series by Dr. William Epstein, a leading authority on nuclear arms and disarmament, is among courses and programs offered this year by the division of continuing education at UVic.

Most courses, open to all residents of the Victoria area, begin the week of Jan. 25.

Epstein is a visiting professor at UVic and a special consultant to the secretary-general of the United Nations. His lectures, beginning Feb. 4, will deal with survival in the nuclear age.

Epstein will discuss arms control and disarmament and the problems of nuclear weapon proliferation. Continuous identification with the Canadian interest and opportunities for Canada to play a role will be emphasized in the series of eight addresses.

For many years director of the disarmament division of the UN Secretariat, Epstein is currently finishing The Last Chance, a book on the problems of nuclear weapon proliferation.

A program in adult physical fitness features diagnostic testing of each participant. The course will be divided into two sections, with one section catering to those who feel they are below average in terms of fitness and the other more demanding section for those who consider themselves average or above average.

The course includes a variety of fitness activities and use of selected recreational facilities in the McKinnon Centre.

For the first time UVic is offering three courses dealing with aspects of law, in co-operation with the Faculty of Law which opened in September.

There is a special program titled Woman and the Law. This is a study of women as seen in different legal systems and will include consideration of the social and political implications of women's legal status.

A special one-day seminar, Jan. 24 will deal with Health Sciences and the Law. This is being offered in co-operation with the Faculty of Law and the Interprovincial Health Science Committee on Continuing Education.

The course has been specifically designed for members of the professions of dentistry, dietetics, medicine, nursing, occupational therapy, pharmacy, physiotherapy and social welfare.

Also for the first time UVic, in co-operation with the Department of Chemistry, is offering a course for those without an extensive background in chemistry. (The series of lectures is designed for people who wish to understand the chemical basis of many topics of current interest such as pesticides, drugs and food additives.

A special series is being offered on the Olympic Games which will explore the role of sports as a social, cultural and political phenomenon with special reference to the context of the modern Olympic games and Canada's role.

There is a special self-exploration seminar designed to assist women who wish to plan for future employment, further education or volunteer work.

There are courses ranging from the collection and cultivation of rhododendrons to Dante's Divine Comedy. There are courses in film-making and several beginner's and advanced language courses as well as continuing professional education.

Two educational tours, to Greece and Italy, are scheduled for May.

Information about registration, courses offered and fees is available from the Division of Continuing Education at 477-6911, Local 802, 803, or 804.

Manager's Daughter Sentenced

BARRANQUILLA, Colombia (AP) — Kelly Ann Martin, 22, daughter of New York Yankees' baseball manager Billy Martin, has been sentenced to three years in prison by a military court which found her guilty of drug trafficking.

Miss Martin's lawyer said today he will appeal the sentence because he believes Miss Martin is innocent.

She was arrested Nov. 16 at the airport in this northern Colombia city. Police said she was carrying 450 grams of cocaine between her legs as she prepared to board a flight to Miami. Miss Martin said she was carrying the drug under duress.

A military court — acting under a form of martial law that now exists in Colombia — found Miss Martin guilty Tuesday. The military prosecutor had demanded a six-year sentence.

Miss Martin has proclaimed her innocence throughout and has refused to reveal the name of the person or persons who gave her the drug.

She will remain in a women's jail here while a judge studies her appeal.

Floods Claim Four

JAKARTA (Reuter) — Four persons were killed in floods which affected about 100,000 residents of Jakarta and surrounding areas, city officials said Thursday. Three of the dead were drowned, while a fourth died in a dysentery outbreak which struck about 150 persons.

Weekend Wail Waits Whistlers, Warblers

Do you whistle in your bath? At your workbench? In your laundry room or kitchen?

If so and if you can do warbles, twitters, shrill calls, mating calls or sweet notes, maybe you should get into the contest highlighting The Belfrey's Open House on Saturday.

For a half hour, arranged as a tribute to Victoria's whistlers, the warblers and trillers will be vying with each other in a mood of fun and rivalry.

Just Whistlin' will take place the evening of the 14-hour festival that will introduce Victorians to their newly renovated cultural centre at Fernwood and Gladstone.

Anyone requiring further details, or wishing to register or audition should just whistle 385-6815.

The open house day begins at 10 a.m. and will provide a continuous program, interspersed with intervals for just looking around at various exhibits until midnight.

For those who would like to time their visit to coincide with specific events, here is the program:

At 10 a.m. the film, Tales of Beatrix Potter by England's Royal Ballet, followed by a 40-minute concert by the Pacific Wind Quintet.

Senior students of the Conservatory of Music will give 40-minute recitals at 12:50 p.m., in mid-afternoon and at 8:10 p.m.

Four Seasons Musical Theatre will perfrom Gilbert and Sullivan's Patience and Susan North, and Brian Benn with Arne Sahlen at the piano will do a one act comic opera, Telemann's Pimpinone. These are at 2 p.m. and 3 p.m. respectively.

At 4 p.m. Kaleidoscope Theatre will present a children's play entitled Oriental Legend. The Folklore Society and the Intercultural Association occupy the time from 5 p.m. to 7:10 p.m. and this will be followed by poetry readings by P. K. Page and Ken Mitchell.

Camosun College Theatre will provide a performance at 9:10 p.m. and after the whistling contest at 10:10, the Victoria Youth Theatre will perform a short play.

Open house will end with Folklore Society presenting Dan Costain and Dorothy-Anne Haug in a medley of favorite folk melodies.

Jolt Ahead For Parking Offenders

Victoria's parking offenders are about to be jolted out of their mood of careless rapture.

To plug a loopholt in the processing system, which has allowed hundreds of ticketed motorists to escape scot-free, City Hall has hired a temporary clerk who will tackle a five-month backlog of search lists of unpaid tickets.

Court summonses will be issued after the lists are submitted to the motor vehicle department.

A city official explained that the breakdown in the system was at the city's end, and not connected with computer problems in the motor vehicle department, which had been blamed about a year ago for causing the lost revenue.

"The lists somehow were never prepared to do down there," he said.

The clerk will continue her job until the backlog is cleared up.

"What it amounts to is that it's costing us about $40 a day to recover $500 to $600 a day in tickets for processing," said the official.

Drillship Sold

OSLO (AFP) — The Norwegian drillship Havdrill has been sold to Canadian interests at a "satisfactory price," the Norwegian owners said Thursday. They declined to reveal the name of the buyer or the purchase price. Havdrill is one of the most advanced of its kind in the world drill fleet.

Winnipeg Top In Price Jump

OTTAWA (CP) — Retail prices rose more sharply in Winnipeg last year than in any of the 14 major cities surveyed regularly by Statistics Canada.

Vancouver and Toronto had the smallest yearly price rises. Separate figures are not compiled for Victoria but prices in the city are considered to be the same as, or higher than, Vancouver.

Consumer prices in Winnipeg rose 11.3 per cent in 1975, and were up one-half of one per cent in December, the government statistical agency reported Thursday.

But in Vancouver, where a price freeze was operating since October, retail prices rose over-all last year by 8.8 per cent. They were up one-tenth of one per cent in December.

The 1975 increase in Toronto was nine per cent while the December rise was two-tenths of one per cent.

On a city-by-city basis, the price changes for the full year and for December were: Halifax, up 11.2 per cent for 1975 and six-tenths of one per cent in December; Saskatoon, Sask., 10.6 per cent and one-tenth of one per cent; Saint John, N.B., 10.5 per cent and three-tenths of one per cent; Thunder Bay, Ont., 10.3 per cent and five-tenths of one per cent; Calgary, 10.3 per cent and four-tenths of one per cent; St. John's, Nfld., 10.2 per cent and two-tenths of one per cent; Regina, 9.9 per cent, but down one-tenth of one per cent in December; Edmonton, 9.8 per cent, no change in December; Montreal, 9.7 per cent, no change in December; Ottawa, 9.4 per cent and four-tenths of one per cent; Quebec City, 9.3 per cent, but down one-tenth of one per cent in December.

Wives Classed As Employees

TORONTO (CP) — Wives are their husbands' employees under Canadian law, according to Edward Ryan, a former family law consultant to the Canadian Law Reform Commission.

Ryan told a public forum on divorce that wives are unlikely to become full partners in marriage until a change is made in the concept that the duty to provide money is conditional on the satisfactory performance of the domestic function.

Science has recognized that it is impossible to say one spouse is at fault for the breakdown of a husband-wife relationship.

Ryan said in a panel discussion on whether fault should be considered in granting a divorce and support payments.

Other panel members were Allan Leal, chairman of the Ontario Law Reform Commission, Prof. Mary Eberts of the University of Toronto law faculty, provincial court Judge David Steinberg of Hamilton and John Clement, former provincial attorney-general.

Ryan said the Ontario and federal law reform commissions proposed changes in support laws, and criticized the Ontario commission for suggesting that the concept of fault be retained.

QUE. TO CONTINUE OLYMPIC AID BID

MONTREAL (CP) — Undeterred by a curt rebuff from Ottawa, Quebec Premier Robert Bourassa has served notice he will continue to press the federal government for tax rebates to help pay for the Montreal Olympics.

Just hours after Prime Minister Trudeau asserted that Ottawa has "no intention" of paying the Olympics deficit, Premier Bourassa issued a statement saying he is convinced the "immense majority of Quebecers" will support his continued demands for Games aid.

While that duel went on, new questions were raised about the Quebec government's management of the Games when it was revealed that the Olympics installations board — the provincial agency which controls construction at the main stadium site — has been given special powers toward certain contracts without tender.

And through it all, officials in Montreal were kept busy denying the latest report of construction troubles — a charge that new cracks in support beams might make the stadium roof unsafe.

The Quebec-Ottawa confrontation began earlier this week when Bourassa told a Montreal television audience the federal government should return $200 million in federal taxes to Quebec.

Prime Minister Trudeau, asked in Ottawa if he favors putting more federal money into the Games, told reporters that "Quebec is committed to paying" and said Premier Bourassa should be "mature enough to honor his commitments."

Meanwhile, it was revealed the Quebec government has passed an order in council giving the Olympics installations board power to award contracts exceeding $250,000 without tender "when there is such an urgency for work to be done that any delay would be prejudicial to the public interest."

Contracts of more than $1 million will require approval by the provincial treasury board, while contracts exceeding $5 million will have to be approved by cabinet.

Nick Auf der Maur, a Montreal opposition city councillor, denounced the order in council, saying it represents a continuation of the policy followed by the city with "disastrous consequences."

Pulp Mills' Secret Deal Charged

SAULT STE. MARIE (CP) — Cyril Symes, New Democratic Party member of Parliament for Sault Ste. Marie, says four major Canadian pulp and paper producers have secretly agreed to help each other during strikes.

Symes, a member of an NDP committee that toured three Northern Ontario communities to study the effect of the seven-month pulp and paper industry strike, says union officials recently gave the NDP a copy of the alleged agreement.

The agreement was signed March 1, 1973, by Abitibi Provincial Paper, Eddy Paper Co., Domtar Pulp and Paper Products Ltd. and Rolland Paper Co., he added.

He said the agreement shows that any company whose operations are curtailed by a strike can effect the others to ship paper to meet market demand.

"It indicates to me that the companies are not interested in bargaining in good faith," Symes said.

The federal government should investigate, he added.

Anti-Inflation May Last Longer

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP) — Senator Ray Perrault has suggested the federal government may have to extend part of its anti-inflation program beyond the scheduled three-year deadline.

The senator also hinted at the possibility of a continuing government watch on the growth of large corporations which, he said, affect the small entrepreneur.

In a speech that posed many questions, but provided few answers, Perrault also said:

The free market system was not working well when inflation controls were introduced;

Canadians must become less materialistic and strive to achieve a new set of values;

The government's anti-inflation program is not intended as a blueprint for a new society;

If all sectors of society exercise restraint, inflation eventually will be whipped.

"It will be a long uphill slog," he told the New Westminster Chamber of Commerce. "But as the program bites more and more deeply, inflation eventually will be whipped."

Meanwhile, in Toronto, Ontario Treasurer Darcy McKeough lashed out Thursday at recent remarks by Trudeau, saying they have caused confusion, mistrust and anger in Canada's business community.

In a speech to the Toronto society of financial analysts, he said Trudeau's comments about a new society have "caused a hell of a lot of uncertainty."

Canada does not need philosophical musings to solve the harsh, economic realities it now confronts, he said.

Governments and business must do a better selling job in convincing people that profit is not a dirty word — that a healthy economy needs investment now more than ever before, he added.

The cure for inflation is higher productivity in all areas and the key to productivity is investment, he said.

Teacher Protection

OTTAWA (FP) — Discussions will soon begin with the provinces to devise ways of giving Canadian academics more protection from the influx of foreign teachers, Manpower and Immigration Minister Robert Andras said Thursday.

Canadian postgraduates should be assured a fair chance at university teaching jobs before giving the jobs to outsiders, he said.

"The influx of university teachers from abroad gained momentum with the rapid expansion of our universities a decade ago," he said.

"At that time, there were insufficient numbers of Canadian postgraduates available to fill teaching vacancies in universities. The concern is that Canada may now have a surplus of postgraduates."

Introducing the first banking package for customers 60 and over that guarantees a minimum 10% bonus on True Savings interest.

Firstbank Senior Plan.™

It all started right here.

In 1969, Bank of Montreal became the first bank in Canada to introduce a plan expressly designed to assist senior citizens. We knew then something had to be done to help combat the effects of inflation for those on fixed incomes.

So we lowered our service charges to everyone age 65 and over. We hoped that other service-oriented companies would follow suit. And they did.

Now we have updated our earlier plan. We've lowered the age of eligibility to 60. And designed a comprehensive package of banking services for our customers 60 and over. It's called the Firstbank Senior Plan. And it's absolutely free. Here is how it can help you.

The guaranteed 10% minimum bonus.

There are special plans at other banks for customers 60 and over. But there's a big difference between what they offer and what we offer. The difference is that only Bank of Montreal offers you a guaranteed 10% minimum bonus on your Firstbank True Savings Account interest for the year ending October 31, 1976.

For example, if the interest credited to your Firstbank Savings Account during the Bank year ending October 31, 1976, amounts to $200, the guaranteed 10% interest bonus will bring your total interest to $220.

However, if major competitors should decide to pay more, your Firstbank Senior Plan bonus will be increased accordingly.

Either way, you are always protected. Because your guaranteed bonus interest can never dip below the 10% minimum. And remember, interest up to $1,000 is completely tax free.

Three for free.

Chequing: The Firstbank Senior Plan entitles you to free chequing. You can write as many cheques as you like on your Firstbank Chequing or Regular Savings account with no service charge whatsoever.

Utility Bills: You are also entitled to pay your own utility bills conveniently at any Bank of Montreal branch with no service charge.

Travellers Cheques: You can buy as many as you wish at any branch without paying commission on them.

In Addition: The Firstbank Senior Plan entitles you to an annual reduction on a Bank of Montreal Safety Deposit Box or Safekeeping Service. For example, the most popular-sized box will rent for only $4.50 per year.

Term Deposits that pay a monthly income.

If you want to earn the highest monthly interest on your savings, a Monthly Income Deposit Receipt is an excellent investment. You need an initial deposit of $5,000. We will arrange terms to suit your own plans —from two months to six years.

You will receive interest payments on your deposit each month. We will credit your account, or mail you a cheque if you prefer.

In this way, you can supplement your monthly savings while your initial deposit remains intact.

Your card.

As a Firstbank Senior Plan customer you will receive a personal identification card. This card will serve as your introduction to Bank of Montreal branches across Canada, ensuring you the same Plan benefits in those branches.

In total, the Firstbank Senior Plan entitles you to six convenient, money-saving Bank services. Plus an identification card. And it's all free. All you have to do is apply.

So take advantage of this uniqu banking Plan that has been specially designed for people 60 and over.

Stop by your Bank of Montreal branch and have a talk with us about our Firstbank Senior Plan. You'll like what you hear. After all, we started it all.

And we'll be glad to arrange your Firstbank Senior Plan for you.

Let's talk.

MARK TRAIL

The Bridge Expert

By FRED KARPIN

One of the tournament directors of the American Contract Bridge League is Harry Goldwater of New York City. In his long career, he has been called upon to make many rulings. The most frequent type of infraction he has encountered is "the lead out of turn."

When a defender makes a lead out of turn, the declarer has many options available to him (to accept the lead, to decline the lead, to forbid the leader's partner from ever making a lead in that suit, etc., etc.)

Some years ago, Goldwater came up with a rule to govern declarer's approach in situations where a defender makes a lead out of turn. It has since become known as "Goldwater's Rule," which is this:

"Accept the lead out of turn, for if the errant leader doesn't know who's on lead, then he probably doesn't know what to lead. So, in all probability, he has made a lead that is favorable to declarer."

Today's deal features "Goldwater's Rule." The hand was played in the National Championships of 1975.

North-South were employing the Precision System in which an opening bid of one club shows 16 or more points. South's response of one no-trump showed a balanced hand containing 8-10 points.

Since South had bid no-trump first, he was the declarer. But East led the jack of hearts — an out-of-turn lead. Before making a decision as to how to handle the infraction, declarer wanted to know what the defenders' lead conventions were (what system of leads, if any, the defenders were employing). When West informed declarer that the jack might be the top of a sequence, the top of a doubleton, or from some combination as K-J-10, declarer said: "I guess this is a good time to apply 'Goldwater's Rule'."

So declarer accepted the lead, and the trick was won (in fourth position) with dummy's king. The spade ace was cashed next, after which the South hand was entered via the club queen. The 10 of hearts was then played, with the marked finesse being taken against West's queen. Thus foud heart tricks were made. Had declarer been forced to lead hearts himself, he would have made but three tricks.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

Astrological Forecast for Saturday, Jan. 24

By SYDNEY OMARR

ARIES (March 21 - April 19): Friends and money may not mix. Know it and act accordingly. One who flatters could have ulterior motive. Be specific about details. Get promises in writing. Don't fall prey to get-rich-quick scheme.

TAURUS (April 20 - May 20): Shakeup due in areas which include partnerships, legal agreements and arrangements. Partner or mate could respond in sudden or eccentric manner. Gemini, Virgo and Sagittarius persons could be involved. Get expert counsel where important documents are concerned.

GEMINI (May 21 - June 20): You may be surprised at response to recent request. Nothing is apt to be as previously thought or planned. Exult in aura of fresh air, new concepts, an overturning of stale concepts. Show that you are willing to be original, co-operative and part of future.

CANCER (June 21 - July 22): See through veils of obscurantism, pretense. Key now is to bring into focus your vast potential. One who double talks may be testing you. Know it and insist on direct course to goal. Pisces is likely to be involved.

LEO (July 23 - Aug. 22): Nothing is apt to come easy—key is to recognize obstacles, including those in family circle, and deal with them in intelligent manner. You're asked to assume greater responsibility. Do so with time-limit proviso.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 - Sept. 22): Accent on quick changes, messages from relatives, short journeys, ideas which need time to develop. You finish rather than begin project. Aries, Libra figure in picutre. Your efforts receive more attention than in recent past.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 - Oct. 22): What sufficed in past will no longer do—you learn it and pay for it and can do something about it. Leo, Aquarius could be in picture. Stress creativity, independence, new starts, pioneering concepts.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 - Nov. 21): Cycle is such that you reconcile with older persons, understand property values and do something about emotional security. You get hunch which pays off—you also could reunite with "teacher."

SAGGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 - Dec. 21): What was a secret is revealed. Relative could be involved. Maintain balance and humor. Be flexible. Look beyond the immediate. Some of your best qualities surface. Personal magnetism enables you to win popularity contest.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 - Jan. 19): Accent on decision-making, especially where emotional involvements enter picture. Check fine print. Means what is said or written would have double meaning. Take nothing for granted and save yourself embarrassment, pain.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 - Feb. 18): You gain added recognition. Obstacles are overcome. Significant change occurs, clearing way for progress. Gemini, Virgo and Libra could be in picture. Be analytial. Discover reasons for happenings.

PISCES (Feb. 19 - March 20): You receive encouragement, aid with regard to a "special study." You gain in stature and are better able to articulate philosophical concepts. Long-range travel plans could also be on agenda.

IF JAN. 24 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you can use voice in teaching or drama capacity. You have unusual tastes and friends—you are unorthodox, diplomatic and probably have a "sweet tooth." Taurus, Libra persons play important roles in your life. May should be your most significant month of 1976. You'll travel more this year and social life will accelerate.

SOLUTION MONDAY

Fiddlers Here Sunday

Champion fiddlers from Seattle will give a concert Sunday, Jan. 25, sponsored by the Victoria Folklore Society, at Norway House, 1110 Hillside at 8 p.m.

Leading the Irish American Stringband is Frank Ferrel, winner of the B.C., Northwest regional and Washington State championships.

He is joined by Mark Graham and Mike Sanders who were members of the U.S. band which won the Harplager Beer World Fiddling championship for best group, in Ireland.

Mark is lead vocalist and also plays banjo, concertina and bodhran (Irish folk drumming). Mike also sings and plays guitar.

The Rotary Club of Colwood is sponsoring Leisurama '76 from April 30 to May 2.

This will feature recreational, leisure and outdoor equipment from many B.C. dealers and manufacturers and will be held in the Juan de Fuca Recreation centre.

Major door prize of a trailer and air trip to Reno will be part of the $1 entrance fee.

Cool, Light Top Priorities

The three longest lasting pot plants commonly received at Christmas are cyclamen, poinsettia and azalea. Each gives its quota of brilliant color during the normally dullest days of the winter — if we provide the care they need while they fulfill their mission in our heated homes

Cyclamen and azalea need a cool light window for continued flowering; an east window is good at this time of the year for early morning sun has not the heat of noon sun. On frosty nights it is helpful to stand a section of newspaper between the glass and plant to deflect the radiation of cold air. The generally cooler temperature near the window is otherwise quite acceptable to these two plants.

The azalea, in addition to moderate watering likes a moist air as well as a cool air. As with the rhododendrons outdoors, humidity is part of its natural environment. A daily mist spray with tepid water is beneficial.

Especially is this needed in the periods between flowering when leaves need to be kept healthy while developing more flower buds.

The moist air prevents the infestation of red spider-mite which you cannot see except by its effect of drying leaves and occasionally tiny webs. The spider-mite cannot live on plants in a humid atmosphere. Water the azalea thoroughly by soaking the soal occasionally, and not allowing it to become quite dry at any time

Cyclamens with their solid storage corms and succulent stems need more careful watering or they will rot away. Pour the tepid water in at the edge, on the soil, not over the corm where leaves and flower stems emerge.

When a cyclamen leaf yellows, it will usually pull off easily for its leaf then becomes soft and spongy. Flower stems should be taken off rather than letting them rot on the plant.

Kept at a cool temperature indoors, this means between 15 and 20 degs. C., cyclamens continue blooming until early summer. With this condition, a plant may need a cupful of water only once each week. A few drops of fertilizer (one without nitrogen) with the water will help to maintain bloom and general health of indoor cyclamens.

With poinsettias the story is different. These are semi tropical plants not producing more than one flowering a season.

The tiny yellowish flowers which formed as the bracts developed their color will either have already dropped off or will do so soon. This is quite normal.

The bract coloring and the healthy green leaves should remain attractive (in today's newer poinsettia varieties) until about the end of April. To do this, the plants need strong daylight with sunshine when possible, and a day temperature around 21 deg. C. Nights can be cooler to compare with their native Mexican environment. Draughts, of either cold air or hot air are likely to cause leaf drop.

Watering for poinsettias should be moderate at all times. Moderation consists of a thorough soaking with tepid water, draining of the surplus which is not retained in the pot after one hour, and not watering again until the topsoil is dry. A six-inch diameter pot might need this treatment every six or seven days.

Following these few guidelines, gift plants should remain healthily beautiful for another three months.

LOST A HOME BECAUSE YOURS NEVER SOLD?

Don't take the chance of this happening again. Phone me first as I am able to arrange "NO INTEREST" interim financing to qualified home buyers. It is a simple straightforward plan.
(a) It enables you to complete your purchase of another home even if yours has not been sold.
(b) You receive CASH on the date of completion regardless whether your qualified purchaser's home has sold or not. These arrangements are also available to contractors, so you won't lose that sale. Phone today for further information.

8A CARDS OF THANKS

On behalf of Mr. Kenneth E. Hughes, Mr. and Mrs. Al Morris, Mr. and Mrs. H. Hughes, Mr. and Mrs. B. Palin and families we wish to extend our heartfelt thanks to all those who so kindly wrote letters and cards of sympathy and encouragement, and for the many beautiful floral tributes in loving memory of Ken's beloved wife Elizabeth Ann Hughes.

9 IN MEMORIAM

KING—In memory of our dear Mother Mrs. Mary E. M. King who died January 23 1973.
Greatly missed and ever remembered by her loving family.

McMILLAN—, Dave.
I seem to see in the soft, dim light
A face I loved the best.
And think of him when the sun's last ray
Goes down in the far-off west.
I miss you no less as the time passes on
Than I did on the day of your going.
For absence can never close the door of my heart
And the lamp of my love is still glowing.
Your heart was the truest in all the wide world;
Your love the best to recall:
For no one on earth could take your place,
You are the dearest of all.
—Loving wife and sons.

RENTON — CATHERINE MARY — in loving memory of Mother.
Living and kind in all her ways,
Upright and just, to the end of her days;
Sincere and true in her heart and mind,
Beautiful memories, she left behind.
—Hector.

THEY SHALL GROW NOT OLD, AS WE WHO ARE LEFT GROW OLD. AGE SHALL NOT WEARY THEM, NOR THE YEARS CONDEMN. AT THE GOING DOWN OF THE SUN, AND IN THE MORNING, WE WILL REMEMBER THEM.
—WITH GRATITUDE, SANDS.

Basques Politically Hobbled

The Manchester Guardian

MADRID — After nearly 40 years all Spaniards, except Communists, are to be allowed to elect their political leaders, form free trade unions, and "progress towards democracy."

But autonomy for the Basque provinces and Catalonia will not be allowed, as was convincingly shown in the cold streets of central Madrid this week, the government will tolerate no major breach of public order or challenge to the central authority.

These are the main provisions of a statement now being prepared for delivery to the Cortest next Wednesday by Prime Minister Carlos Arias Navarro:

1. The legalization of all political parties except the Communists and those to their left. At present in Spain there is only one legal political party.

2. Some change in the franchise to make it more nearly universal. At present the vote does not count for much in Spain; only about a third of the Cortes is elected and the electors are heads of families.

3. The legalization of free trade unions, which until now have existed illegally alongside tame ones line those in the Soviet Union. The legal unions are modelled on the Italian "corporations" of the 1930s which bound employers and workers into single organizations for each industry and were the basic elements of Mussolini's corporate state.

4. An element of fiscal reform designed to distribute Spain's rising social produce more fairly in an inflationary situation. At present the middle classes are in a better position than the workers to avoid paying taxes. Government sources say also that the multinational corporations enjoy a particularly favorable tax situation and this must be corrected.

Details of the prime minister's speech have yet to be completed. Encouraged by Tuesday night's defeat for the anti-government demonstration in Madrid, Arias will insist that the change from Spanish autocracy to democracy will be orderly.

Sources close to the government say that ministers believe that Spain's well-organized but independently-minded Communist party would like to acquire the reputation of having restored democracy here. The government is determined, they say, to do this itself. It would seem to justify the exclusion of the Communist party from the democratic process on three grounds:

1. West Germany created a precedent for doing this and West German democracy did not suffer as a result.

2. Communists, once in power, never have yielded it up again as a result of free elections.

3. Communists are committed to support the Soviet Union and to oppose the United States.

The sources say that the government believes that the Spanish people want change without upheaval and that a thriving Communist party could interfere with this. There seems to be no chance, however, that one million Basques and the estimated three million Catalans will get the autonomy they want.

Big Mac Jostles Fish and Chips

LONDON (UPI) — It had to happen. The golden arches of McDonald's hamburgers are about to sprout in the shadow of Buckingham Palace.

Big Mac will go on sale in March on the Haymarket, one of the city's most famous boulevards, at the centre of a triangle bounded by the palace, Piccadilly Circus and Trafalgar Square.

But it will not be advertised out front as a hamburger. No, the Queen's agents have decided the word "hamburger" in lights would, as they put it, "lower the tone" of the neighborhood.

"It was not worth arguing with them" said Bob Rhea, head of McDonald's in Britain. "They will eventually come to recognize that we are a reputable organization and that the word 'hamburger' is nothing to be ashamed of."

Rhea came over from Cleveland and got Big Mac going in the suburbs two years ago.

He knows by now that the British know a good McDonald's burger when they sink their teeth into one, despite early market reseaarch indicating Big Mac might flop here in the land of tradition.

First, according to the research, the average Briton eats everything, including sandwiches and pizzas, with a knife and fork. Fast finger food would be anathema, especially on paper plates and in paper cups that he himself would have to throw away.

Second, there was "precondimentation." Most McDonald's burgers come with the pickle and secret sauce already on. The British were said to be defenders of the right to administer their own salt, pepper, mustard or ketchup.

Rhea came into this new frontier with guns blazing. He put commercials on television and ran full-page newspaper ads proclaiming McDonald's as "The United Tastes of America."

He bought his meat locally but brought the cheddar cheese from Germany, the potatoes from Canada, the apple pies from Oklahoma and the hamburge sauce from New York.

Now he has four shops in the suburbs, the Haymarket shop is in the works, four more are planned for central London and then . . .

Well, he said, "we want to see those golden arches all over England. That would make the people in the States very happy."

Wine Tariff Opposed By Whelan

PENTICTON (CP) — Agriculture Minister Eugene Whelan said Thursday that he doesn't favor tariff barriers to protect Canadian wineries.

Whelan told representatives of the British Columbia Winery Association and the B.C. Grape Marketing Board that the federal government "doesn't look that favorably on higher tariffs for protection of industry.

He said that he would prefer to see the Canadian wine industry show an ability to supply the kind and variety of products to satisfy the Canadian public, and then some type of trade agreement with various countries.

Whelan said the problem with the wine industry is essentially the same as that facing other Canadian businesses — "Canadians are simply spending too much money abroad for things that could be produced here."

Whelan said the federal government is working with grape growers in an effort to produce types of grapes for use in Canada.

U.S. Coffee Up

WHITE PLAINS, N.Y. (UPI) — General Foods Corp., largest coffee wholesaler in the U.S. today raised prices an average 15 cents a pound for regular coffee and 2 cents an ounce for instant.

Hotel After All?

By PAUL MOSS
Times Staff

There is optimism at City Hall that a hotel will be built at Laurel Point after all.

Ald. Bob Ellis said today the assurance is likely to be given to Victoria city council on Tuesday when representatives of Canadian Freehold Properties Ltd. attend council's regular caucus meeting.

The development company, which has almost completed construction of a $10 million condominium project on the waterfront site, announced 10 days ago that it was unlikely to proceed with the second stage of the development — a 200-room hotel — unless the economy made a strong recovery.

Soaring construction and financing costs were among the factors blamed, and the company said its lease agreement with Delta Hotels Ltd. had fallen through.

But Ellis said he now understands from a CFP official that the firm does intend to go ahead with the hotel in accordance with its land-use contract with the city.

Ellis said the indications are that instead of finding a major hotel chain to operate the hotel, Canadian Freehold Properties will set up a separate management company for that purpose.

"They seem to be pretty confident that this will go through," he added.

No company spokesman was available for confirmation today.

$200,000 Waste

VANCOUVER (CP) — A spokesman for the Insurance Corp. of British Columbia said Thursday that about $200,000 worth of printed material produced for the company will probably have to be scrapped as the result of new policies introduced for the Crown corporation by the Social Credit government. The material includes rate books, brochures and guides.

SENTENCE SUSPENDED

Ouellette Guilty

Times News Services

MONTREAL — Justice Minister Andre Ouellette, found guilty of contempt of court today, was given a three-month suspended sentence on condition that he make a public apology for remarks concerning the verdict of a trial in which three sugar refiners were acquitted of price-fixing charges.

Superior Court Justice James Hugessen ruled that the minister would be brought back "to be dealt with accordingly" should he fail to make the apology within 10 days and pay court costs of $500 within 30 days.

Sentence had been delayed briefly while Mr. Justice Hugessen conferred in private with the minister's counsel, Gabriel Lapointe.

Ouellet displayed no emotion as the judge gave his decision.

"There comes a point where criticism becomes mere scurrilous abuse," Hugessen, associate chief justice of Quebec Superior Court said.

Following the verdict, Lapointe, would not immediately indicate whether an appeal would be launched.

He said he would study the judgment and inform Mr. Justice Huggessen of his intentions before announcing publicly any decision.

Hugessen said the minister's remarks were given to Canadian Press reporter Alan Freeman with the knowledge they would in all likelihood be disseminated across the country.

The judge said he accepted the testimony of Freeman, whom he described as a disinterested party in the outcome of the sugar case, adding that the minister on the other hand was admittedly talking off the cuff when he gave the interview.

"His excuse that his choice of words was affected by his imperfect command of English falls in the light of his admission that he does 50 per cent of his work in that language . . ." Mr. Justice Hugessen said.

"In the context of his admitted use of the words 'completely unacceptable', 'silly', 'a complete shock' and 'a compete disgrace' with reference to the judgment of Dec. 19, his suggested interpretation of the phrase 'I cannot understand how a judge who is sane could give such a verdict', is quite simply incredible," the judge said.

Ducking The Issue

At eight foot two, Don Koehler, 50, of Chicago, is listed in the Guinness Book of Records as the world's tallest living person. Employed by a truck-lift manufacturing company, Koehler says he seldom bumps his head as he's developed "a sixth sense."

Gas Ration Predicted In 5 Years

OTTAWA (CP) — Within the next five years Canadians will find themselves again buying rationed gas with stamps predicts Josef Kates, chairman of the Science Council of Canada.

In an interview Thursday he said that in all the noise raised about the free enterprise system, an important element of the prime minister's recent remarks has been lost.

"Mr. Trudeau has said Canadians are going to have to conserve their resources rather than consume them," Kates explained. "And he also said that if people didn't voluntarily change their ways then the government will have to step in."

"I can see by the early 1980s a situation similar to the war years where many things, including gasoline, were rationed and had to be bought with stamps."

"No one is saying this explicitly because they're afraid of frightening the public," he added.

Kates said government and industry are too busy blaming each other for the present state of the economy and are ignoring the problem of how to save it.

A combination of strict regulation, pricing and public education are necessary to stretch the resources so crucial to maintain our economy, he said, admitting what he was suggesting would not be popular.

"The politicians are scared to raise the price of oil because of the public outcry it would cause," he said. "In my view it's the best thing that could happen because then people would think twice before they use it."

He said the council backs the federal restraint program but wants the government to make clear to industry what its attitude towards research financing is going to be.

If the research is hurt by poorly thought out programs then we will lose the economic strength needed to pull us out of our present economic situation, Kates said.

He said research financing should not drop below 1.1 per cent of the gross national product (GDP).

Leaked Memo Details A French Job Preference

OTTAWA (CP) — A short-lived plan to establish a special recruiting unit within the department of supply and services to attract more French Canadian and bilingual women employees was condemned Thursday by Conservative MP Tom Cossitt.

The recruiting program, outlined in an internal department memorandum leaked to Cossitt, said top priority should be given to the hiring of francophones for such specialized jobs as planners, auditors, cost analysts, computer analysts and engineering procurement officers.

The four-page document outlined proposals to search out likely candidates on university campuses and to obtain information on possible candidates among bilingual Canadians teaching and studying at U.S. universities.

The MP for Leeds said in a prepared statement he was shocked by the memo. It revealed an attempt to oust English-speaking employees from influential senior positions in the 10,000-strong government department, he said.

He described it as an outright perversion of the government's bilingualism policy and said it "can only be interpreted as a sneaky and secret attempt to place control of the department as far as possible in the hands of francophone Canadians . . ."

Marc Rochon, director-general of the department's personnel branch, said in an interview that the plan was one of several being considered to carry out a Commons-approved policy of increasing the number of francophones in the public service.

He said the special recruiting unit was never set up because the government's austerity program intervened.

Environment Job For Marchand

Times News Services

OTTAWA — Jean Marchand came out of limbo Thursday by being sworn in as Canada's new minister of the environment, his seventh cabinet post in the past decade.

Looking tanned and fit after a recent period of ill-health needing hospital treatment, the 57-year-old Marchand said "I never felt better" as he took on his new job.

It was only last September that Marchand, plagued by hypertension, had to give up the reins of the onerous transportation department and content himself to being a minister without portfolio.

"He's in better shape than I am, which isn't saying a hell of a lot," Prime Minister Trudeau joked as he stood with his 57-year-old friend at a Government House swearing-in ceremony.

The prime minister conceded, however, that environment represents a less onerous burden for his colleague than some of the other seven portfolios Marchand has held since entering federal politics in 1964.

Joe Clark, opposition environment critic and Progressive Conservative member for Rocky Mountain, was less assured, however, saying the environment job is "too important to be treated as a retirement home for worn-out ministers."

He asked Trudeau to reconsider the appointment, replacing Marchand with someone "with a proven capacity in management and a demonstrated concern for preserving the Canadian environment."

Just before the September cabinet changes, Marchand was fined $200 in provincial court here after pleading guilty to leaving the scene of an accident. His driver's licence was suspended for one year.

Later, in November, Marchand was visited by the RCMP, who were investigating the so-called Sky Shops affair.

NEWS BRIEFS

ROBESON DIES

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Paul Robeson, 77, who enchanted world concert audiences with his rich bass voice and shocked many Americans with his close ties to the Soviet Union, died today. Robeson was admitted to hospital here Dec. 28 after suffering a stroke.

He had lived quietly with his sister in West Philadelphia for more than a decade, refusing interviews and seeing only family members and a few close friends.

Six Dead in Ireland

BELFAST (AP) — Six persons — including two policemen — were killed Thursday in a wave of shootings and bombings across Northern Ireland. 'Banana Republic' Row Between Ottawa, UAW

Times News Services

OTTAWA — A major row came to a boil Thursday between Labor Minister John Munro and the giant United Auto Workers union.

Munro accused UAW president Leonard Woodcock of "treating Canada like a banana republic" and meddling in Canadian affairs during a speech made to the union's international convention in Detroit.

Woodcock in his Wednesday speech attacked Ottawa's anti-inflation program and said that it put the Canada-U.S. auto pact in jeopardy. The union boss also insisted that wages for members remain the same in both countries.

Munro said Thursday, in a sharply worded statement that parity in wages and conditions is certainly the vital issue for union members "but Woodcock cannot tell us our laws do not apply to the UAW."

Canadian members of the union have "won every vestige of automony but when I read what a U.S. labor leader tells us he will allow to happen in this country . . . I begin to wonder," he added.

Dennis McDermott, Canadian director of the union, immediately shot back that he welcomes Woodcock's support of the Canadian labor movement's fight against the federal program of selective wage and price controls.

"That's what international union solidarity is all about," McDermott said in a telephone interview from Detroit.

"I am surprised that a person in Munro's position would make such a silly, fatuous statement."

Woodcock said the union, in return for its support of the auto pact, has demanded that there be the same wages in Canada and the U.S. for the same work.

The union is "not going to allow the controls program in Canada to violate the partiy we so painfully win in collective bargaining," he said.

He did not rule out the possibility of strikes.

FIRST CANADIANS INVITE THE QUEEN

OTTAWA (CP) — The Native Council of Canada, claiming aboriginal rights, has invited Queen Elizabeth to open the Olympic Games in Montreal this summer.

A council spokesman said it is presumptuous of certain groups, newcomers compared with the natives, to say who is welcome to the Games and who is not. Some Quebecers have said she is not welcome.

"We don't mind the Queen coming to open the Games," said the spokesman. "If we don't mind, I don't think anyone else should mind."

SON IN TROUBLE

VANCOUVER (CP) — The son of Human Resources Minister Bill Vander Zalm has been charged along with another man with attempting to defraud the Insurance Corporation of British Columbia of $609.23.

Jeffrey Vander Zalm, 18, of nearby Surrey and Reginald Nedo, 34, of suburban Coquitlam have been charged with attempting to defraud ICBC between Aug. 17 and Sept. 6 of last year in connection with a collision. Nedo is a Surrey auto dealership employee.

The two were remanded to May 7 for trial when they appeared in Cloverdale court on Wednesday.

B.C. RAIL INQUIRY SET

An industrial inquiry commissioner was appointed today in an attempt to settle the Teamsters strike against B.C. Railway.

After a marathon session between both sides and Labor Minister Allan Williams Thursday, both sides agreed this morning to the appointment of the commioner who will bring down a non-binding report in two weeks.

But Teamsters' spokesman Sen. Ed Lawson said the commissioner's report will not be binding and the Teamsters have not agreed to send their men back to work.

Socred Audit an 'Outrageous Political Stunt'

By LINDA HUGHES
Times Staff

A Social Credit constituency vice-president and party fund raiser is heading the provincial government's independent review of B.C.'s finances.

The national firm of Clarkson Gordon was chosen by the Socred government to do the financial study and, in turn, the company chose to head the review resident-partner Ian Adam of the Point Grey Socred constituency executive.

Both Premier Bennett and Clarkson Gordon's senior Vancouver partner, Bonar Lund, said today they knew of Adam's connections, but did not consider it a problem or a possible conflict of interest.

But NDP leader Dave Barrett called it an unbelievable display "of political arrogance and insensitivity" and said the whole financial review will be put into "disrepute".

"I'm not questioning the ethics of Clarkson Gordon . . . I'm questioning the ethics of a government of B.C. that would pull such an outrageous political stunt.

"They don't have the sensitivity to separate themselves from their political bias. As a matter of fact, they obviously don't see anything wrong in what they've done," said Barrett.

When the review was launched, Bennett stressed it would be an independent review of the province's finances, which would be used by him for a state of the province address in February. It is not an audit, but a correlation and interpretation of financial data provided by all government departments and agencies.

Bennett said he had nothing directly to do with choosing Adam; the government simply chose a well-respected national firm and one which, he said, was not associated with any other government agency.

The premier knows Adam personally as a party member and the accountant has done work for Bennett in his Kelowna businesses.

But Bennett said he still did not see any conflict, adding he would be "very, very interested" if someone wants to make charges against the ethics or professionalism of either the firm or Adam. The premier said the government probably would have had trouble finding a senior accountant in Vancouver who was not a Socred supporter.

Clarkson Gordon has no connections with the Social Credit party, he said.

The company's senior partner said Adam was chosen simply because he had some time available and the company was well aware of the accountant's association with the Socred party.

Lund said he was "not a bit worried" about the effect the

Hopeful Hop-Along

Carrying on with only one leg, this pigeon in Centennial Squaredisplays a certain added dignity with his handicap. Ornithologist Jeremy Tatum says one-legged birds are not uncommon. He speculates they become entangled with foliage or fishing lines or are victims of attacks by predators. But could it be some sly birds learn to tuck one leg out of sight to enhance their chances with the bird-feeding fraternity? (John McKay photo)

VGH Radiation Hazard Denied

Reports that x-ray equipment at Victoria General Hospital is so old it is scattering radiation hazardous to staff and patients were denied today by the hospital's executive director.

But Jim Fair did concede that the hospital's seven x-ray machines, from eight to 35 years old, are in "desperate need" of replacing.

Staff and patients are subject to more radiation with the old equipment than they would be with new machines, he said, and monitoring badges which record radiation received by staff have registered more than found in other hospitals.

But he had not been advised by the radiology department that there is a hazard, he added.

Radiation levels from the machines are checked annually by a federal agency and there have been modifications and adjustments made at Victoria General to curb radiation following such reports, he said. But that is done in all radiology departments.

One one occasion a radiologist left his monitoring badge outside his lead apron rather than under it and this resulted in a reading which the monitoring agency questioned, Fair said.

The hospital presented plans in its capital budget over a year ago for a phased modernization of the radiology department and the provincial government approved today the first step, installation of a new power system at a cost of about $300,000.

Last October the regional Hospital and Health Planning Commission submitted to the province a broader three-year program to update radiology at Victoria General and Royal Jubilee Hospitals at an estimated cost of $3.2 million.

It called for spending $1.9 million at Victoria General and $1.3 million at Jubilee. Under cost-sharing formulas, the province would pay 75 per cent of equipment costs and 60 per cent of renovations if it approves the work.

Two Big Hospital Projects Get McClelland Approval

By DON VIPOND
Times Staff

Health Minister Bob McClelland said today the government has approved two major hospital projects in the Capital district but wants regional planners to reconsider an expensive land proposal.

The projects given the green light are a $300,000 renovation and expansion of the emergency department at Royal Jubilee Hospital and installation of a three-phase power system at Victoria General, needed before obsolete x-ray equipment can be replaced. It will also cost about $300,000.

But McClelland said he isn't sure the province agrees with the region's desire to buy a 26-acre site at Douglas and McKenzie for a new hospital because of the $2.5 million price tag. The region will be asked to re-examine the proposal.

The property, northeast of the intersection, is in the Agricultural Land Reserve, and one appraisal put its value at $417,000, said the minister.

"We don't want to interfere with regional affairs but we have a responsibility to see that the money is spent responsibly."

Buying a site for what will initially be a 300-bed acute care hospital, largely to replace obsolete Victoria General, is a linch pin in a variety of other regional hospital plans which are stalled.

Art Young, chairman of the regional hospital board, said all parties realize the offered price is high but the region believes it's worth it because of location, availability of services such as sewage disposal, police and fire coverage.

The $417,000 appraisal was based on its worth as agricultural land and regional inquiries indicate it can be expected to be removed from the Agricultural Land Reserve because of urbanization all around it, he said.

Of numerous properties examined by a joint committee of provincial and regional staff using provincial criteria, the proposed site came out far ahead of the others, Young added.

McClelland said he believes the present owners paid something like $374,000 for the property and selling it for $2.5 million would represent "a pretty substantial profit."

At nearly $100,000 an acre, buying the site is a "good chunk" of spending, particularly when there are properties reasonably close selling for $20,000 to $50,000 an acre, he said.

The health minister said that with budget restraints, "what we're going to have to do is sort out our priorities in a major way."

But he must have an "overview" of department projects planned and under way before he can be specific about spending.

He said he didn't understand criticism directed at him by Young earlier this week since he's only been on the job for a brief time.

Many of the delays on regional health projects in the past seem to have originated with the regional organization itself, he said.

But these appear to have been solved with formation a year ago of the new regional Hospital and Health Planning Commission, which, he said, is working "smoothly."

In addition to the two hospital projects now approved by the province, McClelland said his department and regional planners also reached agreement on future bed allocations at Victoria's two general hospitals.

Uniform 'Must' Rule Impossible—Union

Neither the city, the fire chief nor the firefighters' union should be able to dictate what city firefighters wear to and from work, union president Ross Cameron said today.

Cameron, reacting to a council committee decision Thursday that firefighters would not get new uniforms unless they agreed to wear them to and from work, said the mandatory requirement was an attack on the morale of the department.

He said he has no personal objection to wearing his uniform, "but to make it mandatory — well, it leaves me literally speechless . . . and that doesn't happen very often."

The majority of firefighters already wear their uniforms back and forth from work, he said, but there are exceptions at times and those exceptions make it impossible for the union to agree to the stipulation being included in the formal agreement between the firefighters and the city on the new uniforms.

CAMERON
. . . "speechless"

"As an example, I live 14 miles out of town and if I want to meet my wife for dinner after work, and I'm not allowed to go to a place in uniform where liquor is served. I want to change clothes at work," he said.

Firefighters have been working on the development of a new uniform style for six months and the question should have come up long ago, not this week, Cameron said.

Chief Eric Simmons said at the committee meeting Thursday some of the firefighters were "pre-occupied" with civil rights.

"I wish they had thought about it when they applied for a job with the department," Simmons said. "If they had mentioned civil rights when they applied we wouldn't have bothered to hire them."

Cameron's reaction was a groan.

The firefighters will meet Jan. 28 to discuss the issue.

'Peak Load Pricing' Of Ferries Studied

By KIT COLLINS
Times Staff

A new system of "peak load pricing" is one of the options being recommended to the Social Credit cabinet to help the B.C. Ferries pay its own way, the Times has learned.

The pricing formula is designed to even the traffic flow by deferring travelling at the busiest times.

It is one of several options included in a report commissioned last year by the NDP government and now receiving finishing touches by the ferry authority.

Alternatives include:

—Increased rates for summer travellers, and for passengers travelling at rush-hours during the winter.

— Increased rates for summer travellers, and for passengers travelling at rush-hours during the winter.

GAFFNEY
"efficiency measures"

— A hike in rates for cars, but not for foot-passengers.

—A formula which would allow lower rates for smaller vehicles and higher rates for larger ones.

— Higher rates to decrease the number of space-consuming recreation vehicles.

The report was compiled primarily by a researcher on loan to the B.C. Ferries from the B.C. Institute of Economic Policy Research.

Head of the Institute, Mason Gaffney confirmed the existence of the report Thursday, but he would not outline specific recommendations in the report. He did say there were six "efficiency measures" proposed.

He said that the research team generally found the charge per person is too high and the charge per car too low "and there has also been no proper adjustment for size of vehicles."

For years a money-loser, the B.C. Ferries fleet has a projected deficit of $50 million or more during the current year.

Ferry rates — $5 per car and $2 per person between Tsawwassen and Swartz Bay — were set in the 1950s and are low compared to other jurisdictions.

A lower, $1 per person fee for passengers travelling midweek on Tuesdays, Wednesday and Thursday was adopted nine years ago.

Transport Minister Jack Davis has indicated the Socred government will not necessarily make the ferries operate without any losses, a policy which would cause "significant" rate increases.

But he said he hoped to propose methods which would help lessen the deficit.

INSPECTION CALLED OFF

Saanich council will decide at its next council meeting whether to demand the demolition or enforced repair of a home at 344 Vincent, owned by Zika Zidov.

Mayor Ed Lum said today municipal solicitor Doug Patterson has advised him there is no legal necessity for council to visit the house before taking such action.

This reverses legal opinion given by Patterson at the last meeting when it was decided to view the house, accompanied by police.

Municipal inspectors say they have found electrical, heating, plumbing, partitioning and sewer work has been done without either the required permits or inspections. A stop-work order was issued Jan. 12.

Council had earlier arranged to visit the house today.

The situation came to light when Zidov's tenants complained to the municipality about work being done in the house. The tenants were escorted out of the house by police on Jan. 9.

Inspectors reported they were treated "abusively and violently" by Zidov when inspecting the house.

Kickback!

An impulsive kick delivered by a taxi driver to the seat of a motorist last Dec. 13 resulted in a $100 fine Thursday in provincial court.

Gerald Lovett Maughan, of 1337 Grant, pleaded guilty to common assault.

According to police, Maughan was travelling along Foul Bay Road when his taxi hit a dog but didn't stop.

James Maloney, in a following car, saw the accident and chased after the taxi.

When the taxi pulled over to pick up a fare Maloney approached Maughan and asked why he hadn't stopped after striking the dog.

Police reported Maughan told Maloney to mind his own business (or words to that effect) and when Maloney turned to walk back to his car Maughan "kicked him in the rear end."

Maughan told Allan he would have stopped but "the dog ran down the street faster than I could catch him." He said he was in a semi-dazed state because of the mishap and didn't know what he was doing when he assaulted Maloney.

"I can't accept that excuse," Judge Allan said.

Driver Killed on Sooke Rd.

A 38-year-old Victoria driver was among three men who died in separate accidents on Vancouver Island Thursday between Sooke and Parksville.

Sooke RCMP identified a motorist killed on Sooke Road near Cooper's Cove as Gurnam Singh Bosi, 3175 Balfour.

His 10-year-old westbound car left the wet pavement and struck a power pole about 4 p.m. on a section of highway that is mostly curves. There was no evidence of high speed, said police.

Two passengers in the car, Pakhar Singh Phagura, 39, of 570 Whiteside, and Gurcharn Singh Birk, 3192 Bellevue, were treated for minor injuries.

Near Parksville on the Little Qualicum River, Glen Neville Warwick, 21, of Nanaimo, died apparently of a heart seizure suffered when he fell from a tree on the riverbank where he was trying to disengage a snagged fishing line.

Police said he fell into the river.

An industrial accident at Lake Cowichan took the life of 45-year-old Oliver Roland Fortin, of Nanaimo, driver of a truck unloading logs for his employer, Western Forest Industries, at its dry land sort at Honeymoon Bay.

RCMP said it appeared Fortin had loosened the restraining chains on his load before unloading equipment had engaged the logs, allowing one of them to roll off and strike him.

That Pedigreed Pet From Pine Point

We were poking along the home beach this spring-type morning when my dear one halted, dropped her armload of fir bark, and pounced on one stone of the many. To me it was just another rock, but Win cuddled it in both hands as if it were a week-old kitten.

"What about those holes in it?" I said. "You think it's sick?"

Win ignored that bit of sarcasm.

"The holes make it more interesting," she said. "I've got just the place for it."

She then passed me her find to tote along with my load of bark, and we trudged back to a house in which the Flintstones would feel at home.

Episodes of this sort have punctuated our travels since long before the pet rock fad intruded itself into an area of human affection once reserved for dogs, cats and feathered friends. My wife likes stones. They speak to her in a language that I don't pretend to understand. I've suspected more than once that they even follow her around, begging to be added to a collection that grows with the years.

Big Ugly with the pockmarks on its erratically-contoured surface now squats atop a book-case between a ponderous mass of quartzite and a shard of what my partner on life's rocky road insists is jaspar.

Those specimens have plenty of company, and each find evokes its set of memories.

The fragment of lead-zinc-silver ore came into Win's possession in an up-country gas station run by an ex-prospector.

A box of rocks sat on the counter. Those chunks didn't look like anything much to me, but my companion headed for them as if drawn by a magnet.

"You know where those came from?" the station proprietor demanded. He answered his own question with dramatic emphasis. "Pine Point, that's where!"

For all of 10 minutes, he expounded an Pine Point, a mining property that would have made me a bundle if I hadn't chosen to look a hot tip in the teeth when it stock was selling for peanuts. Then he presented Win with a hunk of ore. All I got was a disparaging glance and the gas sale slip.

Back on the road, Win inspected the ex-prospectors gift of a pedigreed rock fondly.

"It would bulge my handbag," she said. "Maybe you'll put it in your pocket."

As a rarely-complaining pack mule, I'm used to such requests. After all, each to his own foible, and if it happens to be making pets out of rocks, what matter!

The slab of slate that found its way into our car trunk along with other weighty gleanings from here and there now serves usefully to pin down the lid of our outdoor woodbox. And I've accepted the premise that a few choice rocks tucked into a packsack on a hilly trail make good ballast.

I'll admit that a row of fossil-imprinted sandstone flakes lined up on a window sill does add a minor hazard when that window must be opened. But understanding encourages indulgence, and I no longer object to rooting around in mine tailings or wading into an icyy stream for a choice sample.

Nor did I utter more than a token protest when we solved a mystery that developed as we tramped our way from pool to riffle along a northwest Territories stream.

My fishing creel hung fairly heavy when we set out on that expedition. Lunchtime lightened it. Then, progressively, it grew heavier again, though not with fish.

I put this apparent weight fluctuation down to delusion fostered by city-softened muscles, and forgot about it until the winter evening when I fetched the creel out for a housecleaning. It still felt heavier than a split-willow basket of angler's trivia should.

Under its top stratum of fly boxes, reel cases and such, the creel was paved with reddish-brown cobbles.

"Those little chps?" Win said. "Oh, they're from Cameron River. I knew you wouldn't mind if I borrowed the space."

But we don't have space for the half-ton boulder that rates a pat on its knobbly head whenever our rovings bring us to it. Last trip, it got an extra pat, and a poke from a speculative toe.

That worries me!

Weekend Wail Waits Whistlers, Warblers

Do you whistle in your bath? At your workbench? In your laundry room or kitchen?

If so and if you can do warbles, twitters, shrill calls, mating calls or sweet notes, maybe you should get into the contest highlighting The Belfrey's Open House on Saturday.

For a half hour, arranged as a tribute to Victoria's whistlers, the warblers and trillers will be vying with each other in a mood of fun and rivalry.

Just Whistlin' will take place the evening of the 14-hour festival that will introduce Victorians to their newly renovated cultural centre at Fernwood and Gladstone.

Anyone requiring further details, or wishing to register or audition should just whistle 385-6815.

The open house day begins at 10 a.m. and will provide a continuous program, interspersed with intervals for just looking around at various exhibits until midnight.

For those who would like to time their visit to coincide with specific events, here is the program:

At 10 a.m. the film, Tales of Beatrix Potter by England's Royal Ballet, followed by a 40-minute concert by the Pacific Wind Quintet.

Senior students of the Conservatory of Music will give 40-minute recitals at 12:50 p.m., in mid-afternoon and at 8:10 p.m.

Four Seasons Musical Theatre will perfrom Gilbert and Sullivan's Patience and Susan North and Brian Benn with Arne Sahlen at the piano will do a one act comic opera, Telemann's Pimpinone. These are at 2 p.m. and 3 p.m. respectively.

At 4 p.m. Kaleidoscope Theatre will present a children's play entitled Oriental Legend. The Folklore Society and the Intercultural Association occupy the time from 5 p.m. to 7:10 p.m. and this will be followed by poetry readings by P. K. Page and Ken Mitchell.

Camosun College Theatre will provide a performance at 9:10 p.m. and after the whistling contest at 10:10, the Victoria Youth Theatre will perform a short play.

Open house will end with Folklore Society presenting Dan Costain and Dorothy-Anne Haug in a medley of favorite folk melodies.

QUE. TO CONTINUE OLYMPIC AID BID

MONTREAL (CP) — Undeterred by a curt rebuff from Ottawa, Quebec Premier Robert Bourassa has served notice he will continue to press the federal government for tax rebates to help pay for the Montreal Olympics.

Just hours after Prime Minister Trudeau asserted that Ottawa has "no intention" of paying the Olympics deficit, Premier Bourassa issued a statement saying he is convinced the "immense majority of Quebecers" will support his continued demands for Games aid.

While that duel went on, new questions were raised about the Quebec government's management of the Games when it was revealed that the Olympics installations board — the provincial agency which controls construction at the main stadium site — has been given special powers toward certain contracts without tender.

And through it all, officials in Montreal were kept busy denying the latest report of construction troubles — a charge that new cracks in support beams might make the stadium roof unsafe.

The Quebec-Ottawa confrontation began earlier this week when Bourassa told a Montreal television audience the federal government should return $200 million in federal taxes to Quebec.

Prime Minister Trudeau, asked in Ottawa if he favors putting more federal money into the Games, told reporters that "Quebec is committed to paying" and said Premier Bourassa should be "mature enough to honor his commitments."

Meanwhile, it was revealed the Quebec government has passed an order in council giving the Olympics installations board power to award contracts exceeding $250,000 without tender "when there is such an urgency for work to be done that any delay would be prejudicial to the public interest."

Contracts of more than $1 million will require approval by the provincial treasury board, while contracts exceeding $5 million will have to be approved by cabinet.

Nick Auf der Maur, a Montreal opposition city councillor, denounced the order in council, saying it represents a continuation of the policy followed by the city with "disastrous consequences."

Wives Classed As Employees

TORONTO (CP) — Wives are their husbands' employees under Canadian law, according to Edward Ryan, a former family law consultant to the Canadian Law Reform Commission.

Ryan told a public forum on divorce that wives are unlikely to become full partners in marriage until a change is made in the concept that the duty to provide money is conditional on the satisfactory performance of the domestic function.

Science has recognized that it is impossible to say one spouse is at fault for the breakdown of a husband-wife relationship.

Ryan said in a panel discussion on whether fault should be considered in granting a divorce and support payments.

Other panel members were Allan Leal, chairman of the Ontario Law Reform Commission, Prof. Mary Eberts of the University of Toronto law faculty, provincial court Judge David Steinberg of Hamilton and John Clement, former provincial attorney-general.

Ryan said the Ontario and federal law reform commissions proposed changes in support laws, and criticized the Ontario commission for suggesting that the concept of fault be retained.

Jolt Ahead For Parking Offenders

Victoria's parking offenders are about to be jolted out of their mood of careless rapture.

To plug a loopholt in the processing system, which has allowed hundreds of ticketed motorists to escape scot-free, City Hall has hired a temporary clerk who will tackle a five-month backlog of search lists of unpaid tickets.

Court summonses will be issued after the lists are submitted to the motor vehicle department.

A city official explained that the breakdown in the system was at the city's end, and not connected with computer problems in the motor vehicle department, which had been blamed about a year ago for causing the lost revenue.

"The lists somehow were never prepared to do down there," he said.

The clerk will continue her job until the backlog is cleared up.

"What it amounts to is that it's costing us about $40 a day to recover $500 to $600 a day in tickets for processing," said the official.

Drillship Sold

OSLO (AFP) — The Norwegian drillship Havdrill has been sold to Canadian interests at a "satisfactory price," the Norwegian owners said Thursday. They declined to reveal the name of the buyer or the purchase price. Havdrill is one of the most advanced of its kind in the world drill fleet.

Winnipeg Top In Price Jump

OTTAWA (CP) — Retail prices rose more sharply in Winnipeg last year than in any of the 14 major cities surveyed regularly by Statistics Canada.

Vancouver and Toronto had the smallest yearly price rises. Separate figures are not compiled for Victoria but prices in the city are considered to be the same as, or higher than, Vancouver.

Consumer prices in Winnipeg rose 11.3 per cent in 1975, and were up one-half of one per cent in December, the government statistical agency reported Thursday.

But in Vancouver, where a price freeze was operating since October, retail prices rose over-all last year by 8.8 per cent. They were up one-tenth of one per cent in December.

The 1975 increase in Toronto was nine per cent while the December rise was two-tenths of one per cent.

On a city-by-city basis, the price changes for the full year and for December were: Halifax, up 11.2 per cent for 1975 and six-tenths of one per cent in December; Saskatoon, Sask., 10.6 per cent and one-tenth of one per cent; Saint John, N.B., 10.5 per cent and three-tenths of one per cent; Thunder Bay, Ont., 10.3 per cent and five-tenths of one per cent; Calgary, 10.3 per cent and four-tenths of one per cent; St. John's, Nfld., 10.2 per cent and two-tenths of one per cent; Regina, 9.9 per cent, but down one-tenth of one per cent in December; Edmonton, 9.8 per cent, no change in December; Montreal, 9.7 per cent, no change in December; Ottawa, 9.4 per cent and four-tenths of one per cent; Quebec City, 9.3 per cent, but down one-tenth of one per cent in December.

Pulp Mills' Secret Deal Charged

SAULT STE. MARIE (CP) — Cyril Symes, New Democratic Party member of Parliament for Sault Ste. Marie, says four major Canadian pulp and paper producers have secretly agreed to help each other during strikes.

Symes, a member of an NDP committee that toured three Northern Ontario communities to study the effect of the seven-month pulp and paper industry strike, says union officials recently gave the NDP a copy of the alleged agreement.

The agreement was signed March 1, 1973, by Abitibi Provincial Paper, Eddy Paper Co., Domtar Pulp and Paper Products Ltd. and Rolland Paper Co., he added.

He said the agreement shows that any company whose operations are curtailed by a strike can effect the others to ship paper to meet market demand.

"It indicates to me that the companies are not interested in bargaining in good faith," Symes said.

The federal government should investigate, he added.

Anti-Inflation May Last Longer

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP) — Senator Ray Perrault has suggested the federal government may have to extend part of its anti-inflation program beyond the scheduled three-year deadline.

The senator also hinted at the possibility of a continuing government watch on the growth of large corporations which, he said, affect the small entrepreneur.

In a speech that posed many questions, but provided few answers, Perrault also said:

The free market system was not working well when inflation controls were introduced;

Canadians must become less materialistic and strive to achieve a new set of values;

The government's anti-inflation program is not intended as a blueprint for a new society;

If all sectors of society exercise restraint, inflation eventually will be whipped.

"It will be a long uphill slog," he told the New Westminster Chamber of Commerce. "But as the program bites more and more deeply, inflation eventually will be whipped."

Meanwhile, in Toronto, Ontario Treasurer Darcy McKeough lashed out Thursday at recent remarks by Trudeau, saying they have caused confusion, mistrust and anger in Canada's business community.

In a speech to the Toronto society of financial analysts, he said Trudeau's comments about a new society have "caused a hell of a lot of uncertainty."

Canada does not need philosophical musings to solve the harsh, economic realities it now confronts, he said.

Governments and business must do a better selling job in convincing people that profit is not a dirty word — that a healthy economy needs investment now more than ever before, he added.

The cure for inflation is higher productivity in all areas and the key to productivity is investment, he said.

Teacher Protection

OTTAWA (FP) — Discussions will soon begin with the provinces to devise ways of giving Canadian academics more protection from the influx of foreign teachers, Manpower and Immigration Minister Robert Andras said Thursday.

Canadian postgraduates should be assured a fair chance at university teaching jobs before giving the jobs to outsiders, he said.

"The influx of university teachers from abroad gained momentum with the rapid expansion of our universities a decade ago," he said.

"At that time, there were insufficient numbers of Canadian postgraduates available to fill teaching vacancies in universities. The concern is that Canada may now have a surplus of postgraduates."

Introducing the first banking package for customers 60 and over that guarantees a minimum 10% bonus on True Savings interest.

Firstbank Senior Plan 60™

It all started right here.

In 1969, Bank of Montreal became the first bank in Canada to introduce a plan expressly designed to assist senior citizens. We knew then something had to be done to help combat the effects of inflation for those on fixed incomes.

So we lowered our service charges to everyone age 65 and over. We hoped that other service-oriented companies would follow suit. And they did.

Now we have updated our earlier plan. We've lowered the age of eligibility to 60. And designed a comprehensive package of banking services for our customers 60 and over. It's called the Firstbank Senior Plan. And it's absolutely free. Here is how it can help you.

The guaranteed 10% minimum bonus.

There are special plans at other banks for customers 60 and over. But there's a big difference between what they offer and what we offer. The difference is that only Bank of Montreal offers you a guaranteed 10% minimum bonus on your Firstbank True Savings Account interest for the year ending October 31, 1976.

For example, if the interest credited to your Firstbank Savings Account during the Bank year ending October 31, 1976, amounts to $200, the guaranteed 10% interest bonus will bring your total interest to $220.

However, if major competitors should decide to pay more, your Firstbank Senior Plan bonus will be increased accordingly.

Either way, you are always protected. Because your guaranteed bonus interest can never dip below the 10% minimum. And remember, interest up to $1,000 is completely tax free.

Three for free.

Chequing: The Firstbank Senior Plan entitles you to free chequing. You can write as many cheques as you like on your Firstbank Chequing or Regular Savings account with no service charge whatsoever.

Utility Bills: You are also entitled to pay your own utility bills conveniently at any Bank of Montreal branch with no service charge.

Travellers Cheques: You can buy as many as you wish at any branch without paying commission on them.

In Addition: The Firstbank Senior Plan entitles you to an annual reduction on a Bank of Montreal Safety Deposit Box or Safekeeping Service. For example, the most popular-sized box will rent for only $4.50 per year.

Term Deposits that pay a monthly income.

If you want to earn the highest monthly interest on your savings, a Monthly Income Deposit Receipt is an excellent investment. You need an initial deposit of $5,000. We will arrange terms to suit your own plans —from two months to six years.

You will receive interest payments on your deposit each month. We will credit your account, or mail you a cheque if you prefer.

In this way, you can supplement your monthly savings while your initial deposit remains intact.

Your card.

As a Firstbank Senior Plan customer you will receive a personal identification card. This card will serve as your introduction to Bank of Montreal branches across Canada, ensuring you the same Plan benefits in those branches.

In total, the Firstbank Senior Plan entitles you to six convenient, money-saving Bank services. Plus an identification card. And it's all free. All you have to do is apply.

So take advantage of this unique banking Plan that has been specially designed for people 60 and over.

Stop by your Bank of Montreal branch and have a talk with us about our Firstbank Senior Plan. You'll like what you hear. After all, we started it all.

And we'll be glad to arrange your Firstbank Senior Plan for you.

Let's talk.

Today's Movies

Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm (xx), on 11 at 2. A 1938 Shirley Temple musical which bears little resemblance to the children's classic.

Operation Mad Ball (xxx), on 7 at 3. Jack Lemmon and Ernie Kovack star in this entertaining 1957 madcap Army comedy about a smooth operator who upsets all the rules and regulations in his search for fun.

Shoot Loud, Louder . . . I Don't Understand (xx), on 2 at 9. A zany 1966 Italian-made comedy about the wild goings-on in a strange household inhabited by Marcello Mastroianni and his eccentric uncle. Add Raquel Welch, a murder and underworld hoods — and you know what you're in for.

The New Centurions (xx), on 5 at 9. An excellent 1972 crime-drama based on the best-seller by Joseph Wambaugh (Police Story) about the dangers of police work for two partners whose devotion to duty undermines their personal lives. An excellent cast includes George C. Scott, Stacy Keach and Jane Alexander.

Widow, on 6 at 9. No rating available on this 1976 made-for-television drama starring Michael Learned (The Waltons' Olivia) as a woman slowely learning to deal with her own grief, her children's traumas and financial worries after the untimely death of her husband. Based on a best-selling book by Lynn Caine and co-starring Bradford Dillman, Farley Granger and Robert Lansing.

The Day of the Jackal (xxxx), on 8 at 9 and 6 at 11:20. A brilliant, fascinating 1973 drama based on the best-seller by Frederick Forsyth about a ruthless contract killer (code name: The Jackal) hired to assassinate the late Charles de Gaulle. Although both the film and the book are fictitious, the theme is loosely based on the fact that the OAS did attempt to have de Gaulle assassinated in the early 1960s. Edward Fox heads a fine cast.

Intolerance (xxxx), on 9 at 9. The 1916 D. W. Griffith silent film classic tracing bigotry through the ages. Among the huge cast are Lillian Gish, Mae Marsh and Constance Talmage. A must for film buffs.

Song Without End (xx), on 7 at 11. If you can ignore the melodramatic aspects of this 1960 Hollywood version of Franz Liszt's life, you will enjoy the glorious score. Dirk Bogarde makes a dashing Liszt, but he is bogged down by a heavy-handed script and a bad performance by his co-star Capucine.

THE JACKAL (as portrayed by Edward Fox) is the code name for a ruthless professional killer hired to assassinate Charles de Gaulle, in the powerful 1973 drama, The Day of the Jackal, to be telecast on Saturday at 9 p.m. on Channel 8 and 11:20 p.m. on Channel 6.

The Old-Fashioned Way (xxx), on 11 at 11. W. C. Fields is in top form in this 1934 comedy about the tippling head of a touring theatrical troupe, appropriately performing. The Drunkard. A one-man show and a must for Fields' fans.

The Day of the Jackal (xxxx), on 6 at 11:20. (See earlier this evening for details on this excellent film.)

A Convenant with Death (xxx), on 12 at 11:30. A well-acted and interesting 1967 drama about a young Mexican-American judge faced with a complex legal case and serious personal problems, starring George Maharis, Sidney Blackmer, Earl Holliman and Katy Jurado.

The Vikings (xx), on 4 at 11:45. Beautiful on-location photography in Norway highlights this implausible but rousing 1958 adventure about the Viking conquests of England, starring Kirk Douglas, Tony Curtis, Janet Leigh and Ernest Borgnine.

Charade (xxx), on 2 at 12:15 a.m. A slick and sophisticated 1963 adventure-drama about a wild chase for a million dollars in gold coins amid marvelous European settings. It's a lightweight affair but the stars (Audrey Hepburn and Cary Grant) and the stylish direction keep it alive.

Deliverance (xxxx), on 8 at 12:15. Burt Reynolds and Jon Voight head a fine cast in this high-powered, fascinating but occasionally brutal 1972 adventure thriller about what happens to four weekend canoeists on a hazardous journey down a turbulent, rock-strewn river. The film is based on a best-selling novel by James Dickey (in a small cameo appearance as the sheriff) and comes with the warning that it may not be suitable for all members of the family.

Welcome to Hard Times (xxx), on 5 at 1 a.m. An interesting 1967 "psychological" western drama starring Henry Fonda as a leading citizen of a small town namedHardTimes, who doesn't stand up to a crazed gunman, played with dripping evil by Aldo Ray. With a little more care and a better script, this could have been a four-star western.

The Busy Body (xx), on 6 at 2:20 a.m. Sid Caesar, Robert Ryan and Anne Baxter star in this 1967 slapstick comedy about bumbling gangsters and madcap capers. The best that can be said is that once again, Caesar's superb comedy talents have been wasted by Hollywood.

Louis Armstrong — Chicago Style, on 8 at 2:30 a.m. An unpreviewed 1976 made-for-TV biographical drama, based on the life of the late great Satchmo. An excellent cast includes Tony award-winner Ben Vareen in the title role.

Today's Highlights

Sammy and Company, on 12 at 10. Host Sammy Davis Jr. welcomes among his guests Petula Clark, George Kirby, actress Janet Leigh and singer Adam Wade. (90 mins.)

Saturday Night, on 5 at 11:30. Tonight's edition of this comedy series features the British satirical team of Peter Cook and Dudley Moore as guest hosts. (90 mins.)

Globetrotters in Attica

ABC's Wide World of Sports, for Sunday, Jan. 25, 4-5:30 p.m., presents a full 90-minute television special, Inside Attica With the Harlem Globetrotters, featuring ABC Sportscaster Howard Cosell in an entertaining and revealing visit to the maximum security Attica Correctional Facility in upstate New York, the scene in 1971 of the bloodiest prison uprising in American history.

The world-famous Harlem Globetrotters went to Attica to provide much-needed entertainment for the facility's 2,000 inmates, who rarely have an opportunity to see such stars in action.

But, inside a penitentiary with the history of Attica, the basketball wizardry of the Globetrotters could not be the whole story. So, ABC Sports cameras and Howard Cosell documented the Attica story, recalling the events that riveted the nation's attention on Attica in September, 1971, and examining the changes made since that tragedy which left 43 persons dead. On the telecast, viewers will be given an insider's look at Attica and its people — both officials and inmates.

For the inmates, the chance to see the Globetrotters run through their comic paces — and, to meet them in person — was an enormously exciting experience, as evidenced on the "Wide World" program.

After the performance, the official "Inmate Entertainment Reviewer" (an inmate himself) wrote in his report, "The score was unimportant. Everyone was too busy watching the antics of the team — especially Meadowlark Lemon and Geese Ausbie — as they played some of the zaniest basketball ever seen . . . We were thoroughly entertained. The 'Trotters, as usual, put on a magnificent performance . . . a pleasant haitus in an otherwise dull and monotonous routine."

For Howard Cosell, the experience of two full days behind the fortress-like walls of Attica produced a deeper reaction.

Referring to the New York Times columnist, 1971 Attica negotiator and author of "A Time to Die," Cosell observes, "Tom Wicker wrote in his book that he learned more during his four days at Attica than during the whole of the rest of his life. Maybe, in a strange way, we at ABC Sports have learned it too."

In addition to the Globetrotters basketball action, and the comments of their inmate fans, the Wide World special recounts the events leading up to the September uprising, as Howard Cosell moves through the maximum security prison reporting from the actual locations where those events took place

Film footage, artworks, and graphic video reproductions give viewers a clear picture of what it was like to be in Attica of 1971. And, contemporary shots demonstrate what it is like to be an inmate in the Attica of today.

On the Wide World program, Cosell interviews a cross section of Attica's people, from current inmates to a corrections officer who was one of the hostages to survive the final hail of bullets, to the current Superintendent at Attica and the current New York State Corrections Commissioner, respectively, Harold J. Smith and Benjamin Ward.

These interviews, woven throughout the 90-minute telecast, are frequently contradictory about the conditions of prison life. But, as a whole, they form a fabric which will give viewers a powerful feeling of what it means to be incarcerated — to be rehabilitated, or, simply, to "pay one's debt to society."

GEORGE FOREMAN—former World Heavyweight champion, hopes to start his comeback trail with a bout against ranked contender Ron Lyle, to be presented live on Channel 8 at 1:30 p.m. on Saturday (and on tape at 5:30 p.m. on Channel 4.)

Women's Series Returns to PBS

Woman Alive!, a 10-week television magazine made for and by women, returns to Public TV 9 Saturdays at 5:30 p.m., beginning Jan. 24. When first aired, Woman Alive! was praised as a "vital link with other women across the country." Saturday Review termed the series "a path-breaking venture."

The series is about change, providing a forum for women and men to explore from many different points of view the ways in which these changes are affecting society in general.

Women filmmakers, performers and commentators such as Dee Dee Bridgewater, Rose Kushner, Cryer and Ford, Charlotte Zwerin, Novella Nelson and Sylvia Porter participated in programs which tackle such subjects as self-assertiveness, civil rights for office workers, middle age, army wives, and racism.

The main elements of the show is a documentary film which takes a look at army life from the wife's point of view. Filmed at Fort Sill, Oklahoma, the film is an example of how wives are changing their attitudes towards traditional expectations.

Commentary on the program is provided by Sheila Tobias of Wesleyan University, who talks about math anxiety in women, and what is being done by the academic world to correct it.

Woman Alive! on Jan. 24 will be preceded at 5 p.m. by The Feminist Persuasion, a local KCTS-9 production which examines the many facets of the women's movement in the Northwest. On The Feminist Persuasion, moderated and produced by Sandy Walker, women will attempt to define the word "feminism," and to determine their place in — or out of — the feminist movement.

INTOLERANCE

Intolerance, one of the 10 greatest pictures of all time, returns to The Silent Years, January 24 at 9:00 p.m. on Public TV 9.

Motivated in part as a reply to critics who considered The Birth of a Nation bigoted, director D. W. Griffith himself authored Intolerance — a scenario that embraced four stories of bigotry and injustice from four different periods of history, each separately evolved and carried to a dramatic conclusion of its own.

Yet the unfolding of each of these stories is handled as in a musical fugue, cutting back and forth as they proceed until they climax in one great interweaving of action in the final reel.

The 1916 film also had an all-star cast: Constance Talmadge, Mae Marsh, Lillian Gish, Elmo Lincoln, Wallace Reid, Erich von Stroheim, Bessie Love, Eugene Pallett, Douglas Fairbanks Sr., Donald Crisp, DeWolfe Hopper, and Sir Herbert Beerbohm Tree.

Today's Movies

Love in the Afternoon (xxx), on 5 at 10 a.m. A sophisticated 1957 comedy about the romantic escapades of a middle-aged American playboy in Europe who finds himself attracted to a young music student. Audrey Hepburn, Gary Cooper and Maurice Chevalier star.

Strange Homecoming (xx), on 6 and 8 at 2:30. Robert Culp stars in this 1974 made-for-TV drama about a small town hero-turned gangster using his unsuspecting family's home as a refuge from the police.

Strangers When We Meet (xx), on 7 at 3. High-class soap opera best describes this teary 1969 melodrama about an adulterous love affair between an unhappily married architect and a frustrated housewife. A good cast (Kirk Douglas, Kim Novak, Ernie Kovacs, Barbara Rush and Walter Matthau) is wasted.

Namu, Killer Whale (xxx), on 11 at 3. An interesting 1966 semi-documentary about a scientist's efforts to communicate with a captured killer whale in a small fishing village, starring Robert Lansing and Lee Meriwether.

The Secret Life of Walter Mitty (xxxx), on 12 at 9. Danny Kaye is marvelous in this 1947 movie rendering of James Thurber's charming story about a mildmannered man who finds refuge in daydreams of bravery. Recommended.

Louis Armstrong-Chicago Style, on 4 at 9:30. An unpreviewed 1976 biography based on the life of the late great Satchmo, featuring Tony-winning Ben Vareen in the title role. Set in 1931, the story examines an unhappy time in Armstrong's early career, when the still-struggling musician attracted attention he could have done without — that of gangsters who wanted him to play exclusively in a club owned by the underworld.

The Fiction-Makers, on 12 at 11:25. Roger Moore stars in this 1967 crime-drama, originally shown as a two-part episode on the television series, The Saint. This one finds Templar (Moore) mistaken for a best-selling author and forced to participate in a jewel robbery. Sylvia Sims costars.

13 Rue Madeleine (xx)n on 4 at 11:30. A fairly interesting 1947 semi-documentary about a top German Gestapo agent who goes undercover in an American spy-training school, starring James Cagney and Richard Conte.

The Swimmer (xxx), on 5 at 11:30. Offbeat but fascinating 1968 account of one man's shattering odyssey through affluent suburbia. Burt Lancaster plays a loser gradually flipping out of WASP society in suburban Connecticut. His disillusionment deepens with each unique arrival — by way of their swimming pools — at the homes of his wealthy friends.

Freud (xxx), on 2 at 11:45. Montgomery Clift plays the title role in this 1962 study of the general work and early struggle for recognition of Sigmund Freud, the founder of modern psychiatry. The story focuses on Freud's treatment of a young patient, well played by Susannah York, and uses inventive montages to explain dreams etc.

Deliverance (xxxx), on 6 at 11:50. A high-powered, fascinating but occasionally brutal 1972 adventure-thriller about what happens to four weekend canoeists on a hazardous journey down a turbulent, rock-strewn river. Starring Burt Reynolds and Jon Voight, the film is based on a best-selling novel by James Dickey (in a small cameo role as the sheriff) and comes with the warning that it may not be suitable for all members of the family.

The Busy Body (xx), on 8 at midnight. Sid Caesar, Robert Ryan and Anne Baxter star in this 1967 slapstick comedy about bumbling gangsters and madcap capers. The best that can be said about this film is that, once again, Caesar's superb comedy talents have been wasted by Hollywood.

The Egyptian (xx), on 7 at 1:30 a.m. Lavish sets and costumes highlight this otherwise dull 1954 Biblical epic about a court psychician to a pharaoh in ancient Egypt, starring Edmund Purdom, Jean Simmons, Victor Mature, Peter Ustinov, Michael Wilding and Gene Tierney.

Louis Armstrong — Chicago Style, on 6 at 2:05 a.m. (See earlier this evening for details.)

THE KING OF JAZZ Louis Armstrong as portrayed by award-winning actor Ben Vareen, is the subject of a special ABC-TV movie, Louis Armstrong: Chicago Style, to be telecast on Sunday at 9:30 p.m. on Channel 4.

Human Journey, on 8 at 10. The Middle Years — a documenatry, first seen in April 1975, about adjusting to the middle years of life. The program uses dramatic vignettes to depict such emotional problems as a growing fear of death, a desire for youthfulness and a disenchantment with a previously satisfying way of life. Most of the program, however, is devoted to comments by people who seem to have adjusted to middle age. (60 mins.)

SPACE PROBES

On Sunday at 8 p.m. on Channel 9, the program Nova surveys the space probe missions made by the U.S. and the U.S.S.R., examining information gathered from these ventures. The data, according to scientists, reveal similarities between these planets today, and the Earth in its early history. Pictured here (clockwise) are Mercury, Venus, Mars, the north pole of Jupiter, Uranus and Saturn.

Award-Winning Series Encores Middle Years

What is the peak time for divorce, depression, suicide? What is the time when the body is subject to change and the mind tormented by uncertainty? What is the period for review of the past and serious contemplation of the future? What is the time when ordinary, average people realize a new importance? What is the time when they see for the first time an opportunity to make their presence felt and go on to roles of dedication, even greatness? This time is The Middle Years, the next absorbing telecast in CTV's award-winning Human Journey series, Sunday at 10 p.m. on Channel 8.

There are many who, having reached middle age, re-evaluate their life and set out to change it. For them, it is the final stage in the maturing process when one feels comfortable with skills, knowledge and experience gathered over the years. It is a time for consolidation, self-hood and evolution. With middle age, one still has youth and one also has wisdom. It can be the best time of one's life.

Psychologist Eda Leshan discovered this after she got through her own mid-life crisis with some help from her teenage daughter. In her, she found something she was missing — freedom from the conventions and expectations of other people, the freedom to be herself. Out of her search came a book called The Wonderful Crisis Of Middle Age.

"The best part of my life began when I was about 43," Leshan recalls. "It seemed to me that was a worthwhile message to send out to the world."

Gail Sheehy is a journalist who, in her research of middle age, found a pattern that shows the whole of life is made up of well-defined but alternating periods of potential crisis and consolidation, each of which is meant to take us to a higher level of maturity.

Sheehy, like psychologist Leshan, boxer George Chuvalo, radio show host John Gilbert and taxi driver Owen MacIntyre find middle age can mean freedom and discovery for the real person inside. They all agree this time can be used to assemble their lives with a wider dimension that allows for increased richness and expression.

Play Features Stunning Cast

Matrimony — that much maligned but most enduring institution is satirized to the hilt in The Marriage Circus Sunday January 25 at 9 p.m. on CBC-TV's Performance.

This glorification of 25 years of marital gamesmanship is set in a circus ring complete with ringmaster, clown and portraits of other great lovers (Burton and Taylor, Margaret and Pierre). The husband, the wife, her cousin and their hostories are in no way real. They are impressions and attitudes brought to larger than life by the stunning cast: Freddie Jones, Elizabeth Shepherd and Peter Donat.

Peter Donat returned to his native Canada to play Alice's smooth talking, wildly seductive cousin — the man who introduced Edgar and Alice, 25 years ago. Donat's most recent feature film credits include The Hindenberg and The Godfather Part II.

The Marriage Circus is based on Friedrich Durrenmatt's play Strindberg, which is based on Strindberg's Dance of Death. Durrenmatt said of his adaptation, "Out of a bourgeois marriage tragedy developed a comedy about bourgeois marriage tragedies."

The ringmaster who introduces the three players in this flashy but never really dangerous game of words is Heath Lamberts. The clown is Adrian Pecknold.

The Marriage Circus was directed by George Bloomfield and produced by Eoin Sprott. Robert Allen is the executive producer of Performance.

BERNSTEIN AT HARVARD

Leonard Bernstein at Harvard, a series of six musically illustrated lectures considered to be Mr. Bernstein's most comprehensive exploration of music, will be televised on KCTS/9, Sundays at 2.00 p.m. beginning January 25.

The series, subtitled The Unanswered Question was taped when Mr. Bernstein was the Charles Eliot Norton Professor of Poetry at Harvard: this is the first time in their 50-year history that the prestigious Norton lectures will be broadcast.

Hypothesizing on the origins of musical sound, Bernstein uses linguistic analogues, and examines the Harmonic Series — the common origin of all music. Demonstrating the gradual evolution of various scale systems, he develops for his listeners the do-re-mi scale of Western music, and the resulting harmonic principles. He shows how chromaticism is controlled and contained by the principle of diatonicism.

At the piano, Mr. Bernstein then prepares his audience for the featured work — Mozart's "Symphony No. 40 in G. Minor, K.550," performed by the Boston Symphony Orchestra — pointing out the elements he has just discussed as they appear in the music of Mozart.

Other shows in the series will consider Musical Syntax (February 1), Musical Semantics (February 8), The Delights and Dangers of Ambiguity (February 15), The Twentieth Century Crisis (February 29), and The Poetry of Earth (March 7).

Mr. Bernstein has had much experience in bringing the musical form to television. In approached in his first broadcast of the Omnibus series: The Analysis of Beethoven's Fifth Symphony was a television landmark and an enormous step for the music world 1954, he chose the most modern medium a conductor has ever at large. Since then, Mr. Bernstein has been awarded five Emmys and the Peabody Award for Outstanding Television Entertainment. He also was the only American to win a prize at the Third International Television Festival in 1963.

Today's Movies

Trapeze (xxx), on 8 at 12:45. Burt Lancaster, Gina Lollobrigida and Tony Curtis star in this entertaining 1956 drama about the personal and professional lives of a trio of trapeze artists at a Parisian circus. Lancaster, an ex-acrobat, does many of his own stunts.

He Rides Tall (x), on 11 at 1. Routine 1964 western about a lawman on the trail of a sadistic outlaw, starring Dan Duryea.

Yuma (xx), on 5 at 3:30. Clint Walker and Barry Sullivan star in this predictable 1971 western drama about a newly-appointed sheriff trying to clean up a lawless Arizona town.

The Day of the Jackal (xxxx), on 5 at 8. A fascinating 1973 drama about a ruthless contract killer (code name: The Jackal) hired by the OAS (Secret Army Organization) to assassinate Charles de Gaulle, based on the best-selling novel by Frederick Forsyth. Although both the book and the film is fictitous, the theme is loosely based on a true-life attempt by the OAS to have the French leader assassinated in the early 1960s. Edward Fox heads an excellent cast. (This film comes with the warning that it may not be suitable for all members of the family.)

Moment to Moment (xx), on 11 at 9. Romance and mystery blend in this 1966 melodrama about a married woman who accidentally kills her lover, then tries to hide the body which suddenly disappears, starring Jean Seberg, Honor Blackman and Sean Garrison.

The Sandpiper (xxx), on 12 at 11:30. California's beautiful Big Sur coastline enhances this otherwise predictable 1965 romantic drama about an illicit affair between a free-thinking artist and a married minister, starring Elizabeth Taylor and Richard Burton.

Island of Blue Dolphins (xx), on 2 at midnight. A 1964 children's adventure story about an Indian girl's life on an uninhabited island, starring Celia Kaye and George Kennedy.

Columbo, on 6 at midnight. Peter Falk stars in this 1975 made-for-TV crime drama that finds Columbo on the trail of an electronics expert who murders his mother-in-law and invents an ingenious scheme to cover his tracks. Supporting cast includes Oskar Werner and Gena Rowlands.

Topkapi (xxxx), on 8 at midnight. An entertaining, superbly acted 1964 tongue-in-cheek adventure about a team of crack international thieves with an ingenious plan to steal a priceless, jewel-encrusted dagger from Instanbul's famed Topkapi museum. A great cast includes Melian Mercouri, Maximillian Schell and Peter Ustinov.

A Dandy in Aspic (x), on 7 at 12:30 a.m. The fine talents of Lawrence Harvey, Tom Courtenay, Mia Farrow and Harry Andrews are wasted in this poorly-scripted, implausibl 1968 spy story about a Soviet double agent caught between the East and the West.

12 Angry Men (xxxx), on 6 at 1:30 a.m. A brillintly-acted, fascinating 1957 drama about the efforts of one man trying to get his 11 fellow jurors to reexamine their hasty guilty verdict in a murder trial. Superbly directed and featuring a fine cast which includes Henry Fonda, E. G. Marshall, Lee J. Cobb, Ed Begleyn Jack Warden and Jack Klugman.

Baby, the Rain Must Fall (xx), on 7 at 2:30 a.m. Steve McQueen and Lee Remick star in this 1965 melodrama about the troubled marriage between a sensitive young woman and a neurotic, guitar-picking drifter.

A Streetcar Named Desire (xxxx), on 8 at 2:30 a.m. A flawless 1951 film rendering of Tennessee Williams acclaimed play about repression and lust in a New Orleans family, superbly acted by Marlon Brando, Vivien Leigh, Karl Malden (Oscar winner) and Kim Hunter.

MARY TYLER MOORE demonstrates her talents as a singer and dancer in a lavish musical special entitled, Mary's Incredible Dream, to be telecast on Monday at 9 p.m. on Channel 12.

Today's Highlights

Bill Moyers' Journal, on 7 at 7 p.m. Award-winning host-journalist Bill Moyers talks with James Dickey, author of Deliverance, the film version of which will be shown on Friday at 9 p.m. on Channel 4. (60 mins.)

Gomberg at 82, on 9 at 8. A drama about the life of a Jewish immigrant, from the times of his birth in Russia through the wedding of granddaughter in the United States. (30 mins.)

The Jew in Song — A Yiddish Portrait, on 9 at 8:30. Traditional Yiddish music is interwoven in this program tracing the migration of Jews from Eastern Europe to the United States. (30 mins.)

Concorde: Supersonic Boom or Bust?, on 9 at 9. A report examining the controversy as to whether or not the United States will allow the Franco-British supersonic Concorde — developed at a cost of nearly $3 billion — to land at its airports (60 mins.)

Mary's Incredible Dream, on 12 at 9. A musical tour-de-force starring Mary Tyler Moore in a stunning one-woman show as she sings and dances to pop, classical and rock in a show that is drawn from the Bible about man's creation, fall and rebirth. The program takes the form of dream sequences with Mary playing several roles. The music is performanced by the Hollywood Bowl Orchestra under the direction of Arthur Fiedler, the Los Angeles Master Chorale directed by Roger Wagner and the Jaime Rogers dancers. Mary is briefly joined in some numbers by Ben Vareen and pop group the Manhattan Transfer. (60 mins.)

CBS Reports, on 7 and 12 at 10. Inside the FBI — an examination of the functions of the U.S. Federal Bureau of Investigation and a profile of the people who work there. The program, hosted by CBS news correspondent Dan Rather, includes footage of the bureau's training academy and interviews with FBI director Clarence Kelly and field agents. (60 mins.)

Man Alive, on 2 and 6 at 10:30. Author Issac Asimov and novelist-physician Han Suyin are among those interviewed in this study of the world's population crisis focusing on the rich western nations' consumption of resources and their interests in supporting population-control programs. (30 mins.)

Night People of Las Vegas, on 4 at 11:30. Host Alan King tours the Las Vegas night clubs and interviews such performers as Totie Fields, Ann-Margret, Bert Convy, comedian David Brenner and Oscar-winning composer Marvin Hamlisch. (90 mins.)

Canada AM Hosts 5-Part Probe Of Penal Systems

The Canadian penal system and rehabilitation of prisoners is scrutinized in a five-part series of mini-documentaries to be featured on Canada AM the week of Monday, Jan. 26, 7-9 a.m. on Channels 6 and 8.

Inside the gates of Workworth Penitentiary, a progressive medium-security prison in southeastern Ontario, Helen Hutchinson interviews four inmates convicted of crimes including theft, armed robbery and murder. These interviews detail the crimes and thoughts of these male convicts who range in age from early 20s to mid-40s.

Although the prisoners interviewed question whether the penal system is truly rehabilitative, one inmate, a former speed freak, no longer depends upon drugs and is thankful to be alive. However, at 30 years old, he feels frustrated by the 20-year sentence he faces for murdering while high on speed. Another convict, a repeater, feels he has been helped by Workworth's rehab program and he would like to try "going straight" upon release.

Two remaining inmates feel they are at Workworth to be punished — not for rehabilitation. These men, both well-educated, see imprisonment as payment for past mistakes.

On Friday morning, "Canada AM" hosts Helen Hutchinson and Norm Perry lead an in-studio discussion on the penal system and the possibilities of rehabilitation. They look at the history of rehab programs, analyzing when these can work and what type of individual is most likely to benefit from these programs.

Executive producer for "Canada AM" is Don Cameron with producer Andrew Cochran and associate producer Renee Pellerin. Roger Stewart is story editor of this five-part series.

HELEN HUTCHINSON hosts a five-part investigation of Canada's penal system, beginning today at 7 a.m. on Channel 6 and 8, and running all week.

New TV Series For Pre-Teens

Self-Incorporated, a series designed to help 11 to 13-year-olds cope with the problems tat arise as a result of the physical, emotional and social changes they are experiencing, will be previewed on KCTS-9, 3:30-4 p.m. on Jan. 26, 27, 28 and Feb. 2. The 15 quarter-hour programs regularly will air on Public TV 9 on Wednesdays at 9:30 a.m. and 2:45 p.m., beginning Feb. 11.

Several of the shows will also be previewed in the KCTS-9 studios, Jan. 26 from 2:30-4 p.m. by educators, parents, students, counsellors and health professionals. The audience will be involved in a discussion of the series' merits, and of classroom follow-up possibilities.

Originally tested in schools in the KCTS-9 viewing area, Self-Incorporated discusses topics such as physiological changes, boy-girl relationships, pressure to achieve, sex role identification, ethnic-racial differences and family adversity. The programs do not give simple answers; rather, they take an open-ended, non-prescriptive approach to problems facing young viewers and are intended to stimulate private reflection and discussion in and out of the classroom.

One of the field tests involved four Bellevue junior high schools and two sixth-grade classes, who were observed by a group of teachers. The teachers themselves and the classes were, in turn, watched by two teams of observers, consisting of 10 Bellevue administrators and counsellors.

After this field testing, the producers — Agency for Instructional Television (AIT) — developed a School-Community Awareness Kit to introduce the series to teachers, administrators and parents. The material is designed to help adults better utilize and understand the series. An instructional guide for teachers is also available to teachers.

Working with AIT in the development of the instructional package was Marlene Scordan, then a KCTS-9 utilization consultant. Ms. Scordan since has joined AIT as a field investigator. In February, she will become a television specialist for the state office of public instruction, assisting ITV stations in the utilization of series such as Self-Incorporated.

Public TV 9 transmits over 11,000 curriculum lessons to 300,000 students in grades K through 12 in two-thirds of the state of Washington and southern British Columbia. This school programming is paid for in part by participating districts. Since massive levy failures may reduce the school income by as much as $250,000, KCTS-9 has committed itself to an operating loss, and dipped into its cash reserves in order to maintain this vital service. Although the reserves will be drained by the end of the year if not replaced, the KCTS-9 advisory board and management decided to continue the partnership with the schools, believing that instructional television is an even greater necessity in a time of educational cutbacks.

JEWISH PORTRAIT

The life of a Jewish immigrant, from birth in Russia through the wedding of a granddaughter in New Jersey, is captured on Gomberg At 82, January 26 at 8:00 p.m. on KCTS-9.

Segments of the program include still photographs of immigrants embarking in Newark, a present-day children's Hanukkah celebration, Rosh Hashanah services, adult classes in Yiddish, and a ritual visit to a cemetery.

Gomberg At 82 touches on the immigrant's desire to educate his descendents, his feelings regarding the waning of Jewish traditions, his thoughts on Isreal, and his conception of America.

Lilting Yiddish and Israeli melodies and traditional dances are interspersed throughout the program. These songs themselves are the focus of The Jew in Song: A Yiddish Portrait, a local KCTS-9 production to be aired immediately following Gomberg At 82 at 8:30 p.m.

Today's Movies

The Log of the Black Pearl, on 8 at 12:45.—No rating available on this 1974 made-for-TV adventure about a search for sunken treasure, starring Ralph Bellamy.

The Naked Brigade (x), on 11 at 1. A mediocre 1965 war drama about a young woman who joins a group of female Greek guerillas when the country is overrun by Nazis in 1941, starring Shirley Eaton.

The Gangster (xxx), on 5 at 3:30. Barry Sullivan and John Ireland star in this well-acted 1947 psychological study of gangster losing control of his mob.

Nightmare at 43 Hillcrest, on 4 at 11:30. No rating available on this recently made-for-television drama about an innocent family terrorized when a narcotics squad raids their house. The man behind the raid, hopeful for a promotion, decides to plant drugs in the house rather than admit his mistake. Cast includes Peter Mark Richman and Jim Hutton.

The World, the Flesh and the Devil (xxx), on 12 at 11:30. Harry Belafonte, Inger Stevens and Mel Ferrer star in this interesting 1959 science-fiction story about the last survivors on earth after a poisonous gas has destroyed humanity. The beginning scenes of a seemingly empty New York City have been skillfully handled by writer-director Ronald MacDougall.

Vulcan, Son of Jupiter, on 2 at midnight. A 1963 Italian-made fantasy with an unfamiliar cast.

Pancho Villa, on 6 at midnight. No rating available on this 1971 Spanish-made adventure starring Telly Savalas in the title role of the Mexican revolutionary leader. Others in the cast include Clint Walker, Anne Francis and Chuck Connors.

The Secret Night Caller (xxx), on 8 at midnight. A very well-acted but somewhat unpleasant 1975 made-for-TV drama about a respectable family man driven to make obscene phone calls, starring Robert Reed, Hope Lange, Michael Constantine and Sylvia Sidney.

Duffy (xx), on 7 at 12:30 a.m. An attractive cast (James Coburn, Susannah York and James Mason) is wasted in this 1968 comedy-crime-drama about robbery and double-cross played against a sumptuous Spanish beach setting.

The Astronaut (xxx), on 8 at 1:30 a.m. A routine title belies an interesting plot in this 1972 science-fiction drama about a plan to conceal a space traveller's death on Mars. The deception succeeds in public but backfires in private with Canadian actress Susan Clark's excellent portrayal of the duped wife upsetting the lie. Monte Markham and Jackie Cooper are equally competent in their roles.

The Pride and the Passion (xx), on 6 at 1:55 a.m. Cary Grant, Sophia Loren and Frank Sinatra are badly miscast in this over-produced 1957 spectacle set during the Spanish revolution against Napoleon. The real star of the overlong epic is an enormous cannon which is abandoned by the Spanish army and retrieved by the band of guerillas with the aid of a British naval officer (uncomfortably played by Grant). Sophia Loren is merely decorative as a fiery Spanish girl with Sinatra in the implausible role of a guerrilla leader.

Ride Beyond Vengeance (xx), on 7 at 2:25 a.m. Predictable 1966 western starring Chuck Connors as a buffalo hunter who returns to his home after a long absence and is victimized by corrupt townspeople.

LAVERNE and SHIRLEY starring Penny Marshall (left) and Cindy Williams is the title of a new comedy spin-off from Happy Days, about the romantic adventures of a pair of 1950s girls working in a brewery, premiering on Tuesday at 8:30 p.m. on Channel 4.

Today's Highlights

Mike Douglas Show, on 12 at 12:30 and 7 at 6:30. Mike and this week's co-host Steve Allen welcomes among their guest Yul Brynner, Tammy Grimes, former silent screen star Lillian Gish and singer Patrice Munsel. (90 mins.)

Anyone for Tennyson?, on 9 at 7. The World of Emily Dickinson, starring British actress Claire Bloom as the shy 19th-century poet who rarely left her father's house in Amherst, Mass., where she composed a total of 1,775 poems. (30 mins.)

Austin City Limits, on 9 at 7:30. Debut of a new series featuring country music from Austin, Texas. On tonight's opener, the Texas Playboys and Asleep at the Wheel pay tribute to the late Bob Wills, who pioneered the style known as Western swing over 40 years ago. (60 mins.)

Laverne and Shirley, on 4 at 8:30. Debut of a new comedy spin-off from Happy Days, starring Penny Marshall and Cindy Williams as a couple of 1950s working girls employed in a bottle-capping division of a Milwaukee brewery. Henry Winkler (as Fonzie) guests stars in tonight's opener. (30 mins.)

Golden Globe Awards, on 11 at 9. Steve Lawrence and Eydie Gorme are the co-hosts of the Hollywood Foreign Press Association's 33rd annual Golden Globe awards. Both television and movies are honored in this ceremony. Among those presenting awards are Robert Mitchum, Jean Stapleton, Ann-Margret, Roger Moore, Gena Rowlands and Jack Albertson. (90 mins.)

Shirley MacLaine Special, on 12 at 9. Gypsy in My Soul is the theme of this variety special, saluting the threatre's often-unsung chorus dancers (sometimes called "gypsies"), starring Shirley MacLaine and Lucille Ball. They trade stories about their own show business starts and appear in several production number from hit musicals. (60 mins.)

Soundstage, on 9 at 10. Repeat of a concernt featuring Kris Kristofferson and his wife Rita Coolidge. Songs include Me and Bobby McGee, Why Me Lord?, and I Never Had It So Good. (60 mins.)

Johnny Carson, on 5 at 11:30. Singer Della Reese fills in as host of tonight's show and welcomes among her guests actor James Coco, who talks about his new television series, The Dumplings, premiering on Wednesday at 9:30 p.m. on Channel 5. (90 mins.)

Incoming President Sets New Priorities for PBS

By JOAN HANAUER

NEW YORK (UPI) — The incoming president of PBS wants to emphasis the public part of the Public Broadcasting System and encourage an increasing number of viewers to watch its offerings. Lawrence K. Grossman has been the president of his own marketing and advertising firm specializing in public affairs and media clients since 1966, but on Feb. 1 he takes over PBS.

Asked during an interview to name his top priority in the new post, he said:

"The most important thing is the quality of the programming. Now the system is in place, the key thing is to provide exciting, innovative and diverse programming with the quality of showmanship commercial broadcasting provides."

That brought Grossman to what some critics call public broadcasting's major defect — the fact that its audiences are tiny compared to the millions who watch, not only top-rated All in the Family, but even bottom-ranked Live with Howard Cosell.

He pointed out that 70 per cent of the more than 220 public television stations in the United States are UHF — which he called "an automatic handicap" because they are hard to tune in and the signal is poor." he added:

"Despite the built-in reasons why public broadcasting may have a smaller audience, I think public television should be just that — public. I think we have an obligation to reach out to all the people.

"It's not enough to put on class shows. We must invite people to come to watch with showmanship and a sense of excitement.

"Public television can't just be good for you. It must be lively, interesting and inviting. Too often our people are very well intentioned but they have considered it enough to do worthwhile things. The second and vital step is to get into the homes of the people who would really benefit by it."

One possible reason for the problem is that public broadcasting began as educational television, with many of its original movers and shakers primarily educators, not entertainers. They just weren't attuned to showmanship.

"Their whole orientation was quite different from broadcasters' orientation," he said, pointing out that it is only in the last two years that public television as a whole has moved wholeheartedly into general programming.

"Programming is the be-all and end-all," Grossman said. "We must create a climate that attracts new ideas and draws people who might work for commercial television but who want to do things they can't do on commercial television."

Grossman pointed out that PBS does not produce television shows — nor, in fact, do commercial networks. The vast majority of television programs are created and developed by producing firms, who sell their product to the networks.

Grossman referred to PBS as a "distribution system". Asked how that differs from a network, he replied that it was a matter of domination. "Realistically, public television is dominated by the stations," Grossman said. "In part, calling it a 'distribution system' is a euphemism that's used as an outgrowth of the reaction to commercial television, where the networks dominate the stations.

"It's been said that power goes where the money comes from. Well, the public television network gets its money from, rather than gives money to, the stations. So the power always resides with the constituent stations."

Network, he said, should not be considered a dirty word on public television, but neither should it mean what it does in commercial televison — "which is to say all powerful and totally controlled from the centre."

Grossman believes that he is coming into public television at a good time — post-Nixon administration influence. "In the Nixon years the fact is that an effort was made to diminish the role of public television and there was a strong policy opposing any news or public affairs programming on public television," he said.

He went on to say that while he opposed the Nixon administration policy and attitude, which he said would have had the effect of "inhibiting an important responsibility of public television," He believed that questioning whether public television provides a fair and balanced view of public affairs is a legitimate and necessary question.

"I think it's fair to say that public television has made more of an effort than any other institution of television to present a balanced view of the news," he said, "but there's no way of balancing ideas precisely.

"It's not like pounds of sausage, where you can even them off."

STEVE LAWRENCE AND HIS WIFE EYDIE GORME host the star-studded 33rd annual Golden Globe Awards, honoring both television and the movies, to be telecast on Tuesday at 9 p.m. on Channel 11.

Noted Actress Stars In Dickinson Drama

SHIRLEY MACLAINE and guest star Lucille Ball combine their talents in a variety special, Tuesday at 9 p.m. on Channel 12.

Claire Bloom, the noted British actress, gives a tender portrayal of the World of Emily Dickinson on Anyone for Tennyson?, January 27 at 7:00 p.m. (rebroadcast January 28 at 10:30 p.m. and January 29 at 9:00 a.m.) on Public TV 9.

Appearing as a special guest with the First Poetry Quartet, Claire Bloom evokes the image of the shy 19th century poet who seldom left her room in her father's house in Amherst, Massachusetts. She did, however, send out "letters to the world" — in the form of more than 1700 poems.

Members of the First Poetry Quartet appear as the people who best knew Emily and her work: Jill Tanner as sister Lavinia who lived with her for 53 years; Cynthia Herman as her cousin Louise Norcross; and George Backman as Thomas Higginson, the writer from whom Emily sought advice.

The World of Emily Dickinson is a dramatization set in the living room and bedroom of the Dickinson home, with her letters and poems providing script material. The thirty-two poems used in this program reflect her love of nature — it's seasons and its various creatures — and her deep concern with love, death and immortality. Asked if it were difficult to play the retiring poet, Claire Bloom said: "I love her work, although I think I understand it less the more I read it. She was in incredibly brilliant poet."

CLAIRE BLOOM portrays the 19th-century poet Emily Dickinson on the Channel 9 series, Anyone For Tennyson? Tuesday at 7 p.m.

Today's Movies

The Trap (xxx), on 8 at 12:45. The rugged interior of British Columbia provides the setting for this 1966 adventure about the strange relationship between a turn-of-the-century trapper and the orphaned deaf mute girl he buys as his bride. Rita Tushingham and Oliver Reed (her real-life husband) are excellent.

And Now Miguel, on 11 at 1. No rating available on this 1966 drama about the adventures of a 10-year-old boy growing up on a Mexican sheep farm, starring Pat Cardi, Guy Stockwell and Clu Gulager.

Swamp Diamonds, on 5 at 3:30. No rating available on this 1956 drama about three escaped female convicts on a ruthless search for gems hidden in the Louisiana swamps, starring Beverly Garland and Mike Connors.

Start the Revolution Without Me, on 8 at 9. No rating available on this 1970 spoof of the swashbuckling novels, set in 18th-century Europe and starring Donald Sutherland and Gene Wilder.

They've Kidnapped Anne Benedict (xx), on 4 at 11:30. Robert Wagner, E. G. Marshall, Lloyd Nolan and Kathleen Quinlan star in this 1975 movie combining religion with a detective story, about a private eye hired by the Vatican to check into the rumored saintliness of a mobster's daughter.

A Little Game (xx), on 12 at 11:30. A 1971 made-for-TV thriller about a 13-year-old boy, possessed with guns and death, who makes no secret of his intent to get rid of his stepfather. Cast includes Ed Nelson, Diane Baker and Howard Duff.

Boomerang (xxxx), on 2 at midnight. Top flight screen entertainment best describes this fascinating 1947 semi-documentary about a man on trial for the murder of a Connecticut clergyman. Based on an actual court cast, the film is brilliantly directed by Elia Kazan, with an outstanding cast that includes Dana Andrews, Jane Wyatt, Lee J. Cobb, Ed Begley and Karl Malden. Excellent late night viewing.

Krakatoa, East of Java, on 6 at midnight. (Alternate title, Volcano.) An Academy-Award nomination for excellent special effects was earned by this 1969 adventure about the search for a treasure ship sunk off an ominous volcanic island, starring Maximillian Schell, Diane Baker and Brian Keith.

The Wicked Dreams of Paula Schultz (x), on 8 at midnight. A tasteless 1968 Hogan's Heroes-type Cold War farce about a sexy Olympic pole vaulter who defects to the West, starring Elke Sommer, Bob Crane and Werner Klemperer.

The Interns (xx), on 7 at 12:40. Cliff Robertson, James MacArthur and Suzy Parker head a large cast in this 1962 medical soap opera about the personal and professional lives of a group of aspiring doctors and nurses.

Knock of Any Door (xxx), on 8 at 2:25 a.m. An excellent 1949 film rendering of the engrossing best-selling novel about a young hood on trial for murder. The bitter life story of the boy's rise to crime is told via flashbacks and through his lawyer, well-played by Humphrey Bogart. John Derek in his first major role is very good as the young criminal.

Beneath the 12-Mile Reef (xx), on 7 at 2:55 a.m. Fascinating underwater photography highlights this otherwise predictable 1953 adventure about Greek sponge divers, and their rivalry in and out of business. Cast includes Robert Wagner, Terry Moore and Gilbert Roland.

The Harder They Fall (xxx), on 6 at 3 a.m. Humphrey Bogard is excellent in this, his last film, a realistic 1956 drama about big-time boxing, focusing on an honest promoter who locks horns with a corrupt manager. A fine supporting cast includes Rod Steiger and Jan Sterling.

BARETTA played by Emmy-winning actor Robert Blake, teams with an undercover policewoman in his search for the murder of a prostitute in tonight's episode of this popular crime-drama series at 9 p.m. on Channel 4. Among the guest cast is Blake's real-life wife Sondra.

Today's Highlights

Magazine, on 7 and 12 at 2:30 p.m. Another edition of this daytime magazine series with today's program including a look at aggressive female characters in television and the movies and interviews with Candice Bergen, Glenda Jackson and Angie Dickinson. (60 mins.)

Mike Douglas Show, on 7 at 6:30. Mike and this week's co-host Steve Allen welcome actress Doris Day who talks about her new best-selling autobiograpny. (90 mins.)

Sports of the XXI Olympiad, on 2 at 7:30. Tonight's edition focuses on Olympic rowing competition. (30 mins.)

Images of Aging, on 9 at 8. Tonight's edition of this series focusing on attitudes towards the elderly explores gaps among various age groups, including a portion of a documentary shot at a nursing home where a 64-year-old woman is visiting her 90-year-old aunt. (60 mins.)

Musicamera (Part 1), on 2 and 6 at 8:30. A 12-member chamber orchestra from Italy performs excerpts from the works of Vivaldi, Bach and Mendelssohn. (30 mins.)

Musicamera (Part 2), on 2 and 6 at 9. A performance by Les Grands Ballets Canadiens of Montreal who dance in two works by Canadian choreographer Brian MacDonald. (60 mins.)

Baretta, on 4 at 9. British actress Joan Collins and series star Robert Blake's wife Sondra guest star in tonight's episode that finds Baretta teaming with an undercover policewoman to bring in a homocidal procurer trying to control local prostitution. (60 mins.)

Theatre in America, on 9 at 9. The first Breeze of Summer, a complex and emotional drama, performed by the Negro Ensemble Company. On one level, the play deals with the conflicts between a stern, hard-working father and his two discontented sons; and on another level, it's the story of the man's now elderly mother who recalls, through flashbacks, her youthful love affairs. (90 mins.)

Dumplings, on 5 at 9:30. Debut of a new comedy series starring James Coco and Geraldine Brooks as a pair of middle-aged sandwich-shop owners, whose specialty is a determinedly happy and genuine love for one another. (30 mins.)

Anyone for Tennyson?, on 9 at 10:30. A repeat telecast of the World of Emily Dickinson, starring Clare Bloom as the shy 19th-century writer who composed 1775 poems. (30 mins.)

Johnny Carson Show, on 5 at 11:30. Steve Allen fills in for Johnny tonight, and welcomes among his guests his wife Jayne Meadows and comedians Louis Nye and Dick Shawn. (90 mins.)

Old Image Shattered In Doris' New Book

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Doris Day's new book, Doris Day, Her Own Story, destroys the old fresh scrubbed virgin image to reveal a woman with as many hangups and problems as the genuine girl next door.

She talks about her marriages, sex, ripoffs and stardom with candor, doing her best not to gild the lily.

Doris has spent 30 of her 51 years guarding her private life, including her romances. She was asked why she chose to launder her linen in a book. "Because I think I can help a lot of people and make them think," she said.

"I was a trusting soul and I still am. Maybe this book will make people more aware of what is going on in their lives. You can't stick your head in the sand and leave the future to someone else."

Doris' implication is clear. She allowed her late husband, Marty Melcher, and attorney Jerome Rosenthal to handle all her financial affairs.

After Melcher's death in 1968, Doris found herself broke and a half million dollars in debt. Last year she won a $22 million judgment from Rosenthal but is a long way from collecting it all.

"I didn't write this book for money," Doris said. "I worked a full year with the writer, A. E. Hotchner, for a lot of reasons.

"Jackie Susann (the late novelist) was instrumental. She told me people didn't know me except to think I was all peaches and cream. Jackie convinced me to tell the real story.

"The Rosenthal situation was the clincher. I trusted Marty and he trusted Rosenthal.

"Many women have gone through the same things with husbands that I have. But I feel God gave me the courage and hope to pull through and write about it all.

"The book should be a good lesson for people facing adversity. Beautiful things are waiting for everyone just around the corner. You can never tell what's in store for you. I think the book is inspirational."

It's also revealing, dealing with rumored romances with black athletes Maury Wills and Elgin Baylor, and the Manson cult's relationship with her son, Terry.

Doris even revives the late Oscar Levant's wry quote, "I knew her before she was a virgin."

"Writing the book was like going through analysis," she said. "I pulled no punches. Everything in the book is true.

"I go into the fictional romances with athletes and rock singers. Why not? I never made denials or sued anyone for the stories that were printed. It all comes with being in the public eye. The gossip didn't bother me.

"The book is different. Some days it was so difficult I had to get away. Parts of the story are terribly sad and I couldn't hold back the tears.

"But I'm resilient. I bounce back. You have to get up every time you get knocked down or you won't survive."

Doris said she had no burning desire to become a movie star when she came to Hollywood. She was a working girl trying to earn a living — little Doris Kappelhoff from Cincinnati who at age 10 caught her father in bed with her mother's best friend.

"Being in Hollywood when you are very young makes some girls competitive," she said. "I learned quickly it's a phony way of life and sailed right through without envy or jealousy.

"I didn't care if I became a star. What I wanted to do was get married, raise children in Cincinatti and live happily ever after. But it didn't work out that way."

Doris was pensive sitting in the hotel dining room for lunch. She looked beautiful, freckles and all, in a tan knit dress. Her figure is firm and youthful and her laugh is still a carillon.

She admits that writing the book hasn't drawn her out of her personal shell. She still avoids parties — "I'm not a very social person." She devotes much of her time to Actors and Others for Animals, a humane charity which she founded.

Doris lives in Beverly Hills with her mother and a pack of dogs. She is financially healthy thanks to her own acumen and her long-running television series.

"I have only one regret about the book," she said. "It's learning how other people felt about Marty."

Acquaintances of Melcher almost universally had low opinions of him.

"As for living my life over, I wouldn't change anything. The bad things are what make the good things great and give us strength. We're all human. We're all in the same boat."

DORIS DAY talks about her new and candid best-seller entitled, Doris Day, Her Own Story, when she appears on the Mike Douglas Show, Wednesday at 12:30 p.m. on Channel 12 and 6:30 p.m. on Channel 7.

Women's Health Documentary Wins Praise

The overwhelming response of viewers to the documentary special, ABC News Closeup on Women's Health: A Question of Survival, has surprised even producer-writer Marlene Sanders.

"Frankly, those of us who worked on the program are stunned," said Ms. Sanders, whose report on Jan. 5 explored critical issues in Women's health care — from potentially dangerous birth control measures to unnecessary surgery. "We're wondering what this means. The indications are that information of the kind we offered is very hard to get." The response in telephone calls and letters came from professionals in the field, from schools and universities and from men as well as women. And some viewers shared their own experiences.

A married graduate student at Yale University described emergency surgery she required following use of the Dalkon Shield birth control device whose risks were reported on the program.

She wrote: "Perhaps if those of us who have been injured do not keep silent, our actions may serve as a catalyst for stronger preventive action in the future."

A New York suburban housewife called to say that her physician a few days earlier had recommended use of the Dalkon Shield and she learned from the program that the manufacturer had removed the device from the market as long ago as January, 1975.

Another letter said: "For the last five years I have worked as a nurse-anesthetist in four large city and community hospitals . . . Your program really told it like it was. Please don't stop with just one program." A health educator and a consultant for the Pennsylvania State Department of Health said in a joint letter:

"We hope that the program will serve to awaken women throughout the country to their own situation, as well as to alert pharmaceutical companies, Congressional subcommittees and medical professionals that women do care and that they will not be silent . . . What women don't know can hurt them!"

Another writer said: "I am a 21-year-old woman who is both naive and unaware of the effect which various medicines and contraceptive devices can have . . . I wish every woman could have seen this documentary and know the caution that is needed . . ."

The Closeup report was produced by ABC News Television Documentaries.

CONSUMER TIPS

Ways of securing the home against unwanted guests from without and from the ravages of fire from within are detailed on the fourth installment of Consumer Survival Kit, January 28 at 7:30 p.m. on KCTS 9 (rebroadcast January 31 at 6:00 p.m., February 2 at 9:00 a.m.)

Host Lary Lewman tests viewer knowledge about burglary techniques, the comparative costs of household fires and burglaries, and the rights of homeowners to protect their homes.

Renaissance man Lars Locksmith (played by David Landsberg) shows a concerned father how deadbolts can keep away deadbeats before Lary returns with a comprehensive treatment of door and window locks.

A spokesburglar from STEALTH (the Society for the Theft of Equipment, Assets and Leftovers in the Home) takes advantage of equal time requirements to make an appeal for better working conditions.

Boston's North End is featured as a community that has made inroads into crime prevention through "social cohesiveness" while Operation I.D.'s program of property identification is considered as a deterrant to thieves.

Household fires are also investigated, with Lary providing information on extinguishers, escape ladders and fire alarm systems. Bob Smith explains the complexities often found in homeowner's insurance policies.

Today's Highlights

The Way It Was, on 9 at 8. The June 28, 1939 fight between Joe Louis and Tony Galento is spotlighted in tonight's edition of this sports retrospective series, which includes film footage of the championship bout and personal reminiscences by both boxers. (30 mins.)

Lowell Thomas Remembers, on 9 at 8:30. Host Lowell Thomas continues with his newsreel series, tonight focusing on the beginning of the Depression. Film clips from 1929 include the stock exchange on Black Tuesday, when the average stock price fell some 40 points. (30 mins.)

Practice, on 8 at 9. Debut of a new comedy series starring Danny Thomas as a gruff but loveable West Side Manhattan physician (shades of CBS's Doc), whose lower-class practice is scorned by his Park Avenue doctor-son. (30 mins.)

Hollywood Television Theater, on 9 at 9. Me, a 1973 drama about a retarded youth going on 18, but with a mental age of 4, who has become the dominating force in a family that needs him as much as he needs them. An excellent cast includes Richard Dreyfuss and Geraldine Fitzgerald. (60 mins.)

Lola Falana, on 4 and 8 at 10 p.m. A second special for this talented dancer-singer who welcomes among her guests Gabriel Caplan (Kotter), Don Meredith, Frank Gifford and actor Billy Dee Williams. Cameo appearances are provided by Bill Cosby and Dinah Shore (30 mins.).

Mag Time, on 9 at 10. Debut of a new PBS interview series, focusing on topical and controversial subjects. Tonight's program centres on former Air Force sergeant Leonard Matlovich, who was discharged from the service after he declared he was a homosexual. His case is presently before the appeals court. (60 mins.).

Peep Show, on 2 at 10:30. Tonight's play entitled, Susan, focuses on the parents of a slightly retarded teenager, who must decide to shield her from the outside world and allow her to develop an independent life. Cast includes Deborah Templeton, Chris Wiggins and Patricia Collins. (30 mins.)

Johnny Carson, on 5 at 11:50. Filling in for Johnny tonight is guest host McLean Stevenson. (90 mins.)

Today's Movies

Vera Cruz (xx), on 8 at 12:45. Gary Cooper and Burt Lancaster star in this 1954 western based on the traditional theme of two opportunistic rivals who join forces to escort a gold shipment across revolutionary Mexico.

Blood and Defiance (x), on 11 at 1. Another in the never-ending line of stilted, dubbed into English, Italian-made adventures with an unknown cast. If you care, this 1966 effort focuses on a hero seeking to uproot a tyrannical dictator from his small country.

The Rookies (xx), on 5 at 3:30. A 1972 crime-drama about the training and first assignments of a group of young California policemen, which served as a pilot for the currently running TV series. Cast includes Darren McGavin and Cameron Mitchell.

Sisters, on 5 at 9. An unpreviewed 1973 thriller focusing on a pair of identical twins, one of whom may be a murderous psychopath, starring Canadian actress Margot Kidder and Charles Durning.

Soldier of Fortune (xx), on 11 at 9. A novel by Ernest K. Gann served as the inspiration of this 1955 drama about a woman who hires a cynical adventurer to help locate her missing husband in Hong Kong. Clark Gable and Susan Hayward star.

See No Evil (xxx), on 12 at 9:30. England's beautiful Berkshire country is the locale of this 1971 suspense-thriller starring Mia Farrow as a blind girl who comes home to her uncle's house after the accident that caused her blindness, and begins living a nightmare. The supporting cast is British.

Saddle in the Wind (xxx), on 12 at 11:30. The late Rod Serling wrote the script for this interesting 1956 western drama about an ex-gunfighter whose peaceful retirement is shattered by the return of his violent younger brother. The familiar theme is well handled by a competent cast that includes Robert Taylor, Julie London and John Cassavetes.

Neary a Nasty Accident (xx), on 2 at midnight. A typical British comedy, this one made in 1961 and centering on the misadventures of an accident-prone RAF mechanic. Cast includes Kenneth Connor and Shirley Eaton.

Mayerling (xxx), on 8 at midnight. An all-star cast (Omar Sharif, Catherine Deneuve, Ave Gardner, James Mason and James Robertson Justice) highlights this 1968 costume drama about the tragic 19th-century romance between Austria's Crown Prince Rudolf and the Baroness Maria Vetsera.

A Time for Killing (xx), on 7 at 12:30 a.m. Glenn Ford, Inger Stevens and George Hamilton star in this predictable 1967 western about vengeance and pursuit in post-Civil War Utah and Arizona.

The War Lover (xx), on 7 at 2:15 a.m. Routine 1962 romantic adventure-drama about the personal and professional lives of U.S. pilots in Britain during the Second World War, starring Steve McQueen, Robert Wagner and Shirley Anne Field.

Big Rose (xx), on 6 at 2:55 a.m. Shelley Winters plays the title role in this 1974 comedy-drama about a tough lady owner of a detective agency, hired to expose a team of con artists. This movie was a pilot for a series that never made it, and if you watch it, you'll know why.

Jamaica Run (x), on 8 at 3 a.m. A jumbled 1953 adventure-drama about family skeltons in every closet of a large mansion inhabited by the beautiful Arelene Dahl. Ray Milland plays a schooner captain who brings a little sanity to the situation.

CLARK GABLE and SUSAN HAYWARD star in the 1955 adventure, Soldier of Fortune, about a woman who hires a hard-drinking, gun-runner to help find her husband missing in Hong Kong, to be telecast on Thursday at 9 p.m. on Channel 11.

The Caribbean—Safe From The Bite of the Taxman

For many Canadians the lure of the Caribbean is wide, white sands, coral shells, exotic dining and dark rum. But for others, it is a sanctuary, where billions of dollars are stashed like buried treasure away from the reaeh of the taxman.

On Thursday at 9.30 p.m. on Channel 8, correspondent Michael Maclear takes a close look at a Caribbean tax haven, where multi-national corporations and individuals are enjoying a tax dodge that costs the rest of us hard, cold cash. Every dollar that finds shelter must be paid for by the average Canadian taxpayer.

Ten years go there wasn't a single bank in Grand Cayman. Today it is a financial capital and one of the fastest growing of the world's 30 or so tax havens. As a part of the Commonwealth and with its proximity to Canada, it has become a favorite among Canadians looking to escape the inevitable pinch of the taxman.

"No matter who uses them, the result is the same," says Maclear, "you and I pay for it."

"Almost every major Canadian bank is represented here and Canadian banks do fifty per cent of the business," Maclear points out, "but merely do what Canadian law allows."

In the program, Revenue Minister Bud Cullen tells Maclear that Ottawa is beginning to recover some of the money it has lost to tax havens . . . $25 million in one year. And Cullen says he may change the Bank Act if he feels that Canadian chartered banks are "aiding and abetting in this kind of enterprise which is costing you and me money as a taxpayer.

And Maclear also tells the story of Quebecer Jean Doucet who started his own bank in Grand Cayman and who now languishes in the island prison after the bank collapsed in a $25 million bankruptcy.

DANNY THOMAS plays a New York doctor devoted to his patients — not to making money — in The Practice, a new comedy series premiering on Thursday at 9 p.m. on Channel 8.

HUGE COST FOR ADAMS HISTORY

Three thousand costumes, eleven hundred actors, nine playwrights, six directors and two sound stages were all needed to produce The Adams Chronicles, the most massive dramatic project ever undertaken by non-commercial television in the United States. Debuting on Public TV 9 January 22 at 7:00 p.m., (rebroadcast January 25 at 7:00 p.m. with captions for the hearing impaired), this series of thirteen hour-long dramas spans the years from 1750 to 1900, and details how four generations of one family helped determine America's direction.

For The Adams Chronicles, Virginia Kassel—the series' producer and creator — had access to the Adams' Papers, 300,000 pages of letters, diaries and journals written by various members of the family. "It is this wealth of philosophical, political, and personal detail on which The Adams Chronicles are based, dramatized within the framework of historical events and the implications of those events on the public and private lives of the Adamses," Ms. Kassel said.

It is her belief that history, as depicted in the Chronicles, is more dramatic than fiction because it shows the courageous ways in which real people faced the unknown and forged a nation — at great personal costs to themselves and to their loved ones.

In the series, woven among the events that shaped the history of an emerging nation are the family's personal stories: John and Abigale's lifetime partnership; the deaths of John Adams and Thomas Jefferson within an hour of each other on the 50th anniversary of the Declaration of Independence: John Quincy's fatal heart attack on the floor of the House: broken friendships and reconciliations: and untimely deaths of wives and children.

Among the many actors taking part in the series are David Birney (as John Quincy, ages 36-48), Leora Dana (as Abigail, ages 44-73), William Daniels (as John Quincy, 50-81); George Brizzard (John Adams); John Houseman (Jeremiah Gridley); Kathryn Walker (Abigail, 18-44); and Michael Tolan (narrator).

Great effort has been taken to insure the authenticity of the drama. Alvan Colt, one of Broadway's leading costume designers, did copious research to insure that each character — even the extras—looked "perfect" from head to toe. Besides creating 150 years of fashion, Colt had to design clothes for courtiers in France, Holland, England and Russia. Occasionally, he had to produce as many as 300 costumes within two weeks.

Today's Movies

The Swinger (x), on 8 at 12:45. A tastless 1966 farce about a staid authoress pretending promiscuity to help sell her sensational novel. Ann-Margret looks and acts incapable of reading, much less writing a novel.

Lady from Louisiana (xx), on 11 at 1. John Wayne is competent in this well-produced 1941 drama about a lawyer trying to clean up a corrupt old New Orleans. (Sorry, no clues available as to the identity of the "lady".)

The Outlaw's Daughter (-), on 5 at 3:30. Predictable low-budget 1954 movie about lawlessness in the old west, with an unknown cast.

Deliverance (xxxx), on 4 at 9. A high-powered, fascinating but occasionally brutal 1972 adventure-thriller about what happens to four weekend canoeists on a hazardous journey down a turbulent, rock-strewn river. Starring Burt Reynolds and Jon Voight, the film is based on a best-selling novel by James Dickey (in a small cameo role as the sheriff) and comes with the warning that it may not be suitable for all members of the family.

Bob and Carol and Ted and Alice (xxx), on 7 at 9. A funny, contemporary 1969 comedy which focuses on many of the foibles of the liberated late, 1960s, such as pot-smoking, wife swapping, extramarital affairs and psychiatry. Hilarious dialogue and wacky situations keep the film entertaining throughout. Starring are Natalie Wood, Robert Culp, Dyan Cannon and Elliott Gould.

The Night Walker (xx), on 11 at 9. A 1964 suspense drama about a woman terrorized by nightmares, which seem to be instigated by her husband who was supposedly killed in a fire. Two pros (Barbara Stanwyck and Robert Taylor) give the film a professional gloss.

In Cold Blood (xxxx), on 12 at 9. Robert Blake (Baretta) and Scott Wilson star in this powerful 1967 semi-documentary about the two youths who murdered the Clutter family of Holcomb, Kansas, in 1959. Director Richard Brooks did a superb job in adapting Truman Capote's best-selling novel. This film is obviously not for the squeamish or the children, but if you can take it, you will rewarded with an unforgettable reenactment of a real-life incident, horrifying as it was.

Cast a Giant Shadow (xxx), on 12 at 11:40. A slightly romanticized but still interesting 1966 account of how U.S. Col. David Marcus helped build Isreal's modern army in the days when that country first became a state. Kirk Douglas stars with cameo appearances by John Wayne, Frank Sinatra and Yul Brynner.

Count Yorga, Vampire, on 6 at midnight. Another rendering of the familiar vampire theme, updated (1970) and set in contemporary Los Angeles. Cast is unfamiliar.

Against all Odds, on 8 at midnight. No rating available on this 1969 English-made thriller starring Christopher Lee as the diabolical Fu Manchu. This time he is out ot poison heads of state. Supporting cast includes Richard Greene and Shirley Eaton.

Son of Frankenstein (xxx), on 7 at 12:30 a.m. Thriller fans will enjoy this elaborately-produced 1939 horror story starring Basil Rathbone, Boris Karloff and Bela Lugosi.

The Brides of Dracula, on 2 at 1 a.m. A 1960 English-made thriller starring Peter Cushing.

The Deathmaster (x), on 6 at 1:50 a.m. Low-budget 1972 horror story combining vampires and hippies.

Satan's School for Girls (xx), On 8 at 2 a.m. Lilli Palmer and Pamela Franklin star in this 1974 made-for-TV melodrama about an exclusive girls' school where the students are prone to suicide.

The Werewolf (x), on 7 at 2:25. A 1956 thriller about a scientific experiment that turns a man into a murderous monster. Cast is unfamiliar.

Today's Highlights

Comedy Pilot, on 8 at 7:30. Rosenthal and Jones, an unsold comedy pilot about a black man and a retired white Jew who share an apartment in a rundown rooming house. George Kirby and Ned Glass star. (30 mins.)

Circus of the Lions, on 7 and 12 at 8. Circus acts from Manchester, England, featuring lion tamer Dick Chiperfield and his sister Mary, who work with tigers; Leigh March's trained dogs; the Cossack Cavalry; clown act Jacko Fosset and comapny; and hi-wire artists The Amazing Monahans. Jack Klugman hosts this special. (60 mins.)

Columbo, on 8 at 8. While vacationing in Mexico, Columbo (series star Peter Falk) becomes involved in the investigation of a retired matador who killed his best friend by drugging him and placing him in the ring with a ferocious bull. Guest cast includes Ricardo Montalban. (90 mins.)

Practice, on 5 at 8:30. Debut of a new comedy series starring Danny Thomas as a gruff but loveable West Side Manhattan physician whose lower class practice is scorned by his Park Avenue doctor-son. (30 mins.)

Lincoln Center, on 9 at 8:30. The New York Philharmonic Orchestra, under the direction of Andre Previn, performs Hector Berlioz' Overture from Beatrice and Benedict and a selection by Richard Strauss. Guest pianist Van Cliburn is the soloist for Edvard Greig's Piano Concerto in A Minor. (2 hrs.)

Police Story, on 2 and 5 at 10 p.m. Tonight's episode focuses on two separate investigations and features James McEachin, Lou Gossett, Howard Duff and child TV commercial star Rodney Allen Rippy in the cast. Singer Freda Payne as a cameo role as a meter maid. (60 mins.)

Ellery Queen, on 6 at 10. An award-winning novelist is murdered while talking on the phone with Ellery (series star Jim Hutton) in tonight's mystery which features Eva Gabor, Richard Jaeckel, Dean Stockwell and John Dehner in the guest cast. (60 mins.)

Johnny Carson, on 5 at 11:30. Guest host McLean Stevenson fills in for Johnny tonight. (90 mins.)

Midnight Special, on 5 at 1 a.m. Helen Reddy hosts tonight's program which features a tribute to Frank Zappa, and guest performers The Fifth Dimension, Janis Ian, Tom T Hall and rock group Queen. (90 mins.)

HIS VIEWPOINT!

CBC announcer Earl Cameron returns with his Viewpoint when he guests on The Royal Canadian Air Farce, Sunday, Jan. 25, at 7:03 p.m. on CBC Radio (Sat., Jan. 31, at 8:03 p.m. on CBC-FM).

Making a surprise appearance at a recent taping of The Royal Canadian Air Farce at the Richmond Hill Curtain Club, Earl Cameron was enthusiastically greeted by the audience, many of whom later expressed their opinions that he was so good, he ought to have his own comedy show!

Earl had the studio audience in stitches just by playing his traditional Viewpoint role with the RCAF cast — Roger Abbott, Dave Broadfoot, Don Ferguson, Luba Goy and John Morgan. Viewpoint, as everyone knows by now, was the CBC-TV public opinion show Earl hosted for years, which had its demise early in the new year.

In the first sketch, Earl's familiar line about audience opinions, "I enjoy receiving yours," takes on a new meaning in an Air Farce version of Viewpoint's cancellation meeting. In the second, Earl plays host to five opinionated Air Farce lunatics in a hilarious presentation of The Best of Viewpoint.

During the past three years, Earl's name has been frequently mentioned during Air Farce shenanigans, but it proved a real brainwave to have him on in person. Though temporarily lost to view, Earl Cameron's voice still strikes a warm response in the hearts of many Canadians.
